CLIFTON HOUSE,

Mankato, Minnesota.

THE proprietor would announce to the traveling public that his house is now completed and furnished throughout in the best style and he is now prepared to accommodate all who may favor him with their patronage. From long experience in the hotel business in eastern cities he flatters himself that he understands the wants of the traveling public and will spare no pains to make the Clifton an agreeable stopping place. All who may be visiting Mankato either for business or pleasure, especially those from the surrounding counties are invited to call and satisfy themselves. Attached to the premises are stables not excelled in the State either for capacity or convenience. The proprietor thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed upon his house would say to all stopping at the Clifton you will meet the same cordial and welcome reception as heretofore. Farmers sustain the Clifton House and by so doing promote your own interest. A word to the wise is sufficient.

ROB'T GOODYEAR,

U. S. 7:30 LOAN !

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi annual interest at the rate of seven and three tenths per cent per annum—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect. They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15, persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium, and before the war the premium on six per cent U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

Select Miscellany.

Return of a St Paulite from Montana.

Amos W. Hall, an old resident of St. Paul, who has been absent in the gold regions of Montana for the last three years, returned a few days ago, and has furnished the Press with an interesting account of affairs in that land of gold. We make a few extracts:

"He was among the first to visit that region of country in search of gold, has seen its rise and progress, is familiar by practical experience with the pleasure and hardships of mining and viewing the whole matter dispassionately, is enabled to state facts which cannot accurately be obtained by a temporary sojourn or a brief visit.

PLACER MINES—AVERAGE DAILY YIELD.

Placer mining includes all kinds where gold is washed from dirt and is the most engaged in because the least capital is required. The average daily yield from the bars ranges from five to ten dollars per man. Larger runs are, of course of common occurrence, but this can be taken as a fair average. The best run which Mr. Hall ever knew to be made in one day was $240.

To work the lead mines mills are necessary which cost from ten thousand dollars upwards. At Washoe, Nevada there is a mill which cost nine hundred thousand dollars. An ordinary twelve stamp mill can, however, be obtained for $25,000 in greenbacks. The ordinary wages of miners are five dollars a day, which also reduces the profits of claim owners

A LUCKY MAN.

One of the most fortunate men there, is Andrew Mercy, who went from Minnesota to Colorado and from thence to Bannock City. He secured a claim which yielded him an amount that in this section of country would be called a handsome competency, and two months since sold his claim, including a mill worth ten or fifteen thousand dollars in greenbacks for $64,000.

THE CIRCULATING MEDIUM.

As they dig gold, they trade with gold, and greenbacks are but little used. When any stray that way they are usually sent back to the States, where they are more current. Every dealer has scales for weighing gold dust, and those who are so fortunate as to be worth anything, carry a bag of dust, which is used as a circulating medium, and if they purchase twenty five cents worth, or any greater amount, the sum is weighed out. From this custom is supposed to have arisen 'down with the dust.'

THE MARKETS.

As everything is on a metal basis, the prices which we give of commodities, are the gold values. Flour was selling six weeks ago at $27 a hundred, or about $53 per barrel in gold, and $123 in greenback. It will probably be $35 per hundred this winter. Bacon, 80 cents per lb. Butter, $1. 25 per pound. Beef 20 and 25 cents per lb. Brown sugar, 75 per lb. Whisky, $8 per gallon. Tobacco has been as high as $20 per lb, but the market being somewhat overstocked now, it is selling for $2. Eggs are ordinarily as high as $1.30 per dozen, but they have been as low as 60 cts. Steel has been sold for $4 per pound, and powder has at times commanded $40 and $50 per keg. Canned fruit and other delicacies can be obtained there, if a person has dust enough to pay fo them.

Of course, large numbers who visit the mines are disappointed. Thousands go there, expecting to become suddenly rich, and after a short stay, return. Others remain and live in idleness, working, if at all only to obtain whisky. Mr. Hall's opinion is, that a person who goes there with the determination to remain, who is willing to endure the hardships of a miner's life, who will be contented to make a moderate sum at first and watch for opportunities for better things, will succeed. It is like any business. Some will fail and some will win, but as a general rule, a sober and industrious man wins.

Battle-Christened Kittens.

On the morning of the eight of April 1864, (just after the battle) Corporal Ed. H——, of Company B.——Illinois came running to me with three playful little kittens under his arm, peeping maliciously out of his haversack.

"Why, H——, where in the name of all that's wonderful did you come across the kittens?"

"Found 'em——aint they beauties, though? I say, Captain, you may have one, if you'll promise to take real good care of it."

"Kittens! kittens on the Field of Shiloh! Why exclaimed a sergeant at my elbow, "I thought that every living thing in the shape of bird, beast and insect, was killed either by the iron hail or the thunder. Why they're as natural as life. If you've no objections, I will take one H——."

Instantly a score of eager hands were outstretched towards the demure pussies.

"Found 'em in a house over there," said H——, holding towards a deserted cabin—" old pussy's gone off and left 'em. Never mind, we'll take care of 'em.

And well they did. To see the men who the day before breathed nothing but dire vengance and slaughter, nursing and feeding those motherless kittens, would have effectually dissipated any doubts the observer might have entertained concerning their genuine tenderness and sympathy. Soldiers are immensely fond of pets; those kittens were carried on knapsarks hundreds of miles, and when the black coffee was gulped down without a murmur, kitty would rub her paws and yawn contentedly over the cup from which she had just licked the last vestige of milk.

The Words We Use.

Be unaffected, be honest in your speaking and writing. Never use a long word where a short one will do. Call a spade a spade, not a well known oblong instrument of manual industry; a place a place, not a locality; and so of the rest—where a short will do, you always lose by using a long one. You lose in clearness, you lose in honest expression of your meaning; and in the estimation of all men who are competent to judge, you lose in reputation for ability. The only true way to shine, even in this false world, is to be modest and unassuming. Falsehood may be a very thick crust, but in the course of time truth will find a place to break through. Elegance of language may not be in the power of all of us, but simplicity and straightforwardness are.

Write much as you will speak; speak as you think. If with your inferiors, speak no coarser than usual; if with your superiors, speak no finer. Be what you say, and within the rules of prudence, say what you are. Avoid all oddity of expression. No one ever was a gainer by singularity of words, or in pronunciation. The truly wise man will so speak that no one will observe how he speaks. A man may show great knowledge of chemistry by carrying about bladders full of strange gases to breathe, but he will enjoy better health, find more time for business, who lives on the common air. When I hear a person use a queer expression, or pronounce a name in reading differently from his neighbors the habit always goes down, minus sign before it; it stands on the side of deficit, not of credit. Avoid, likewise, all slang words. There is no greater nuisance in society than a talker of slang. It is only fit (when innocent, which it seldom is), for raw school boys and one term freshmen to astonish their sisters with. Talk as sensible men talk; use the easiest words in their commonest meanings. Let the sense conveyed, not the vehicle in which it is conveyed, be the subject of attention.

One more, avoid in conversation all singularity of accuracy. One of the bores of society is the talker who is always setting you right; who, when you report from the paper that 10,000 men fell in a battle, tells you that it was 9,000; who, when you describe your walk as two miles out and back, assures you that it lacked half a furlong of it. Truth does not consist in minute accuracy of detail, but in conveying a right impression; and there are vague ways of speaking that are truer than strict fact would be. When the Psalmist said, "Rivers of water run down mine eyes, because men keep not thy law," he did not state the fact, but he stated a truth deeper than fact and also true.

In the great Union procession at Springfield Ill., before election, were ninety-three two-horse wagons loaded with wool. It was dumped in a pile for distributions for soldiers families.

Gen. Joe Hooker, while riding up from the depot, met the procession and was rather stunned by the ninety-three wool wagons. 'Why, where can these farmers find a market for this immense quantity of fuel?' asked the hero.

Oh, General, it is a part of our procession. Every stick of that is going to families of soldiers absent in the army.

The tears gathered in Hookers eyes—trembled a moment, then ran down the cheeks bronzed in a hundred battles, while he said, "My God! what a people you Illinoisians are! You not only furnish men without stint to fight the battles of the nation, but you take a father's care of their wives and children while they are absent."

A war carried on by such a people "a failure?" Copperheads, do you stick to this lie, and this slander?

Incontrovertible Evidence.

Old Plumbob keeps a boarding house—where, where, it matters not where. Some months since he lost his wig; said wig having, in conjunction with several other articles, been abstracted from his bedroom some time between the hours of dusk and daylight.

Vigorous measures were at once adopted for the detection of the thief, all of which, however, proved unavailing, and Plumbob was at length obliged to abandon the task, sorely against his will.

'Not that I care for the value of the goods,' said he, half so much as I wish to have the rascal brought to justice.'

Gradually the excitement, subsequent to the affair, blew over in a manner, and matters settled down into their old quiet way, and thus continued until one evening, as the boarders were all discussing their suppers, when one of them suddenly exclaimed—

'I'll be switched if I don't believe I've found out to a certainty who stole the landlord's wig.'

'The thunder you have!' ejaculated Plumbob, springing to his feet in ecstacies at the prospect of seeing the offender receive his deserts. 'Who is it? Say quick—who is it? Just let me know where I can get on his track, and I'll have him snatched up in the snap of an eye.'

'Well,' said the boarder, in the cautions tone of one who is about to unravel some hitherto unaccountable mystery; the landlord, meanwhile eyes and mouth open, waiting in breathless eagerness for the development, 'I've had my suspicions for some time past, but now I'd be almost willing to take my oath that the theft was committed by a person in your own household, that person being none other than your own cook, for I have no less than three hairs in that plate of hash. Conclusive proof, I should say.'

Any person who has ever beheld a countenance whereon was depicted a mingled expression of hope dispelled and 'dander riz,' can form some idea of the effect of his reply upon old Plumbob.

An Intelligent Contraband.

The colored individual known as the "intelligent contraband," has doubtless enlisted, and been keeping guard at the Covington (Kentucky) Ferry, as will be seen by the following, which occurred there a day or two since.

A merchant doing business in Cincinnati, but who rejoices in the possession of an "Old Kentucky Home," which he visits twice a week, started with a small valise to cross the river. Arriving upon the opposite bank, he was confronted by a bayonet, behind which he recognized the sombre shadow of the countenance of one of our American brethren of African descent, and at the same time he was brought up standing, by hearing the utterance of an imperious "Halt," And the gentleman halted.

"What hab you got dar?" questioned the sable warrior, pointing to the suspicious valise.

"Three dirty shirts, four pair of socks, a comb, tooth brush, and a bottle of Hiawatha," was the reply.

"Whar am your premit to bring dem articles in Kaintuck?" demanded the vigilant sentry.

The gentleman was nonplused for a moment, when a happy idea struck him, or rather he struck a happy idea. Taking from his pocket book a promissory note for $130, he handed it to the "intelligent contraband," who after regarding the document upside down with profound attention returned it, exclaiming as he recovered arms, "all korrect, you may pass."

Fredrika Bremer, the gifted Swedish authoress so well known in this country by her writings, and to some extent, by her visit in 1850, has not failed in interest for her welfare since. She recently wrote over to a friend here: I cannot but believe with you that this war is providential, and after its worst is done, its woes are past, will serve as a baptism for new and higher life. A baptism of blood, true and terrible it is: but the grace of God will turn the very wounds, to eyes which see His will, to fountains of sympathy and charity. God bless America! My heart is there now more than ever, and were I more young I would be there soul and body, and mix among those who take care of the sick and wounded. But I am old and shall hardily ever more cross the Atlantic except with my warmest wishes.

The Rev. Dr. Kendall, who recently returned from an official visit to California, communicates the following incident: "A poor little boy brought to the Sanitary Fair, held at Marysville, a white chicken, which was all he had to offer, saying it might make broth for a poor sick soldier. He had decked his rude offering with ribbon of 'red, white and blue,' but he had no money to pay the entrance fee, and was rejected at the door. As he passed down the street, a gentleman seeing his distress, listened to his story, gave him a ticket and sent him in. The simplicity of the child and the beauty of the offering attracted attention, and the chicken was put up at auction and sold for four hundred dollars in gold for the sanitary commission.

An officer down in Georgia tells the following story.

One night Gen—— was out on the line, and observed a light on the mountain opposite. Thinking it was a signal light of the enemy, he remarked to his artillery officer that a hole could be easily made through it. Whereupon, the officer turning to the corporal in charge of the gun, said:

"Corporal, do you see that light?

"Yes, sir."

"Put a hole through it," ordered the captain. The corporal sighted the gun, and when all was ready he looked up and said,

"Captain, that's the moon."

"Don't care for that," was the captains response, "put a hole through it anyway."

'Have you relatives in the army?' asked a Second Lieutenant of a lady sitting in a car seat with him. 'Yes.' 'Your husband?' 'Yes, sir.' 'From what State?' 'Illinois.' 'Illinois [patronizingly] has sent some fine troops, ma'am. Your husband wears a strap, I presume?' 'Yes, sir.' 'Is he with the Potomac army?' 'Yes, sir.' 'May I inquire his name? I am acquainted with a good many brother officers there.' Certainly, sir—Ulysses S. Grant.' [Exit Lieutenant for the smoking car.]

At the section exercises at South Hadley (Mass.) Female Seminary the teacher some gave subjects for ten minutes composition. Lately one section was requested to write anything pertaining to 'the time.' One young lady handed in the following:

"Little Mac' Little Mac,
Look back, look back,
And see your track!
How black, how black!"

We were greatly amused at the remarks of one of Uncle Sam's German boys in regard to the presidential canvass. It is too good to be lost. Said the sturdy Teuton; "I goes for Old Abe, by tam! Old Abe, he likes de soldier boy. Ven he serves tree years, he gives him four hundred tollars and re-enlist him, and make him von veteran. Now Old Abe he serve four years. By tam, we re enlist him four more years and make von veteran of him. Vot you say—eh?

DEFECTIVE PAG

The Weekly Union.

United States Official Paper.

Mankato, Friday, December 23, 1864.

THE WAR NEWS.

The news from the seat of war is highly encouraging. General Thomas has inflicted severe punishment on Hood, and totally routed his entire army. Our despatches give full details of the battle, in which some of the best blood of Minnesota soldiers was shed. We give, in another column, a list of the killed, and the number of wounded, as furnished the Saint Paul Press by Colonel Marshall of the Seventh.

General Thomas has captured four Major Generals, 9,000 prisoners, and 53 cannon, and is still in pursuit of the fleeing enemy.

Sherman has arrived in front of Savannah, and summoned that city to surrender. We shall be able to chronicle its capture in a few days.

Wm. L. Dayton, our minister to France, died at Paris on the 21 instant.

INTERESTING NEWS ITEMS.

A movement is about being started to send a Christmas dinner of turkeys and other luxuries to Sherman's army as soon as it reaches the coast. Invitation will probably be given for Western States and cities to join in the movemint.

An Orange Lodge, in Toronto, C. W. was broken into a short time since, by some unknown ruffians, and the property of the Lodge utterly demolished. The loss is over two thousand dollars. Five hundred dollars reward has been offered by the city council for the arrest of the villians.

Lord Lyons has been compelled by ill health to leave his post and return to England. For the present, the Chief Secretary of the Legation will fill his place.

The Reunion Presbyterian is a dollar monthly to be first issued next month in Cincinnati, devoted to the fusion of the Old and New School Presbyterian Churches in a single organization. The Rev. M. L. P. Thompson, formerly of Buffalo, (New School) and the Reverend Messrs. N. C. Burt and J. E. Montfort [Old School] are announced as editors.

The Indian troubles have again broken out on the Western plains. A force of Colorado troops have engaged 900 of the savages, killing four or five hundred, and capturing three chiefs, and several hundred ponies and mules.

The official canvass of the State of Wisconsin, on the home vote, gives Lincoln 68,966; McClellan, 62,494—Union majority 6,512. The soldiers vote is not all in yet.

Meeting of the Board of Enrollment.

Col. Averill, Provost Marshall General for this State, has issued an order to the effect that the Board of Enrollment at Rochester will meet in three different places in the first district, and remain in session one week at each place, in order to effect a just and equitable enrollment. The board will meet at Preston Fillmore Co. January third 1865; St. Peter, Jan. seventeenth; and Faribault, Febuary first. Every citizen is interested in this matter, and should make it his duty to see that the enrollment lists are purged of the name of every person exempt, or liable to exemption. According to the enrollment so will be our quotas, as the quota of each town is based upon the number enrolled.

A telegraph dispatch from Captain Beatty at Nashvile dated after the battle, states that the boys of the 9th from this place are all right and well.

ENROLLING OFFICERS.— J. E. Mount, Albin Johnson, and J. S. Latimer, have been appointed enrolling officers for Faribault county, and W. J. C. Robertson for Martin county.

U. S. SENATOR.—The Blue Earth City Advocate has presented the name of J. B. Wakefield, of that place, as a fit man for this position. Friend Wakefield is a good and able man, but we hardly think his dreams are disturbed by any such lofty aspirations.

The Town of Medo.

MR. EDITOR:—One year ago this town was not known, but since its organization has grown very rapidly, and is now known as one of the finest in the county. It is situated in the east part of the county, and its location cannot be beat for farming purposes. The little Cobb river runs through the centre of the town, bordered by a beautiful belt of timber along its banks. It has extensive bottom lands, which makes it a great stock raising town. The land between Medo and the LeSueur river distant about three miles—is all prairie, of the finest quality, and adapted to raising grain. On several quarter sections there are from twenty to sixty acres plowed, and ready to receive seed in the spring.

Our town is settled with a good honest, hard working class of people, each one striving to have a good surplus of produce to turn out by the time the railroad comes along, which we are all anxiously looking for. We have about [illegible] legal voters settled in the town, but a great many of them have gone South in the army, or in the capacity of government laborers, which left us with only forty seven to cast their votes at the late election; and here is the best evidence in the world that our town is being settled with good and honest farmers, for on the day of election, they came forward, and forty-three out of forty seven voted for "honest old Abe," the hard-working rail splitter.

For the Mankato Union.

CLOSING UP THE OLD YEAR.

To all whom it may concern. The year is drawing to a close—a year of trouble and sorrow, on account of the bloody war that is raging in our much loved land. And although our armies have been victorious on many a bloody field, yet it has cost the blood of thousands of our brave boys. The husbands, fathers, brothers and sons, have left their families whom they loved better than life itself, many of them never to return again, thus leaving their homes desolate; bitter tears have been shed; sorrow fills the hearts of the loved ones left, while their dear ones are far away. Religion, once the consolation of bereaved ones, has become too old fashioned and unpopular for the present age. The God of Israel is a being that our preachers have told us of as one in whom our forefathers trusted, and who could save in time of trouble; but He, too, is unpopular among us, and this being the case, a plan has been adopted, by which the heart can be cheered; and for awhile forget its sorrows in mirth and revelry. It is true that the plan is an old one, but it was formerly adopted by Kings and nobles, therefore popular. Please look in an old fashioned book called the Bible and read the 6th verse of the 32nd chapter of Exodus, and you will see where it originated, and in the 5th Chapter of the Book of Daniel and see how well the plan worked.

The plan is to meet in different places to suit convenience, throughout the country about Christmas and the beginning of the new year. We are to have sumptuous feasts, eat, drink and be merry; then dance, sing songs, play cards, and have a good time generally, and thus enjoy ourselves throughout the last nights of this gloomy old year. No cards of invitation are issued, but a general invitation is given. Then come, one and all. Ye wives, whose brave husbands are away on the battle-field, and ye widows, whose loving husbands have bravely fell. Come fathers, and mothers, whose noble sons are now lying, or may soon lie in bloody graves, and ye sisters, whose brothers are bravely dying to save their country, and ye fatherless ones, too, who feel lonely and sad. There's joy for you; many of you, perhaps, are suffering for the want of wood which your cold-hearted neighbor has failed to provide, or perhaps your children are suffering for the want of food; then come ye, and laugh, chat and dance with your "kind neighbors," and let them cause you to forget your sorrows, and then return to your desolate homes comforted,—if you can.

The pill provided is a bitter one. We do not believe you relish it, but it is being sugar-coated by our "leading men and women" who will make you think it all right. It is said the most fastidious may take it. The eating and drinking will be in one place, the social in another, and the rest in another. Ain't it well planned? But hearken, ye soldier families, who are thus urged to seek comfort in sorrow, a wail of anguish comes from the South from loved ones there, "the old year is dying and so am I."

SOLOMON.

MR. EDITOR:—I read with mingled feelings of regret and satisfaction the notice in your last number with reference to the efforts being made by benevolent persons in Mankato, to provide aid for the families of our brave volunteers. I regret exceedingly that the wife or child of any man who is fighting the battles of his country should be so situated as to need an appeal to public charity on their behalf. Still as they are in need, I rejoice that kind Christian ladies and gentlemen are taking means to provide for their wants, even though it may be somewhat at the expense of the feelings of the worthy recipients of the aid.

My object in writing is simply to ask if it is not the duty of each town to provide for the wants of our soldiers' families out of the town funds, and that not as a matter of charity, but solely, and as so much justly due to those who have left their homes and are periling their limbs and lives to secure to us as a people our existence among the nations. In this town we are only poor farmers but we cheerfully pay every woman whose husband is in the army two dollars per month and one dollar for each child under twelve years of age, [more might be needed in a city]. This they receive not as a favor from any person or persons, but simply as their right, just as much as their husband has to his monthly pay.

The law authorizes the town supervisors to vote such aid to the families of soldiers as they may think necessary; but if in any town the Board does not like to take action in the matter a legal meeting of the voters called for that purpose could attend to it.

Respectfully submitting these hints to the real friends of the soldier, my desire to promote their interest must be my apology for thus intruding my advice.

JUNO.

Mankato District School Houses.

MR. EDITOR.—In your interesting article on the Mankato district schools in last weeks paper, you say that the people of the town sympathize with you in the wish to see a good commodious school building erected; and you might have said many in the country also would be glad you should get it soon. For, be it understood, that we do not admit that Mankato belongs exclusively to those who happen to reside there. It is our county seat, and we are interested in whatever concerns its welfare, more especially is this the case where our common schools are concerned.

True patriotism requires that every possible facility should be given every girl and boy to obtain an education. In a republic country like ours the wants of the people can never be fully meet by any amount of private tuition, however excellent that may be. We claim to be a democratic people, and we must take care that we do not lay the foundation for an aristocratic class by maintaining select schools to the neglect of our public ones. For we must educate the masses or pay the penalty of our neglect in a misgoverned country, or it may be in another rebellion, that shall usher in a monarchial government.

Our public schools can, and ought to be so conducted that all the education required for the ordinary avocations of life could be obtained in them; and those fitted and prepared for college who have the taste and opportunity to cultivate the higher branches. But it is impossible to have good schools unless we provide suitable buildings for them, and Mankato has failed thus far in securing one, because the money could not be obtained on the terms prescribed by the law. You therefore, propose, that application should be made to the Legislature for an amendment to that law allowing a higher rate of interest on the bonds.

Allow me to suggest with all deference, another, and I think a better way of obtaining the necessary funds for building school houses; not only in Mankato but in every part of the State. We have a large and constantly increasing permanent State school fund. I cannot give the total amount now in hand, but the amount in 1862, was upwards of $126,000,00. This fund is required by law to be invested and the interest only is used for school purposes. Now could we not ask the Legislature for a law that would authorize the State authorities to loan a portion of that fund to school districts for building purposes taking such security as may be necessary to secure the payment of the interest punctually, and the repayment of the principal in a limited time. This done no one I presume would object to such a use of our school funds. It would help us to good schools. Of our State it then could be said.

It heeds no scepter's puny hand
While near its school the church-spire stands.
Nor fears the bigots blinded rule
While near the church-spire stands the school.

No Winter Quarters—What will Happen in the Spring.

NEW YORK, Dec 19.

The Commercial says there is to be no winter quarters for any of the armies, except that portion of Grant's which will continue the siege of Petersburgh and Richmond. Before the 1st of May we will occupy the entire coast and every stragetic point upon the lines of communication in the South. Lee will be powerless to prevent this and by the first of May will find Grant ready to dispute with him the posession of Richmond.

THE THROAT.—Families would do well to keep always at home a box of Brown's Bronchial Troches, a simple but most marvellously efficacious specific for affections of the throat, affording prompt relief in cases of coughs, colds bronchial troubles, etc. Singers and public speakers will find them also excellent to clear the voice and render articulation wonderfully easy.—Monthly Magazine.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—We would call the special attention of clergymen and teachers to "Brown's Bronchial Troches.". It is well known to our readers that we do not admit medicines to our columns. We advertise these Troches, because, after a trial of them, we are satisfied that they are the best thing of the kind extant.—Chicago School Journal.

SENATOR WILKINSON is a member of four committees; on Revolutionary claims (Chairman) on Territories; on Manufactures; and on Indian affairs. Mr. Ramsey's name appears on one committee only—that of Post offices and Post roads.

The American has just received dispatches from Annapolis, saying:

The steamer Varina has just arrived from Charleston with the news that Gen. Sherman has captured Savannah with 1,500 prisoners, after 8 hours fighting.

PROSPECTUS---1865.

THE ST. PAUL PRESS,

Daily, Tri-Weekly and Weekly,

IS the only Union Journal published at the capital of the State, and enters upon its 5th volume with an established reputation as by far the best newspaper published west of Chicago. It is a sufficient proof of the unrivalled and rapidly increasing popularity of the Press that in the short space of four years it has attained nearly TREBBLE the circulation of any other Newspaper published in the State—a fact of great importance to advertisers. This marvellous success is owing not only to the fact that its political sentiments are in harmony with those of the great majority of the people, but to its great superiority over all its rivals in every department of newspaper intelligence, being always ahead in news and foremost in the discussion of all subjects of public interest, and in advocacy of all measures for the material development of the State.

It has a far more extensive and intelligent war and State correspondence than any Minnesota journal, and better local and commercial reporters and several excellent poetical and literary contributors. It is, in short,

The best General Newspaper,
The best State Newspaper,
The best Local Newspaper,
The best Political Journal,
The best Statistical Journal,
The best Emigration Journal,
The best Commercial Journal,
The best Literary Journal,
The best Family Journal,

published in the State. And furthermore the Press is much the largest daily in Minnesota, and publishes daily one third more reading matter than any other. It is the Official Paper of the State and United States, and the only paper in the State which publishes The Laws of Congress and Legislature.

THE TRI-WEEKLY PRESS

contains nearly all the matter published in our Daily, and is a magnificent sheet, containing usually from 24 to 30 columns of reading matter.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

is confessedly the best Family Journal published in the State, containing all the news of the week, and the choicest literary selections, tales, poetry, political intelligence, local news, markets, etc.

The great advance in the cost of composition, paper, and all the materials employed in the manufacture of a newspaper, compelled a slight advance in our subscription price in August last; and though the cost of publication has greatly increased since then, we still adhere to the terms then announced, which will be found annexed.

The Daily Pioneer is issued every morning in the week except Monday.

The Tri-Weekly Pioneer is issued every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and will be found a very convenient issue in localities which have no daily mail. It contains all the matter, exclusive of advertisements, that appears in the daily edition.

THE WEEKLY PIONEER

Is the first newspaper issued in Minnesota and has been printed continuously since 1849. It contains all the news matter of the Daily and Tri-Weekly editions and is the largest newspaper printed in the State. We shall endeavor, as in the past, to make it emphatically a Family Paper, and a welcome visitor to every household. It will contain, in addition to the news of the day, the best selected and original tales, poetry, reviews, and other excellent literary matter. It is in every respect a popular newspaper, and the cheapest and the best in the State.

The General Character of The Pioneer.

The several editions will present a full, faithful and reliable epitome of the latest current news, received through our regular telegraphic reports correspondence, &c. Especial pains will be bestowed upon Commercial and Market Reports up to the moment we go to press. To this will be added a lively interest in local matters, and in everything calculated to promote the material prosperity of our people. The general army news will be published promptly, faithfully and fully, especial attention will be directed to intelligence relating to Minnesota troops in the field, giving the latest, most authentic and detailed information as to their locality and the conduct of officers and soldiers.

Political Affairs.

While the Pioneer will refrain from intemperate and factious opposition to the present Administration, it will fearlessly criticise every act that is deemed subversive to the public good; but it will be in a spirit of candor and moderation designed to evoke light and truth, and promote the diffusion of sound principles of political economy. We shall advocate at all times "Democratic Principles and Democratic Men," and expose the evil tendency and corruptions of radical measures and men. In short, we shall aim to make the Pioneer the central organ of the Democratic and conservative sentiment of Minnesota; and being determined to continue in the course we have for the past year, we confidently appeal to the Democracy for their support.

In these days when the party in power is lavish of its benefit to its press, which has become base as it has grown venal, and when the Democratic press is excluded from patronage, it is especially important that the masses of the party should extend a liberal support to its papers. It is indispensible, and it is the business of every patriotic and conservative man of the State. With these views, we regard it a duty to enjoin upon Democrats everywhere to support the local and central press. It must be done, or we must abandon the hope to take our place in the grand roll of Democratic States, which the events of the next two years will inevitably inscribe upon the time honored banner. Let not Minnesota be laggard to "pursue the triumph and partake the gale."

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County

BALL AT MADELIA—The members of Co G. 1st. Conn. Cav. invite all persons, ladies and gentlemen to attend their party on the 26th at Madelia Station. We can assure our friends that they will have a good time. The ball is a free one, and these soldiers with an unbounded generosity offer their compliments to all. We understand that great preparations have been made, and we hope that many a fair lady and gent of Mankato will "trip the light fantastic toe" at Madelia on the 26th. We inadvertently alluded to them as ex-rebs, and we understand that they glory in the name which shows conclusively that they are not rebels now

The entertainment given at the City Hall, and supper at the Hotels on Monday evening last by the Home Relief Association was a complete success The nett proceeds were $152 10, besides about $40 worth of provisions, which has been judiciously distributed among poor families. About ninety couple were present at the hall. The proceeds have been placed in the hands of the Association, and will be properly expended, so as to benefit soldiers families. The committee desire to return thanks to our citizens for their generosity in providing so amply for supper; to Mr. Flower, of the Clifton, and Messrs Burt & Shoemaker, of the Mankato House, for donating the use of their rooms; to Messrs. Demaray and Matthews, for furnishing music free of expense; and to the proprietor of the hall for the free use of the same. Many a sad heart has already been made happy by the proceeds of that evening's entertainment.

GOOD FOR BUTTERNUT VALLEY.—We received from our esteemed friend Henry Hughes, of Butternut Valley, a lengthy communication on the organization of a society to aid the soldiers. As it came too late for us to publish in full, we condense a portion of it. The society was organized on Thanksgiving day, and the following officers elected; President, Rev. J. Jenkins; Treasurer, Henry Hughes; Secretary, David S. Davis. The town was divided up into districts, and a committee of two for each district appointed to receive contributions, and collect funds. The amount thus far collected is $89.55. This is a noble beginning, and speaks well for this patriotic town. This information is not published, in order that Butternut Valley may be praised for it, but in the hope that it may stimulate neighboring towns to do likewise.

A RUNAWAY, AND A MAN KILLED.—Mr. Peter Schellenberger, an esteemed German citizen, whose family resides about five miles east of town, unfortunately lost his life on Sunday afternoon last. He had been attending religious services at the Catholic Church, and had just hitched up his horses, in front of Hoerr's log stable, preparatory to starting for home. From some unknown cause the horses were frightened, and started off on a run. When in front of Quade's boarding house the sleigh struck the well curb, and Mr S was thrown out striking on the back of his head on the ice, breaking in his skull, and inflicting an ugly wound, from which the blood streamed profusely. He was taken into the American House, and his wounds dressed by Drs. McMahan and Clark. He lived only about ten hours, and was buried on Tuesday. His funeral was attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances. Mr S. was about 44 years old, and leaves a wife and six children to mourn his loss. His eldest, a boy of sixteen, is a soldier in the Seventh regiment, we understand. Efforts will be made to procure his discharge.

THE BELL MATTER.—We have received from the Ladies Aid Society a communication, and from the Board of Trustees of the Presbyterian Church a series of resolutions, in regard to our article of the 16th on this subject. The papers were handed to us on Thursday morning, and as we go to press earlier this week than usual, we are obliged to defer their publication and also our comments until next week. Our strictures have had the desired effect, and we shall publish the communication and resolutions with pleasure.

WE are under obligations to our friend Simpson of the express office, for a can of fresh oysters. We are sorry to know that Mr. S. is quite ill, and hope he may soon be out again. During his sickness the express business at this place will be managed by Thos. Williams, Esq., one of the best and most popular messengers the company ever had.

NEW GOODS.—Lewis & Frisbie are now receiving their new goods for Christmas and New Years, embracing everything imaginable in the toy line. It is just the place to buy handsome presents.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.—Jason F. Wickersham, at the New Drug Store, has just opened a fine assortment of picture books and nursery rhymes, embracing Jack Spart, Cock Robin, and similar publications.

RUNAWAY.—A span of horses, while being hitched up, in the yard of the American House were suddenly frightened, and started full tilt around the yard, smashing up four wagons, in their wild career, and doing other damage.

PERSONAL.—Major Wm. R. Snyder paymaster in the U. S A. was in town on Monday evening last, on his way to Fort Ridgely to pay off the troops on the frontier.

John S. McCauley, the popular salesman of Borup & Champlain, of St. Paul, was in town on Tuesday last, soliciting orders for groceries. John is one of the best of fellows and the merchants in the valley are always glad to shake his "paw."

H. W. Holley, of the Homestead at Winnebago City, paid us a flying visit this week, while on his way to LaCrosse. The Homestead is one of the best of our exchanges, and our "cousin Henry" is just the man to make it attractive. Our latch string is always out, and we shall be glad to have you call again.

Adjutant F. E. Snow, of the 6th Regiment has returned, and is now residing with his family in town, having resigned his position in the regiment.

Sergeant A. Tidland, of Co. E, 2d cavalry, was in town Wednesday on a furlough. He is looking first rate, and reports the boys in the best of spirits.

HILTON'S STEAM MILL.—Aaron Hilton's steam saw and grist mill at the Agency is nearly ready for business. He only awaiting the arrival of some pipe and belts. There is connected with the mill a muley and circular saws, a splendid shingle machine, a lath machine, two cut-off saws, and one run of stone for grinding flour. The engine is a thirty-horse power, sufficient to do the present business. Mr. Hilton will soon be able to supply the wants of the farmers in that section, and guarantees to give satisfaction.

EXPRESS LINE.—A. D. Mason, Esq., proprietor of the Blue Earth Stage line, will run a tri-weekly express between Mankato and Blue Earth City, commencing January 1st. Success attend the enterprise.

THE Methodist Mite Society meet at the Hall, on Thursday evening next instead of Monday, after which it will be held regularly on Monday evenings.

HEREAFTER there will be religious services in the log school house every sabbath at 11 A. M. Preaching by Rev. J. G. Craven.

RANDALL has received more new goods for Christmas and New Years, and is selling them fast at very low prices He is selling overcoats for men and boys at cost. Call and see him.

WHITE & MARKS, are selling goods at greatly reduced prices They have a large stock of clothing on hand, and will give good bargains.

IN order to do justice to our advertisers we are obliged to curtail our reading matter this week.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—The January number of the Lady's Friend is already on our table, and fully bears out the high reputation of this new monthly, which is now entering upon the second year of its existence. The leading steel engraving, "HUSH! IT IS ASLEEP," is a beautiful picture, and will doubtless go right to the hearts of the ladies. The Fashion Plate—a double one, as usual—is very handsome indeed, admirably engraved on steel, and richly colored. There is a colored design of a WORK TABLE COMPANION, a very useful lady, as she seems, in red and yellow and blue; and numerous other engravings of the Fashions, Work Table Department, &c. The Music of this number is a piece entitled "I STOOD WITHIN OUR COTTAGE HALL." Among the literary contents, which are even unusually excellent, we may specify "A GREAT MATCH," by Emma B. Ripley; "LITTLE MAT;" "A STORY OF A HOUSEHOLD," by Mrs. Hosmer; "FALSE," by P. H. Case; "Cupid at the Case," by Miss Donnelly; "Through the Paper-Mill," by Virginia F. Townsend; "James Smith's Story," by Julia Gill; "Castle Linloch," by Aunt Alice; "Mrs. Gordon's Prescription," by C. M. Telegraph News.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.

The Heralds' correspondent from Fort McAllister and Hilton Head, the 14 says when General Sherman arrived in front of Savannah, after having marched three hundred miles, his troops meanwhile living on a drove of one thousand two hundred cattle, though he started from Atlanta with only two hundred.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.

The New York Times' special from Nashville, the nineteenth, says: Thomas is pursuing the enemy to Duck River. We have nearly all of Hood's artillery. All the rivers are higher and all the bridges in front of Hood are destroyed. We have captured nine thousand prisoners, including 3.000 wounded at Franklin and four Major Generals. Hood had sixty-five guns, fifty-three which we now have. The enemy's killed and wounded is about the same as ours, which will not reach three thousand.

Forrest gave Murfreesboro another trial on the 15th inst., and was repulsed by Rousseau and Milroy.

The rebel General Johnson says their loss at the battle of Franklin was 5,000 while ours was one-thousand nine-hundred.

Stoneman has whipped Breckenridge in East Tennessee, near the Virginia line, killing, wounding, and capturing a large number, and taking most of his artillery.

Gen. Cook is after Lyon in Kentucky, and he cannot escape.

Murfreesboro, Bridgeport, Chattanooga and Knoxville are all right.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 19.

The Gazette published a vivid description of the battle of the sixteenth. The day opened cloudy with indications of rain. There was a dense fog at an early hour, but soon cleared away and at eight o'clock we are able to determin the enemy' position.

It was about half past eight o'clock when our batteries open from a hundred pieces simultaneously along the entire line. The rebel artillery replied feebly, Schofield marching down Granny White Pike, carefully concealing his strength, placed his corps directly upon the enemy's left flank.

Steadman at the same time worked his way forward. The enemy, in the meantime, had strengthened his advance line. This determined Wood to carry this line without delay. In splendid order Kimball's 1st division moved forward to charge, firing volley after volley as they rushed toward the rebel works.

A withering firing of musketry and canister made them waver more than once, but still they pressed on till within a half pistol shot, when the enemy's fire became so deadly that our men in order to return it more effectually came to a halt, longer perhaps than any troops ever remained in such a position.

They stood and fired fast and furiously at the enemy but they could not remain there and live; a few gave way and fled in disorder, The whole line staggered and had the rebels done nothing more than keep up their deadly fire we would have been driven back, but they made a movement to shift their artillery which our men received as an indication that they were about to abandon their lines and retire.

Raising a loud shout the division with fixed bayonets rushed impetuously forward, and swarming over the works captured such rebels as had not fled.

They had time to get away two guns, but the rest fell into our hands.

I pushed forward to the southern slope of the hill. It was almost dark; the rain was pouring steadily down, and standing there amidst the dead and dying, I caught the last glimpse of our line of battle, and heard the last triumphant shouts of our soldiers, as even through the darkness, they pushed on after the fleeing foe. The results of the battle are over 5,000 prisoners, thirty guns, and 809 small arms.

The total number of prisoners captured in the two days fight is estimated at 6,500. Hood's loss in me cannot be less than 15,000, since he advanced from Columbia towards Nashville.

Gen. Thomas is determined to again give battle and has ordered pontoon trains forward to cross the streams between this city and Columbia.

NASHVILLE, Dec. 16—9 A. M.

During last night, Hood withdrew his right from the river, and took a position covering Hilsboro, Granny White's and Franklin's pikes, which line has been carefully prepared for this contingency.

He was driven from the 1 line easily but the second was very stubbornly defended, and at last heavily assaulted three times before succeeding. It was carried, however, and twenty pieces of artillery, and two hundred men, including General Jackson with the remnant of his division, were taken.

The enemy were forced back two miles and his army broken into two parts, one on White's Pike, and the other on the Franklin, with the range of bluff hills between them. Steadman and Wood are pressing down on the latter.

[Signed.] E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—8:30 A. M.

Major General Dix.

The following official report of great victory's achieved yesterday by General Thomas and his gallant army over the rebel forces under General Hood in front of Nashvill was received this morning.

One of the most surprising circumstances connected with the great achievement, in the small loss suffered by our troops. Even among other things, the admirable skill and caution of General Thomas in the disposition of the battle.

In our rejoicing at the defeat of the enemy, thanks are due to the Almighty for his protection to our gallant officers and soldiers in the great conflict they have passed through.

The report of Gen. Thomas and also an unofficial report, containing interesting details, are subjoined.

CLIFTON HOUSE,

Mankato, Minnesota.

THE proprietor would announce to the traveling public that his house is now completed and furnished throughout in the best style and he is now prepared to accommodate all who may favor him with their patronage. From long experience in the hotel business in eastern cities he flatters himself that he understands the wants of the traveling public and will spare no pains to make the Clifton an agreeable stopping place. All who may be visiting Mankato either for business or pleasure, especially those from the surrounding counties are invited to call and satisfy themselves. Attached to the premises are stables not excelled in the State either for capacity or convenience. The proprietor thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed upon his house would say to all stopping at the Clifton you will meet the same cordial and welcome reception as heretofore. Farmers sustain the Clifton House and by so doing promote your own interest. A word to the wise is sufficient.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN !

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect. They will be issued in denominations of $50 $100 $500 $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15, persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium, and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment, while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

The Daily Pioneer is issued every morning in the week except Monday.

The Tri Weekly Pioneer is issued every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and will be found a very convenient issue in localities which have no daily mail. It contains all the matter, exclusive of advertisements, that appears in the daily edition.

THE WEEKLY PIONEER

Is the first newspaper issued in Minnesota and has been printed continuously since 1849. It contains all the news matter of the Daily and Tri-Weekly editions and is the largest newspaper printed in the State. We shall endeavor, as in the past, to make it emphatically a Family Paper, and a welcome visitor to every household. It will contain, in addition to the news of the day, the best selected and original tales, poetry, reviews, and other excellent literary matter. It is in every respect a popular newspaper, and the cheapest and the best in the State.

The General Character of The Pioneer.

The several editions will present a full, faithful and reliable epitome of the latest current news, received through our regular telegraphic reports, correspondence, &c. Especial pains will be bestowed upon Commercial and Market Reports, up to the moment we go to press. To this will be added a lively interest in local matters, and in everything calculated to promote the material prosperity of our people. The general army news will be published promptly, faithfully and fully; especial attention will be directed to intelligence relating to Minnesota troops in the field, giving the latest, most authentic and detailed information as to their locality and the conduct of officers and soldiers.

Political Affairs.

While the Pioneer will refrain from intemperate and fictitious opposition to the present Administration, it will fearlessly criticise every act that is deemed subversive to the public good. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] It must be now or we must abandon the hope to take our place in the grand roll of Democratic States, which the events of the next two years will [illegible] to the [illegible] Democrat of Minnesota be bygond to organize the triumph and partake the gale!

PROSPECTUS—1865.

THE ST. PAUL PRESS,
Daily, Tri-Weekly and Weekly.

IS the only Union Journal published at the capital of the State, and enters upon its 5th volume with an established reputation as by far the best newspaper published west of Chicago. It is a sufficient proof of the unrivalled and rapidly increasing popularity of the Press that in the short space of four years it has attained nearly TREBLE the circulation of any other newspaper published in the State—a fact of great importance to advertisers. This marvellous success is owing not only to the fact that its political sentiments are in harmony with those of the great majority of the people, but to its great superiority over all its rivals in every department of newspaper intelligence, being always ahead in news and foremost in the discussion of all subjects of public interest, and in advocacy of all measures for the material development of the State.

It has a far more extensive and intelligent war and state correspondence than any Minnesota journal, and better local and commercial reporters and several excellent poetical and literary contributors. It is, in short,

The best General Newspaper,
The best State Newspaper,
The best Local Newspaper,
The best Political Journal,
The best Statistical Journal,
The best Emigration Journal,
The best Commercial Journal,
The best Literary Journal,
The best Family Journal,

published in the State. And furthermore the Press is much the largest daily in Minnesota, and publishes daily one third more reading matter than any other. It is the Official Paper of the State and United States, and the only paper in the State which publishes

The Laws of Congress and Legislature.

THE TRI-WEEKLY PRESS

contains nearly all the matter published in our Daily, and is a magnificent sheet, containing usually from 24 to 32 columns of reading matter.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

is confessedly the best Family Journal published in the State, containing all the news of the week, and the choicest literary selections, tales, poetry, political intelligence, local news, markets, etc.

The great advance in the cost of composition, paper, and all the materials employed in the manufacture of a newspaper, compelled a slight advance in our subscription price in August last, and though the cost of publication has greatly increased since then, we still adhere to the terms then announced, which will be found annexed.

How to Get Rid of a Rock

Uriah Abel was a Connecticut farmer and in his time a pretty good one. His farm like a great many other Connecticut farms, was full of stones, and he delighted to clear them off out of the way of the plow. He built a great many rods of substantial stone wall, but he could not use up all the stone. He had cleared one field of all but one great boulder about the size of a large hay-cock. He wanted to get rid of that. He would have "blown it to flinders," as he had a good many others, but it was within two rods "of the best room" windows, which might go "to flinders" at the same time. So he attempted to haul it out of its bed one day. After trying his own and his neighbors oxen and breaking several chains, Uriah grew rathy and declared "tha the would give five dollars to any one that would put that pesky rock out of his sight."

"Wa'al naow, I don't mind taking the job if you'll find a spade and throw in some dinner, and a mug of cider along in the afternoon."

This proposition was made by a stranger who had just then come up. He was a fair specimen of a working Yankee and Uriah dropped the broken chain and turned square around to look him full in the face.

"Yes I'll give it and the dinner and cider too, but I don't pull my oxen again at that stone, no how."

"Don't want you should. I'm to put the stone out of sight, make all smooth about here, so that you can plow right along. That's what I'm to do, ain't it?"

"Yes thats all I want. I dont care how you do it, but if you fail I don't pay anything. Do you understand? Very well, then come in to dinner."

That done and a large quid of tobacco adjusted, the Yankee threw off his coat and took up the spade. He gave a look at the stone to see which way it would tip easiest, and then commenced digging a hole on the lower side, large and deep enough to bury the boulder quite out of sight. In three hours he got out and took a careful measurement, and then dug a little more on one side. Then he went to the wood pile and got a stout stick of wood, which he planted with one end in the bottom of the hole and the other bracing against the rock. Then he began undermining and worked till he saw the dirt begin to give and found that the rock was resting upon his brace.

"Now," says he, "I think I'll take that mug of cider."

Uriah who had been watching him ordered out the cider with a right good will. He even offered to add "some doughnuts an cheese."

While the Yankee was wiping away the perspiration and drinking his cider Uriah brought his oxen around and hitched a chain to the wooden prop.

"I did say I wouldn't pull my oxen again, and I don't mean to, 'cause it only needs a smart jerk."

Jerk it was, and down went the boulder, and with it a shovel full of dirt and another, and another in quick succession, until all was smooth and level, and long before night the Yankee was ready to resume his journey.

"There said Uriah, as he handed him the five dollars, "there is the best five dollars that I ever paid for work on my farm. Won't you take another drink of cider? You are entirely welcome. I have learned something of you.

Perhaps some persons who read this may learn something—learn how to get rid of some of the boulders that encumber the surface, and which are often blasted and broken up and hauled away "just to get rid of them,' at a much greater expense than it would require to bury them where they lie, entirely out of sight.

Minnesota Military.

The way military matters are managed in Gen. Sibley's department is a caution to the saints. Last week a contract was let to some man, we think his name is Burritt, for keeping the worn out oxen of the last expedition, at $7.29 cents a month per head for five months, that is just thirty six dollars per head or seventy-two dollars per yoke for the five months. Gen. Sibley is endowed with an ordinary degree of common sense, must know that the government would be largely the gainer to have sold the oxen on hand when they returned and bought others again in the Spring if the expedition fully is to be repeated, than to pay the price contracted for keeping. But there would be no chance for some man to make a good thing out of a keeping contract if that was done. We have a pretty good opinion of Secretary Stanton, but if military matters in Minnesota are to be conducted in the future as they have been for the past two years, we shall begin to think a change might be advantageously made. It is time this cursed shameless swindle on the miserable pretence of frontier protection, while the people have to be their own protectors, was brought to a close but little better, however, can be expected with Sibley at the head of affairs.—Faribault Republican.

YOUNG MEN PAY ATTENTION!—Don't be a loafer, don't call yourself a loafer, don't keep a loafers company, don't hang about loafing places. Better work hard for nothing and board yourself, than to sit around day after day, stand around corners with hands in your pockets. Better for your own mind, better for your own respect. Bustle about if you mean to have any thing to bustle about for. Many a poor physician has obtained a patient by riding hard to attend an imaginary one. A quire of paper tied with red tape, carried under a lawyer's arm may procure him his first case and make his fortune. Such is the world. "To him that hath shall be given." SHOULDER STRAPS.—Recent orders [illegible] the War Department declare that officers serving in the field are permitted to dispense with their shoulder-straps and prescribed insignia of rank on their horse equipments. The marks of rank prescribed to be worn on the shoulder straps will be worn on the shoulders in place of straps. Officers are permitted to wear overcoats of the same color and shape as those of the enlisted men of their command. No marks of rank will be required on overcoats, hats or forage caps, nor will sashes or epaulettes be required.

INTERESTING TO DISABLED SOLDIERS.—It is asserted that the movement of department clerks at Washington for increase of salaries will be met by a counter movement for employing in all the Government offices, so far as is compatible with the public interest, those who have become disabled in the military and naval service of the country. It is expected to pass Congress in form of a resolution enjoining upon heads of departments to give all such, found competent, a preference.

"COWARDLY SNEAKS."—The Richmond Enquirer ridicules the idea that the incendiarism at New York was the result of a plot having the sanction of the confederate government, and expresses the hope that General Dix will hang all the southern refugees in that city, whom it characterizes as "a set of cowardly sneaks, not above burning hotels.' Those who defend rebellion have no business to shrink from bearing its burdens.

COOL.—The counsel for the St. Albans raiders, on trial in Canada, petitioned President Lincoln to allow a messenger to proceed to Richmond, to obtain documents showing the raid to be commissioned by the rebel government. The impudent request was of course refused.

PRENTICE IN RICHMOND.—The Richmond Whig of the 30th notices the arrival of Geo. D. Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, at the Spottswood Hotel, on a visit to his son in the rebel service. Mr. Prentice makes his visit by permission of the authorities on both sides.

A telegraph operator dying in Springfield, Mass., on Sunday, the operators of the various New England officers on the American line held a meeting, by telegraph, that evening, and appointed, by telegraph, a committee of one gentleman in Worcester and one in Providence to draw up, by telegraph, appropriate resolutions of sympathy and condolence, to be forwarded, by telegraph, we presume, to the family of the deceased.

The New York World is a modest sheet. In an article on itself, it blushingly remarks that it has heard political veterans say that if it (the World) had been born twenty-five years earlier, there would have been no rebellion! What a pity that great moral and intellectual luminary shone upon a benighted race so late!

Extract from Gen. Thoma's Report.

Brigadier General Garrard's division of Smith's command, next on the left of McArthur's division, carried the enemy's entrenchments, capturing all the artillery and troops of the enemy on the line.

Brigadier General Wood's troops on the Frankfort Pike took up the assault, capturing the enemy's entrenchments in his retreat, also captured eight pieces of artillery, some over 600 prisoners and drove the enemy within one mile of Brentwood Hill Pass.

Maj Gen. Steadman, commanding detachment of the different armies of the Mississippi, most nobly supported Gen. Wood's left, and bore a most honorable part in the operations of the day.

I have ordered the pursuit to be continued in the morning at daylight. Although the troops are very much fatigued the utmost enthusiasm prevails.

I must not forget to report the operations of Brig. Gen. Johnson in successfully driving the enemy with the co-operation of the gunboats under the command of Fitch from their establishd batterys on the Cumberland river below the city of Nashville, and the success of Brig. Gen. Caxto 's brigade in covering and returning our right and rear in the operations of yesterday and to day.

Although I have no report of the number of prisoners captured by Johnson's and Caxton's commands, I know they have taken a large number.

I am also glad to report that the number of prisoners captured yesterday exceeded the number telegraphed last evening.

The woods, fields, and entrenchments, are strewn with the enemy's small arms, abandoned in the retreat.

In conclusion, I am happy to state that all this has been effected with but a very small loss to us. Our loss does not probably exceed three hundred, and very few killed.

The President's Call for Men.

The President has issued a proclamation calling for 300,000 men to fill the deficiency in the call of last July for 500,000. This call, we as understand it, is based on the ground that but 240,000 men were realized from the July call, as several of the States having had an excess over all former calls, this excess was credited on the 500,000. Secondly the military operations in several of the States rendered it impraticable for those States to furnish their required quotas; hence the deficiency.

There is a difference of opinion in the minds of many as to whether this is a call to fill a deficiency in the last call, or whether it will act as a new call upon us. We are already nine ahead on the call for five hundred thousand, and if this call is to fill the deficiency, we do not owe the government a man; but on the contrary have nine men to our credit. We do not see the justness of requiring States or towns to fill the quotas of other States.

Should this be a new call we shall have some thirty men to furnish, and our credit of nine will go towards raising them. The proclamation is not clear on this point, but we shall probably know more of it before long.

The State Legislature meets on Tuesday next at St. Paul.

THE ST. PAUL PRESS.—We call attention to the prospectus of the St. Paul Press in another column. It is a reliable news journal, always furnishing the latest war news, and is thoroughly loyal and Republican in politics. The Press has a large circulation, which is rapidly increasing. We are agent for it at this place.

THE DAILY PIONEER.—We also call attention to the prospectus of this reliable newspaper. Although we cannot agree with it on politicial matters, for news purposes we consider it one of the best we receive.

A HOME COMPANY.—The safest and best companies for the Farmers and business men of Minnesota to insure in are those which are established at home: which are managed by their own fellow citizens in whom they have confidence, which are under the immediate eye of those insured, and in which losses can be more promptly and satisfactorily settled than in the case of foreign companies, which are beyond the reach of the insured, and whose operations cannot be regarded with the same security as can those of Home Companies. The Farmers Insurance Company of Rochester Minn. is one of these Home Companies—its Directors and Officers are well known to every business man in the State, and parties insured may have confidence in its correct and upright management. We select from a few of the leading papers of the State extracts relative to the Farmers' Company:

MINNESOTA FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY.—The above is the title of an insurance company recently formed in Rochester, Minnesota. Its object is to effect insurance on first class property and detached farm buildings, on both the stock and mutual plan. The capital of the company is already $27,000, all of which is paid in. The company is a strong one containing such names as Gov. Ramsey, Hon. Charles Schaffer, Hon. D. Blakely, Hon. J. V. Daniels, John R. Cook, President of First National Bank Rochester, O. P. Whitcomb Treasurer of Olmstead county, Wm. D. Hurlburt, C. C. Jones and others. This Company is unquestionably a sound and reliable one, and, all other things being equal, we recommend the encouragement of home institutions over them from abroad. We commend the new company to the patronage of the public of Minnesota.—St. Paul Daily Press.

Among the new enterprises incident to the growth and prosperity of our flourishing young commonwealth, we notice the establishment at Rochester of an Insurance Company, entitled the "Farmers'." The plan embraces insurance both on the stock and mutual system, the stock of the Company being pledged for the security of each branch. The names of corporators embrace some of the most solid business men in the State, and the popularity of the enterprise is witnessed by the first month of business—over two hundred applications being taken within that time. Success equal to this is rare in the history of enterprise of this kind and no stronger evidence is needed of the determination of the people to support and encourage home institutions. We bespeak for the Farmers' Insurance Company an abundant success.—St. Paul Daily Pioneer.

MR. EDITOR: Why is it that we hear nothing more about our County Bridges. Is the subject to rest indefinitely now, because we failed last spring?

We failed then because certain localities were bent on securing the "Lion's share" of the benefit—not because the voters of the county were unwilling to be taxed for a measure so important and of such direct interest to us all. It is thus we are taxed for bounties to our soldiers, and heavily too, but we do not stop building and improving our farms for this reason, and shall we hesitate about the expense of such a paying improvement to our county at large as the building of these bridges will be for the same reason. It this matter is brought forward as it should be—in a way just to all sections of the county, the people will respond heartily and we shall soon be spared the vexations incident to fording and ferrying. If further legislation is necessary, our representatives will doubtless be found ready to do their part. Shall we not "try again" and soon?

Yours, H.

To the Trustees of the Congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Mankato.

We notice in the Mankato Union of December 16th, an article in regard to the church bell, which seems to need a reply in order to disabuse the minds of uninformed persons, which a statement of facts will probably effect.

The church bell was purchased in April, 1857, by the Ladies Society of the Presbytorian Church.

Our society was organized in Sept. 1855 and had by work, festivals, &c., accumulated about two hundred dollars.

In Nov. 1855 we bought a stove for the church for which we paid twenty dollars, placed it in the school house, where it was used by the school district for six years. We also bought six curtains for the windows. In the fall of 1856 we determined to purchase a church bell worth three hundred dollars. Our funds in the treasury were only about one hundred and seventy-five dollars. To raise the deficiency we drew up and circulated a subscription on which we raised about one hundred and twenty-five dollars. The only restriction in that subscription was that the bell should be used for school purposes so long as the school house was used for church purposes. The members of no one other church paid over five dollars on this subscription.

We sent to Cincinnatti by our own agent; purchased the bell, and received it in May 1857; paid the freight on it, and presented it to the officers of the church, who raised it on a low frame at the school house. After the City Hall was completed the bell was removed with the church to that place; thence from place to place with the congregation, being always used for social, religious, judicial, educational, political, military, and "town site" purposes, by all parties in town, until in November last, when it found a resting place in the belfry of the Presbyterian church, for which it was originally intended.

We do not think the church have been very "selfish" with it, and see no reason for the strictures of the UNION unless it be that favors long received are considered vested rights.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Presbyterian Society, held Dec. 21, 1864. the accompanying communication from the members of the Ladies Sewing Society of the Presbyterian church in regard to the church bell was presented, whereupon the following resolutions were adopted.

WHEREAS, There has appeared for some time past to be doubt in the minds of some persons in this community as to who own and have a right to control the church bell (and perhaps some with the editor of the UNION) who claim it to be a town bell—for the purpose of correcting any misapprehensions that may exist,

Resolved That the editors of the Mankato Union and the Mankato Record be requested to publish said communication together with these resolutions.

Resolved, That while we claim for the Presbyterian Church the exclusive right to control said bell, we deny being actuated by a selfish policy in relation thereto, and we hope and trust that in future regular services will be held in our church on each Sabbath in which case the bell will be rung at regular and stated hours and other congregations can avail themselves of its benefit if they wish so to do.

INSURE AT HOME!

Farmers' Insurance Co.,
ROCHESTER, MINNESOTA,

Capital, (Stock and accumulations), $27,000.

The Directors of this Company take pleasure in announcing the entire and unexpected success which has rewarded their efforts in establishing a first class Insurance Company in Minnesota. It is believed that no Company has ever before began business with equally flattering prospects—over FIVE HUNDRED APPLICATIONS having been taken in less than three months, and an accumulation of $12,000 in premium notes and $5,000 in cash premiums, having already resulted to the Company in this brief period, and been added to its capital. No more convincing testimony than this is needed of the desire of the people to encourage home enterprises, of whatever character.

The advantages of insurance in this Company are—that the operations of the Company will be under the immediate eye of the insured—its Directors are well known to them, and each one of them is directly interested in its success by being himself an individual policy-holder as well as a stock holder in the Company. No better guarantee could be afforded of the entire good faith of the Directors of this Company, and their confidence in its soundness and success.

Beware of Imposition!

A Company having been recently started in Rochester, of which one C. H. Foote is Secretary, (Formerly, but not now Secretary of the Farmers' Company,) the public are warned against confusing the two Companies—the so called "Rochester Insurance Company" having no capital to secure its policy holders, and being controlled non residents of the State. This Company having without authority used the names of prominent citizens of Minnesota to give it a false standing and credit, the following "cards," published in the Rochester City Post of December 17th, were given to the public by the persons whose names were so wrongfully used:

A Card.

The undersigned, having been informed that their names have been used and published in a card as "Directors and references," in the so-called "Rochester Insurance Company," desire to say that they know nothing of said Company, have not had and do not desire to have any connection with it in any capacity whatever; and hereby decline to be held responsible in any way for its doings.

Winona, Dec. 15, 1864.

FRIEND WHITCOMB:—Yours of the 12th is received. In reply I would say, that if my name has been used in connection with the so called "Rochester Insurance Co." lately started in your city by Mitchel, Foote and others, it has been done without my consent and against my wishes, as expressed to the former some three weeks since.

Yours truly,
F. E. SHANDREW.

Card of the Directors of the Farmers' Insurance Company.

In order to avoid confusion and misunderstanding, the Directors of the Farmers' Insurance Co. deem it their duty to inform the public that for reasons of a prudential character they have dissolved all connection with Mr. C. H. Foote, formerly Secretary of the Company who is not now connected with the Company in any capacity whatever. This statement is made in order to guard the public against mistaking a new organization, styled the "Rochester Insurance Company," (of which Mr. Foote now purports to be the Secretary,) for the old and well-established Farmers', with which it has no connection whatever.

The Directors take pleasure in further announcing, that they have deposited with the "First National Bank" of Rochester, (see certificate below) an amount of securities which, in connection with the acquired capital already in the hands of the Company, forms a capital of $27,000.

The Directors of the "Farmers'" have undertaken this enterprise in a spirit of entire good faith, and pledge their best efforts to make it at once, the safest, soundest, and cheapest company for the insured existing in the State.

A "Wild Cat" Insurance Company.

The following communication from a substantial citizen of Rochester to the Post newspaper, with reference to a new company entitled the "Rochester Insurance Company," will explain itself:

ABOUT INSURANCE COMPANIES.

To the Editor of the Rochester Post.

SIR:—I notice by reference to the Articles of Incorporation on file with the Register of Deeds, that there are in existence at Rochester at the present time, two Insurance Companies, which the public are invited to patronize and encourage. If these Companies are worthy of the confidence of the public, and are able to meet their liabilities, they ought to be encouraged and sustained. On the contrary, if one or both of them fail to combine these elements of strength the people who are solicited to take risks in them, and who always suffer largely by the failure of such institutions to meet their liabilities, should early be informed of their danger. The laws of Minnesota are surprisingly lax in regard to Insurance projects, and only the watchful scrutiny of the people can insure them against the designs of evil disposed persons.

I find that the Farmer's Insurance Company has for its Directors citizens of Minnesota who have long been well and favorably known both in public and in private life, as responsible and honorable men. Among these are ex-Gov. Ramsey, State Treasurer Scheffer, and Secretary Blakely, John R Cook, President of the First National Bank, Hon J. V Daniels, O.P Whitcomb, Treasurer of Olmsted County, and Wm D Hurlbut, Louis Walker and C. C Jones, Esqs. The intention of these gentlemen to deal honorably by the public cannot be doubted. The question which remains is as to the capital which they have acquired or devoted to the safety of the Company. By inquiry at the Secretary's office, I find that the company have issued five hundred policies, and have acquired a members' Capital in cash and premium notes of $17 000 In addition to this the Directors of the Company have subscribed an additional capital of $10,000 and deposited it with the First National Bank of Rochester, to remain as a guarantee for its liabilities until its acquired Capital shall reach $50,000—which, in the present prosperous condition of the Company, cannot be long. They have thus complied with such laws as are in force in New York regulating new companies, and such as unquestionably ought to be in force here. I believe the Farmers' Insurance Company to be a sound and trustworthy Institution.

I now turn my attention to the new Company styled the "Rochester Insurance Company." On a card issued by this Company the following names appear as 'Directors and References,' viz: C. L. Curtis, C. H. Foote, M D. Farr, L. C. Manzer, I. M. Fletcher, W. H. Mitchell, A. F. Childs, C. H. Ellis, H. A. Brown, D. Chase, W. Booth, F. E. Shandrew, C. H. Lindsley, and John M. Cole. The first seven of these persons are by the articles of Incorporation made Directors for the term of five years—the members and policy-holders of the Company having no voice in electing their successors during the whole of this time, and no control over them whatever, let their action be what it may. Comment upon this feature is manifestly unnecessary. Five of these five-year Directors are from foreign States, and nothing whatever is known of them by the people of Minnesota. A majority of the Board of management mentioned in the charter are therefore not Minnesotians—have no property interests here whatever, as appears by the records at the Court House, and such of them as are here for the purpose of running this Company, may go away as quickly and silently as they came, and none will be the wiser.

Of the remaining names mentioned above, (printed in Italics) all are honorable and sound men residing in our midst. But on being referred to, Messrs. Brown and Chase say they are not Directors and know nothing about the company. They are probably 'References.' Messrs Shandrew, Lindsley, Booth and Cole disclaim any connection with the company, know nothing about it, and desire no credit to be given it on their account. The placing of their names before the publicas 'Directors and references' therefore constitutes a case of direct fraud, and subjects the offenders to fine and imprisonment. (See Sec XIV. p 321 Revised Statutes.) The further claim of the company that its capital consists in first liens on real estate, is intentional deception and misrepresentation, and lays the individual property of the Directors liable for the debts of the company. But as the names of none of the Directors appear on the real estate rolls of the county, the condition of policy holders, in case of loss by fire, and the failure of the company to respond, may be seen at a glance.

The sole capital of this company consist in the premium notes of its policy holders. As the company has but just begun business, it can have no amount of these. That it is therefore a wild cat institution of the very worst species, is clearly apparent.

I have made this examination, Mr. Editor, and stated the result, with no other purpose than to protect the people, and to compel this company either to adopt measures for the protection of their policy holders, or to cease to do business. I trust they will adopt the former course. Good insurance companies will benefit the city and the community at large, while the experience of all enterprises of the kind has demonstrated the curse which poor ones are to all who have anything to do with them. Yours, &c., GEO. BRISBEE

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County

We shall be absent at St. Paul next week, therefore our readers may expect the Union to be much improved.

Attention is directed to the new adv. of Leo Lamm, He offers great inducements to purchasers and will give good bargains.

Heavy Tax.—The Treasurer's tax notice is published this week. The amount of tax for this town is 35¾ mills on the dollar.

Correction.—Dr. Zenopolski informs us that he was the physician first called to dress the wounds of Peter Shellenberger, who died last week.

Lands for Sale.—Daniel Buck advertises some choice tracts of land for sale, in another column, to which we call attention.

Mr. N. Finch has opened a store in old military headquarters for the sale of all kinds of liquors, by the barrel or gallon. Also, lumber, wood, etc.

Now Ready.—The Treasurer desires us to state that the duplicate books of taxes for the towns of Mankato, Lime, Jamestown and South Bend, are now ready.

Glorious News.—Savannah is taken, but during our rejoicing, we should not forget that Randall's Clothing Emporium is still the place to obtain bargains in his line. He has also a new husk mattress for sale.

Personal.—O. O. Pitcher started for New York, yesterday, and will be absent a number of weeks.

Major E. H. Smith will also start tomorrow, for the same place.

Our members of the Legislature started for the capital yesterday.

The County Board of commissioners will meet at the Register's office next Tuesday. Many matters of interest will come before the Board, not the least of which will be the bridge question.

The Bell Controversy.—We are obliged to defer our remarks on this subject until we have more leisure time. Matters of more importance must take their place.

This being holiday week, we have been too much engaged to attend to editorial matters. Roast turkey, oysters and beaver tail soup, and "so forth," have a very pleasing effect on the human family, and we suppose we are not an exception to the general rule.

Don't forget the New Years Ball at the City Hall, Mankato, on Monday night, January 2d. One hundred and thirty lights,—a full Band of musicians, and something superior in the shape of a supper is promised.

Donation Visit.—We are requested to announce that a donation visit will be made at the residence of Rev. J. Jenkins, of Butternut Valley, on Tuesday, the third day of January next. His numerous friends of that town and elsewhere are cordially invited to participate. The notice was handed to us last week and was mislaid.

Christmas Ball.—The ball gotten up by Demaray & Matthews at City Hall, was a success so far as perfect enjoyment could make it. The managers spared no pains or expense to make it pleasant. The hall was brilliantly illuminated and the supper was the best we have tasted in many a day. The New Year's Ball, on Monday evening promises to be equal if not superior to this, and we guarantee that the arrangements will be perfect in every respect.

N. W. Freedmens' Aid Society.—Rev. C. C. Bicknell, of Chicago, agent of the above Society preached in City Hall on Sunday evening last to a large audience. At the conclusion of the services a collection was taken up for the benefit of the families of colored soldiers, amounting to $33.15. An auxiliary society was also organized and the following officers selected:

President—Rev. J. G. Craven.
Secretary—H. G. Orton.
Treasurer—A. D. Seward.

A canvassing committee of six ladies was also chosen.

Enrolling Officers.—Provost Marshal Pugh has made the following appointments of enrolling officers for this county:

B. Y. Coffin—for the towns of South Bend, Judson, Butternut Valley and Garden City

M. B. Haynes for the towns of Ceresco, Fox Lake, Vernon and Shelby.

S. Middlebrook for the towns of Sterling Mapleton, Danville and Medo.

C. A. Stine for the towns of Mankato, De Soto and McClellan.

H. Shaubut for the towns of Jamestown, Le Ray and Lime.

Dangerous Practice.—Some boys in town have been in the habit of shooting guns at night, regardless of the direction ich they are pointed. A few nights as fired on Second street, and a bullet came crashing through a window in Mr. Haupt's house, and struck within six inches of one of his children. It is a dangerous practice, and parents should not only warn their boys of it, but see that they are engaged in better business.

New Years Address.—The long sickness of our carrier boy, Levi Patterson, will render it impossible for him to present his patrons with an address this year. Levi is one of the best of boys, honest, reliable and trustworthy, and is deserving of any favors his friends may bestow. He will not be forgotten.

The Ball at Madelia.—Those who love the "trippings of the toe fantastic" never enjoyed a better time than was had at Madelia on the 26th. Our brave blue-coated boys were unsparing in their efforts to make every one feel perfectly at home. Over three hundred persons were present, and over one hundred and twenty ladies partook of the excellent supper.

Talk about "good things to eat?"—The supper was par excellence. Every delicacy the palate could possibly crave, was placed on the tastefully set tables.—The ball room, the ladies and gents dressing and sitting rooms were beautifully decorated, and nothing left undone that could possibly add to the pleasure of the company. The brave boys of company G,—long may they wave.—They have won the love of the fair, and the friendship of the brave.

Prof. Hawley's Singing Class.—This class is in full operation, and bids fair to be a success. Though the holidays, with their attendant amusements, are upon us, still these lessons are not neglected; affording conclusive evidence that simplified and properly directed instruction in whatever branch of education, is always appreciated by its respective votaries. Such instruction we are now enjoying in music, and the results which always attend the efforts of Prof Hawley are likely to be shared by the singers of Mankato, in common with those of St. Peter, who, we learn, are enjoying the same good fortune. This is as we expected. Who would not learn music when they can?

The Christmas Tree.—There was a perfect jam at City Hall last Saturday evening to witness the distribution of presents that were so tastefully arranged on the christmas tree. There was a large number of gifts brought in by our towns people, and many of them were valuable and substantial ones. It was estimated that the value of the whole was at least $900. The committees are deserving of great praise for the excellent manner in which they did their work. There was no fault to be found with the programme. The singing by the school was good, and the short speech by Rev. Mr. Bicknell well received by the children.

The rush of outsiders was so great at one time, to gain admittance, that there was danger of the floor giving way, and letting the audience into the store beneath. The report that the building was unsafe, created quite a panic for a little while, but as large numbers were continually leaving the hall, the excitement gradually subsided. The evening passed very pleasantly notwithstanding the short interruption, and will long be remembered.

A Laudable Enterprise.—The boys in Mr. Orton's School have formed themselves into a company styled the "High School Wood Sawing Club." The object is to saw wood for the families of our soldiers. Jimmy Thornton has been chosen Captain, and Jessee Hawley Lieutenant. They started out Wednesday and sawed up six or seven cords for different families. We give the names of those who have joined the company.

We the students of the Mankato high school organize ourselves into the High School Wood Sawing Club, for the purpose of aiding the families of our soldiers.

Fire.—A dwelling house on the prairie about three miles west of Winnebago City was entirely consumed on the afternoon of Saturday last. It was owned by Mr. Johnson of Winnebago City, and occupied by Mr. Wyant who lost all of his household goods, hay and wheat stacks which also took fire from the burning building, also $55 in green backs left in the house was lost. The building was one of the best frames on the prairie and uninsured.—Blue Earth City Advocate.

A Famous Joke?—A young lady, the daughter of the house, was addressed by a man, who, though agreeable to her, was disliked by her father. Of course he would not consent to their union, and she determined to elope. The night was fixed, the hour came, he placed the ladder to the window, and, in a few minutes, she was in his arms. They mounted a double horse, and were soon at some distance from the house. After awhile the lady broke silence by saying, "Well, you see what a proof I have given you of my affection, I hope you will make me a good husband."—He was a surly fellow, and gruffly answered 'Perhaps I may and perhaps not.' She made him no reply, but after a silence of some minutes, she suddenly exclaimed, "O, what shall we do?—I have left my money behind me in my room." "Then," said he, "we must go back and fetch it." They were soon again at the house, the ladder was again placed, the lady remounted, while the illnatured lover waited below. But she delayed to come, and so he gently called, "Are you coming?" when she looked out of the window, and said, "Perhaps I may, and perhaps not;" then shut down the window, and left him to return on the double horse alone. Was not that a happy thought on the lady's part—a famous joke?

Sherman's Christmas Gift

SAVANNAH TAKEN.

War Department,
Washington, Dec 26 7, p. m.

Major General Dix:

A dispatch has been received this evening by the President from Gen. Sherman:

It is dated Savannah, Thursday the 22d inst., and announces our occupation of the city of Savannah, and the capture of 150 guns, plenty of ammunition, and about 25,000 bales of cotton. No other particulars given,

An official dispatch from Gen. Foster, to Gen. Grant, dated the 22d. 7 p. m. states that the city of Savannah was occupied by Gen. Sherman on the evening of the 21st—that on the preceding afternoon and night Hardee escaped with the main body of his infantry and light artillery, blowing up the iron clads and navy yards.

He enumerates the captured at 8,000 prisoners, 150 guns, 13 locomotives in good order, 190 cars, a large lot of ammunition, 3 steamers and 30,000 bales of cotton.

No mention is made of the present position of Hardee's force which has been estimated at 13,000.

The despatch from Gen. Sherman is as follows:

Savannah, Dec. 22.

His Excellency, President Lincoln:

I beg to present you as a Christmas gift the city of Savannah, with 150 heavy guns, plenty of ammunition, and about 25,000 bales of cotton.

W. T. SHERMAN, Maj. Gen.

Steamer Golden Gate,
Savannah River, Dec. 22, '64. 7 p. m.

To Lieut. Gen Grant, and Maj. Gen. Halleck:

I have the honor to report that I have just returned from General Sherman's Headquarters in Savannah.

I send Maj. Gray of my staff as bearer of dispatches from Gen. Sherman to you, and also a message to the President. The city of Savannah was occupied on the morning of the 21st. Gen. Hardee anticipating the contemplated assault, escaped with the main body of his infantry and light artillery on the morning of the 20th, by crossing the river to Union Causeway opposite the city.

The rebel iron clads were blown up, and the Navy Yard was burned. All the rest of the city is intact, and contains 20 000 citizens, quiet and well disposed.

The captures include 8 000 prisoners, 150 guns, 13 locomotives in good order, 190 cars, large supply of ammunition and materials of war, 3 steamers and 33,000 bales of cotton safely stored in warehouses.

All these valuables of an almost bloodless victory have been, like Atlanta, fairly won.

I opened communication with the city with my steamers to day, taking up what torpedoes we could see and passing safely over others. Arrangements are made to clear the channel of all obstructions. Yours, &c.

J. G. FOSTER, Maj. Gen.

Wilmington.

The Richmond papers of yesterday say, that on the 23d, 26 vessels of the Wilmington expedition had reappeared.

The dispatch of Gen. Bragg, published in the Richmond papers is as follows:

Wilmington, Dec. 23.

Twenty-six vessels of the fleet re appeared this morning. There has been no change since the last dispatch. This is the latest intelligence received from that expedition.

E M. STANTON.
Secretary of War.

Baltimore, December 25.

The Associated Press letter from Fort Monroe, dated 24th, 5 p. m, says, the mail steamer Thos. Collier has arrived.

A telegraph operator, named Baker, belonging to one of the chief offices in Richmond, escaped night before last, and having succeeded in eluding the vigilance of the rebel pickets, made his way successfully into our lines yesterday afternoon.

He was subject to a severe examination by Gen. Grant and stated that intelligence of the fall of Savannah and the capture of the entire forces, 13,000 in number, of Gen. Hardee, had reached Richmond a few hours before he made his escape.

There was a report prevalent at the same time, that Fort Fisher commanding the entrance to Wilmington, had also fallen, through a combined attack by Gen. Butler and Admiral Porter's forces, but could not be traced to any reliable source.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN !

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect. They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15, persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bond's is not less than nine per cent. premium, and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

PROSPECTUS---1865.

THE ST. PAUL PRESS,

Daily, Tri-Weekly and Weekly,

IS the only Union Journal published at the capital of the State, and enters upon its 5th volume with an established reputation as by far the best newspaper published west of Chicago. It is a sufficient proof of the unrivalled and rapidly increasing popularity of the Press that in the short space of four years it has attained nearly TREBBLE the circulation of any other Newspaper published in the State—a fact of great importance to advertisers. This marvellous success is owing not only to the fact that its political sentiments are in harmony with those of the great majority of the people, but to its great superiority over all its rivals in every department of newspaper intelligence, being always ahead in news and foremost in the discussion of all subjects of public interest, and in advocacy of all measures for the material development of the State.

It has a far more extensive and intelligent war and State correspondence than any Minnesota journal, and better local and commercial reporters and several excellent poetical and literary contributors. It is, in short,

The best General Newspaper,
The best State Newspaper,
The best Local Newspaper,
The best Political Journal,
The best Statistical Journal,
The best Emigration Journal,
The best Commercial Journal,
The best Literary Journal,
The best Family Journal,

published in the State. And furthermore the Press is much the largest daily in Minnesota, and publishes daily one third more reading matter than any other. It is the Official Paper of the State and United States,

and the only paper in the State which publishes
The Laws of Congress and Legislature.

THE TRI WEEKLY PRESS

contains nearly all the matter published in our Daily, and is a magnificent sheet, containing usually from 24 to 30 columns of reading matter.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

is confessedly the best Family Journal published in the State, containing all the news of the week, and the choicest literary selections, tales, poetry, political intelligence, local news, markets, etc.

The great advance in the cost of composition, paper, and all the materials employed in the manufacture of a newspaper, compelled a slight advance in our subscription price in August last; and though the cost of publication has greatly increased since then, we still adhere to the terms then announced, which will be found annexed.

The Daily Pioneer is issued every morning in the week except Monday.

The Tri Weekly Pioneer is issued every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and will be found a very convenient issue in localities which have no daily mail. It contains all the matter, exclusive of advertisements, that appears in the daily edition.

THE WEEKLY PIONEER

Is the first newspaper issued in Minnesota, and has been printed continuously since 1849. It contains all the news matter of the Daily and Tri-Weekly editions and is the largest newspaper printed in the State. We shall endeavor, as in the past, to make it emphatically a Family Paper, and a welcome visitor to every household. It will contain, in addition to the news of the day, the best selected and original tales, poetry, reviews, and other excellent literary matter. It is in every respect a popular newspaper, and the cheapest, and the best in the State.

The General Character of The Pioneer.

The several editions will present a full, faithful and reliable epitome of the latest current news, received through our regular telegraphic reports correspondence, &c. Especial pains will be bestowed upon Commercial and Market Reports, up to the moment we go to press. To this will be added a lively interest in local matters, and in everything calculated to promote the material prosperity of our people. The general army news will be published promptly, faithfully and fully. Especial attention will be directed to intelligence relating to Minnesota troops in the field, giving the latest, most authentic and detailed information as to their locality and the conduct of officers and soldiers.

Political Affairs.

While the Pioneer will refrain from intemperate and factious opposition to the present Administration, it will fearlessly criticise every act that is deemed subversive to the public good; but it will be in a spirit of candor and moderation designed to evoke light and truth, and promote the diffusion of sound principles of political economy. We shall advocate at all times "Democratic Principles and Democratic Men," and expose the evil tendency and corruptions of radical measures and men. In short, we shall aim to make the Pioneer the central organ of the Democratic and conservative sentiment of Minnesota; and being determined to continue in the course we have for the past year, we confidently appeal to the Democracy for their support.

In these days when the party in power is lavish of its benefit to its press, which has become base as it has grown venal, and when the Democratic press is excluded from patronage, it is especially important that the masses of the party should extend a liberal support to its papers. It is indispensible, and it is the business of every patriotic and conservative man of the State. With these views, we regard it a duty to cajoin upon Democrats everywhere to support the local and central press. It must be done, or we must abandon the hope to take our place in the grand roll of Democratic States, which the events of the next two years will inevitably [illegible] upon the time honored banner. Let not Minnesota be laggard to "pursue the triumph and partake the gale."

Poetry.

For the Mankato Union.

NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS.

A happy New Year, one and all,
To rich and poor, great and small;
I hope that health and joy and peace
Will with the coming year increase.
Old time has made another round
Still in his onward course he's bound,
Still soars upon his tireless wing
In summer winter fall and spring
Six thousand years their course have run
Since morning stars their praises sung;
And angels did a wonder find
When they beheld the march of time
O, thou restless tireless one
How soon until thy work is done?
I'm [illegible] you never rested till
Old Joshua bid you be still!
And then you only stopped [illegible]
To grease your wheels and start again.
And ever since we've had no fear,
But what you'll make the round each year.
[illegible] is still at strife,
A nation struggling for its life;
With traitors [illegible] the field—
Resolved [illegible] will [illegible] yield
Traitors [illegible]
Would sunder that which none can part;
The Union strong [illegible] on's stay,
No Judas ever can betray
But there's a foe that's in the rear
That does not in the field appear;
But lets his poisoned arrow fly
When he thinks no danger's nigh,
We call him Cop a fitting name,
That time itself will never change;
For what, I ask for mercy sake
Is meaner than a copper snake.
According to this hissing train,
The North and not the South's to blame
And Abe's the greatest tyrant known
While Jeffy's fighting for his own.
Have pity Lord on any man
That thus would talk of Abraham.
Sure, he has copper on the brain,
Or else he's not exactly sane;
Or else he has no brain at all,
Or if he has its very small
But never mind like Judas they,
Soon will have the bill to pay
Already from the nation's door
They've fell to rise no more
Long Abraham, the people will
Should be a little longer still
Their chief, to move the ship along,
And bring her safely through the storm.
When first he stepped aboard the ship
Her pilot for a four years trip:
Many said she would go down
And Abe and all the crew be drowned,
But firm he stood beside the wheel
And said to foes we'll never yield:
But did resolve with all the crew
To bring the Constitution through;
Don't fear the storm she will out ride,
The nation's glory and her pride,
Round into port with colors spread,
The nation saved! Rebellion dead.
Our soldiers still are in the field
Resolved that they will never yield,
Until the last armed traitor foe
Shall for the flag, and Union go.
Go into every land and clime.
Go read the history of all time,
Of battles fought and victories won,
And of the deeds by valor done, [Rome,
Take France, and England Greece and
Compare their deeds with deeds at home;
All must own that deeds of sacrifice
Gives to Columbia's sons the prize.
There's heroes yet that we must name,
Alth'o the Cops may blush for shame:
We mean the black man's sacrifice,
The nation does not fail to prize,
And when the dreadful conflict's done,
And freedom's laurels he has won,
Poured out his blood 'mid battles strife
To redeem himself, his child and wife:
And purchased for his downtrod race
Mid freedoms sons a higher place
And proved that freedom life and limb
Belongs to all—embraces him. [walls
Four years have passed since Sumpter's
By traitors guns was bid to fall,
Since traitors foul the flag denied
Once their glory and their pride,
This sacred emblem did disown
Made slavery dark their corner stone.
Spoke from the canon's fiery mouth
The Union broke 'twixt North and South.
We know it has of old been said [mad
Whom the Gods destroy they first make
When slavery they resolved to save
They only dug its loathsome grave.
Let Henry Ward the funeral preach,
And Horace make a pious speech,
Let Bayard read the funeral hymn
Let all the congregation sing.
And when the grave is covered o'er,
And mourners bid to weep no more.
I know their weeping eyes will stare

Select Miscellany.

THE MILITARY SITUATION AT NASHVILLE.

A correspondent of the Milwaukee Wisconsin writing from Nashville, gives a glowing and very interesting description of the situation of our forces there. Although not as late as some other accounts we have seen, it is certainly the most accurate, and will well pay perusal.

Eagerly, doubtless, you are all, to-day, watching for the telegraphic courier who hourly brings you tidings of the military situation here. Still, though I write from the menaced capital of Tennessee, and with the constant booming of artillery reverberating in my ear, I can at this moment communicate no intelligence of startling import. Two immense hostile armies are watching each other from behind breastworks, within ear-shot of the subscriber, and one of those events which make history may be inaugurated here yet, while my pen is tracing this paper.

There has been any quantity of excitement in the city for the three days—that is what we, lately from Hyperborean regions, unvisited by Mars, would call excitement. There has been > "Mounting in hot haste the steed,

> The mustering squadron and the clattering car
> Went pouring forward with impetuous speed,
> And swiftly forming in the ranks of war!"

From the highest points of the city, when the air is clear, a fine view of our whole lines that environ the place can be obtained.

A BIRD'S EYE VIEW.

The best position for observation is the balcony of the State House. The dome is now closed to the public, as it is too good a station for overlooking the whole country to be left open to rebel emmissaries. The portico and grounds around the Capitol, however, are constantly occupied by excited observers.—From here one can distinctly trace our lines of breastworks, which reach in a semi-circle around the south of the city, resting, on the right and left, upon the Cumberland. The average distance from this point is two and a half miles. The line, for most of the way, lies upon a range of small hills which cut the horizon, except where the timber on very distant elevations rises a little above them. To the extreme left, as you look southward, is Fort Negley, where lie couched some of the largest guns in the service. They are now talking soto voce to their rebel visitors, and their tones make the earth fairly vibrate. Next toward the right lies another fortification of nearly equal strength, on whose parapet, with aid of the lorgnette in my hand, the black columbiads can be distinctly seen. Further towards the right, through the tree-tops which surround it, there looms a cupola of a suburban residence. Back of it, and a little to the right, a battery is sending up occasional wreathes of smoke, and down to us, long after, a burst of abbreviated thunder.—The residence is that of Mrs. Acklin, doubtless already familiar by name to you, as it is an important point, and will be, doubtless mentioned, even in telegraph. I will describe it below.

On toward the right, and you see the Granny White Pike, running in a straight line from the city—a radius of the circle of our circumvolution. A little to the right of the intersection of this pike with our lines is stationed the Twenty Fourth Wisconsin, couched behind a breastwork of logs waiting for another signal to cover themselves with glory, as they did last week at Franklin. Turning the eye on further to the right, you discover hill after hill, from which the timber has been removed, and on the sharp outline of their crests can be seen the dim forms of men and horses moving to and fro. On some of these hills as many as thirty pieces of cannon are said to be planted. So on to the extreme left where an occasional puff of smoke indicates an active battery, the whole range is one of intense interest. Within the circle of our lines, occupying a large zone, reaching for a mile towards the center of the city, glistens the canvass of ten thousand tents, while behind each knoll or knot of woods lie acres of army wagons, grouped in martial array, or large corrols of horses, mules and cattle, all most glorious plunder, could any insolent and traitorous foe cut through the defences of the brave breasts of our boys in blue. At night or at evening, the scene is also very animating, when all over the surrounding region, gleaming upon every hill-side, the camp-fires of the vast Union army in bivouac, blaze upon the dusky sky, like the street lamps of some mighty city, suddenly evoked in space by the wand of a wierd anchorite.

Not satisfied with this view, however, I yesterday afternoon, made a reconnoissance out along a portion of the line. There is no difficulty in reaching the lines, but once there, a citizen without proper papers is likely to find himself with a spade or pick helping at constructing earthworks. Passing out on the Franklin Pike amid a throng of officers on galloping steeds, soldiers on foot, picking their way through the mud, army wagons drawn by six mules, each urged along by profane drivers, and processions of Government employees, with shovels and picks on shoulder, I soon reached our reserve line. Leaving the pike I passed into the fields to the left, and found myself in an assemblage of negro camps, or camps of our colored troops. I confess to some prejudice to the black soldier. Not that I do not believe in arming the negro, but I have thought that he could not be rendered very efficient in the camp or the field, but I was agreeably surprised at the soldierly bearing of these dusky fellows about their martial homes, and must say that if the men I saw there had had white faces, I should have instantly said that there were troops of which, in time of trial the country would be proud.—Wending my way through the acres of tents occupied by these American soldiers of African descent, I soon reached the foot of a declivity, just beyond whose top, there seemed to be a lively working of artillery, and I directed my course toward the point whence the sound emanated. Up along a devious cow path, through a scattered second growth of timber haunted by soldiers, and among which nestled hundreds of canvas tents I at last came out on the top of the hill upon the famous Acklin Place. This has been one of the finest suburban villas in our land. It is still in a fair state of preservation, but if it is after all dismantled and made a den for the owls and bats, it will only be another instance of just retribution which the traitorous aristocracy of the South have brought down upon their heads. Col. Acklin the male head of the family, who occupy the place died, as I understand in the rebel service. His widow is still allowed the estate and claiming it, and also protection of our troops on ground of its being her separate property, and that she has never been disloyal, that is, never borne arms against the government. Well, it is an magnificent display of what wealth and taste can produce in the matter of adornments to human dwellings.

OUR BATTLE LINE.

Leaving the Acklin Place, and keeping on across the road on which it fronts, we come to another hill, on the crest of which our boys in blue, are arranged, and a battery is thundering almost momently, the smoke of each discharge crimsoned with flame, bursts out on the sight as we stand at the road-side.

Up to yonder height I again start to make my way. On every hand tents filled with soldiers squat like Indians, telling stories, playing cards or reading (?) tracts of the Christian Commission. Some are outside by the camp fires cooking supper. It is early for that, but the poor fellows have to go on picket soon, to stay out 24 hours. It was amusing to hear the remarks of these fellows as I passed trudging long:—"There's another in for it."

"He'll do a good thing with a shovel before he comes back."

Well, I'll be cussed if they ain't driving a durned lot of citizens in to work to day." &c., &c.

I thought of Longfellow's "Beware! the pine trees withered branch; Beware! the awful avalanche," and shouting "Excelsior!" I mounted onward. At last gaining the crest of the hill sure enough I found myself at the very breastworks, the extreme end of our lines, beyond which not one step could the subscriber go under protection of the Stars and Stripes. A slight elevation of earth made by the soil thrown from the ditch dug on the other side, and logs laid one on the top of the other, with interstices for musketry, was all that screened me from the eyes of rebel devils couching in yonder wood, ready to take the life of any Union man who would give them a chance. The Confederate line is about five hundred yards from ours. Little of it can be seen. I saw a gray line through an open space in the woods which they told me was a rebel earthwork. I saw a moving object near it which they said was a rebel picket, and that was all that I saw of Dixie's men that day.

I went along our lines however, through tangled thicket, shrubs &c., till I reached the 4th Army Corps. Then I began to inquire for the 24th Reg. Wis. Vols, which is in that Corps I knew, but what Division or Brigade, I had forgotten. Well not a son of a gun knew where the 24th was, so on I went, and the last squad I asked said that no such Regiment was in that part of the line they knew.

I went on about forty rods, and came upon a camp fire, around which sat Captains Parsons, Kennedy Allison and others from Milwaukee. Yes, here was the old 24th, right behind the breastworks, and supporting a battery, which just in front of them, was belching shells into the dens of the devils in front.

But my time, my paper, and your space are exhausted, or I would tell you of the deeds of the 24th in the late battle at Franklin.

The Regiment belongs to the 1st Brigade of the 2nd division of the 4th Army Corps. Gen. Wood on reviewing the army after the battle, said before the assembled army:"I wish it understood that the 1st Brigade of the 2nd Division, has saved the Army.

The 24th has again covered itself with glory, I assure you. RASSALAS

Myron Winslow, D. D. L. L. D., the distinguished missionary and oriental scholar died recently at the Cape of Good Hope in his sixty-sixth year, having been forty-five years in the service of the American Board. During his eventful life he has published a "History of Missions," "Hints on Missions," and translated the Bible into Tamil. A short time since he was enabled to bring to a successful close his great "Tamil and English Lexicon," upon which he has labored over twenty years. The work has been, by competent authority, pronounced the greatest achievement of any American scholar and missionary. It is a quarto of 1,000 pages and 68,800 words transmitted into English of which one half were collected by the author. The dictionary is a complete one, containing the mythology of India, names of heroes, poets, warriors, &c., definitions and illustrations of the Brahmaic tongue.

The following joke perpetrated by the Irish Hackman who "drove Gen. Grant" about New York, is racy.

While at the residence of Col. Hillyer it became known that the Lieut. General of the armies of the United States was there, and quite a throng of neighboring citizens paid their respects in person. He returned to the Astor House in a close carriage at half past two o'clock.

After depositing his precious freight the jolly driver gave his friends the following toast—"Here's to meself, Dennis Connelly, the biggest man in Amerikey but one. I've driven the Lieutenant General of the United States, and its more than Bobby Lee ever did."

AT a festival of lawyers and editors, a lawyer gave as a toast—"The Editor, he always obeys the call of the devil." An editor responded, "The Editor and the Lawyer—the devil is satisfied with a copy of the former but requires the original of the latter."

A LADY, in speaking of the gathering of lawyers to dedicate a new Court House, said she supposed they had gone to "view the place where they must shortly lie."

A cheese for the sanitary commission was made this year in California by two farmers of Santa Cruz County. It was six feet in diameter and weighed nearly two tons. The curd was prepared in three days and a half from 12 barrels of milk, the yield of 600 cows.

Adulterated confectionery is more plenty than ever now, in consequence of the high price of sugar. The most common substitute for sugar is a dry chalky substance originally imported from England. It costs the manufacturers a cent and a half a pound and is used very freely by them. This poisonous substance enters most largely into almonds, sugar plums, conversation lozenges, and such things. Better give them a wide berth, unless you are sure they are pure.

If adulterated candies are placed in water, there will soon be found at the bottom of the glass a heavy white substance, the chalk which is indissolnble.

The Seven-Thirties—What are They ?

Harper's Magazine has the following cellent article on this subject :

We trust that a large portion of our aders have pondered the Appeal of Mr. ssenden, our new Secretary of the easury. The purport of it is that the eple of the United States, acting as a dy thro' their agent the Government, ish individuals to lend them two hund- d millions of dollars for three years, seven and three tenths per cent. an- nal interest, payable every six months. or this they offer Treasury Note—that , in reality, notes drawn and endorsed every man in the country. The loan wanted for a great national purpose, effect which every man, unless he be traitor at heart if not in act, is sol- mnly pledged.

The appeal is addressed not merely to few great capitalists, but also to the many whose aggregate means constitute the mass of the wealth of the land. The notes upon which this loan is asked are from $50 upward. Every man who has fifty dollars can take part in this loan. Apart from patriotism and the duty which all owe to their country, no investment is so desirable as this.

It is secure. Every dollar of every man's property is pledged for the punctual payment of the interest and of the debt when due. The security is increasing in value. For some years before the war we were earning 1,000 millions a year more than we spent. During the three years of the war, owing to the high prices and constant demand for labor, we have earned more than ever before. No man who could or would work has been idle ; and, except for the war, we have spent less than before. The total valuation of the property of the United States, according to the census of 1860, was $16,159,000,000, of which $10,-957,448,956 was in the Loyal States. This valuation, according to the usual rule of assessment, was not more than two-thirds of the actual cash value of the property. The increase of property in the Loyal States during the last ten years was over 126 per cent., or an average of 12 6-10 per cent. per annum. In three years of the war we of the United States have certainly earned 3000 millions more than we have spent apart from the war. The cost of the war may be set down at 2000 millions. Deducting this from our nett earnings, the People who are security for this loan are 1000 millions richer to-day than they were when the war broke out.

No other investment can be so easily convertible. The man who has a Treasury note for $50, or $100, or 1,000, can turn it into money more readily, and upon better terms, than if were invested upon bond and mortgage, or in railroad stocks.

The interest offered is higher than can be realized from any other safe and convertible investment. It is, moreover, readily collectable when due. To each note are affixed five'coupons,' or interest tickets, due at the expiration of each successive half year. The holder of a note has simply to cut off one of these coupons, present it at the nearest bank or Goverment Agency, and receive his interest; the note itself need not be presented at all. Or a coupon thus payable, will evrywhere be equivalent, when due, to money.

Thus, while this loan presents great advantage to large capitalists, it offers special inducements to those who wish to make a safe and profitable investment of small saving. It is in every way the best Savings' Bank, for every institution of this kind must somehow invest its deposits profitably in order to pay interest and expenses. They will invest largely in this loan, as the best investment. But from the gross interest which they receive they must deduct largly for the expenses of the Bank. Their usual rate of interest allowed to depositors is 5 per ct. upon sums over 500 The person who invests directly with the government will receive almost 50 per cent. more. Thus the man who deposits 1000 in a private Savings' Bank receives 50 dollars a year interest; if he deposits the same sum in this National Savings' Bank he receives 73 dollars. For those who wish to find a safe, convenient, and profitable means of investing the surplus earnings which they have reserved for their old age or for the benifit of their children, there is nothing which presents so many advantages as this National Loan.

It is convertible into a six per cent. gold-bearing bond. At the expiration of three years a holder of the notes of the 7.30 loan has the option of accepting payment in full or of funding his notes in a six per cent. gold interest bond, the principal payable in not less than five nor more tan twenty years from its date as the Government may elect. For six months past, these bonds have ranged at an average premium of about eight per cent. in the New York market, and have sold at 109 to-day (Aug. 12th,) thus making the real rate of intrest over ten per cent. ; and besides, to make the inducement even greater, Congress by special act exempts its Treasury note from state and municipal taxation. Could Shylock ask more ? Was patriotism ever so liberally rewarded?

THE SITUATION.

One after another, in rapid succession, are the strongholds of the rebellion being gathered back under the folds of the national flag. Gen. Sherman has crowned his wonderful Georgia campaign by the capture of savannah, and the majesty of the republic is at last vindicated at that important point in its territory. This glorious intelligence is given to us in the dispatches from Mr. Stanton, General Sherman himself and General Foster. General Sherman in a despatch to President Lincoln, says : —"I beg to present you, as a Christmas gift, the city of Savannah." By Gen. Foster's despatch we learn that it was occupied by the national troops on the morning of Weinesday last, the 21st instant, Gen. Hardee, without waiting for the anticipated assault, marching out on the preceeding day, and escaping with the main body of his army, by crossing the Savannah river. Before leaving the rebels burned the navy yard and blew up their iron clads, but did no damage to the city. General Sherman's captures include eight hundred prisoners, one hundred and fifty pieces of artillery, thirteen locomotive engines, one hundred and ninety cars, thirty-three thousand bales of cotton, three steamers and large quantities of ammunition and war materials. What became of Hardee and his army after their escape from the city, or what position or line of march they took up afterwards, is not stated. Gen Foster, at the date of his despatch, Thursday last, the 22d inst., had opened river communication between the city and the ocean. A number of torpedoes had been taken up, and the channel would soon be cleared of all obstructions.

We have this morning a rumor that Fort Fisher, on Cape Fear river below Wilmington, N. C , and the principal defence to that place against an attack from seaward has succumbed to a combined assault of the Union land and naval forces. This report is said to have been furnished by a telegraph operator who escaped from Richmond on last Thursday, and came into the Union lines in front of that place on the following day, and who says that it was in circulation in the rebel capital when he left. Though it is stated that reliance is placed in this story by some of our army officers, it still appears very doubtful, as despatches published in Saturday's Richmond papers, dated at Wilmington on Friday afternoon, say that no troops had yet been landed, and no attack had been made on the forts or the city. This intelligence is one day later than that brought by the reputed telegraph operator, and Secretary Stanton states that it is the latest information from Wilmington in possession of the War Department.

No later intelligence regarding the pursuit of the remnant of Hood's rebel army by General Thomas has reached us in the past two days.

The rebel General Lyon, with two or three thousand of the men from Hood's army with whom he left Nash' ville, is still prowling through Kentucky, doing what damage he can. Not much time, however, is given him to depredate as a brigade of Union troops is follow' ing him up closely. He recently destroyed a few spans of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad bridge at Elizabethport, Ky , and on Saturday last was threatening Muldraugh's Hill.

On last Friday the steamer Morning Star, on her trip up the Ohio river from Evansville to Louisville, while lying at Lewisport, Ky , was boarded by fifty guerillas, who robbed the passengers of three thousand dollars and killed two soldiers. After compelling the captain of the boat to transport them to Cloversport, they released him and his vessel, and made their escape.

A rebel force estimated at four thousand, under General Gano, has been recently operating in the Indian Territory, south of Kansas and west of Arkansas, stealing from emigrants and Indians, and living by plunder and outlawry generally. They lately had their plans laid to capture over one hundred wagons, laden with government stores, on their way from Fort Scott, Kansas, to Fort Gibson, in the Indian Territory ; but, this design coming to the knowledge of our army officers in that region, a regiment of cavalry was immediately sent out for the protection of the train, and the rebels were thus deprived of their anticipated prey.

THE Richmond Enquirer states that Gen. LEE, in a letter to Mr. MILES of South Carolina, advocating the arming of negroes, says that SHERMAN, when he gets to the coast will tarry there only long enough to rest and recruit his men, and then take shipping for City Point, to act in the spring as a movable column on the rebel lines of communication; and this necessitates a like column on their part.

A NEW YEAR'S ADDRESS.

BY S. C. WELLCOME.

Another year has passed away, with all its joys and sorrows, its pleasures and disappointments, and nought but a remembrance of the past remains on our minds to remind us that we have passed through scenes of either happiness or sorrow. And as the swift revolving wheels of Time have rolled us onward year after year, placing us, at the close of each year, as it were, a step higher on the scale of time and nearer our eternal home, we do well to look back upon the past, as we take each step into the dark future, and closely examine our lives to see whether we have improved the golden moments as they have flown past, in a proper manner, and whether we have been faithful to ourselves, our families, the society around us, and above all to our God. I am aware that it is often painful to our hearts to reflect upon our past lives, and yet is profitable; for, as we see our errors we may learn wisdom, change our course of life, shun the ways of sin and folly which we may have fallen into, and become better men and women in the future. But we are erring creatures, and it is too often the case that although we may see our past follies, yet the force of habit is so strong, and the influence brought to bear upon us is such that we fall repeatedly into the same errors, thus bringing condemnation upon our souls. This should not be. For our motto should always be "onward and upward" rising higher day by day in the scale of virtue, constantly gaining new victories over evil habits, and overcoming all our sinful passions. But in looking back in the past we have other things to make us sad beside our frailties. I allude to the changes that time has made even in one short year, we are social creatures and much of our happiness consists in gathering in the home circle around the fireside to hold family converse with those we love, but alas ! the family circle is broken. Cruel Death has visited some of our families, and loved ones borne away, and now sleep beneath yon prairie sod, while the wintry winds sigh a sad requiem over them. Then there are others that one year ago gathered with us around the friendly board, and united their voices with ours in friendly conversation, perhaps planning for the future, while their hearts beat high in fond anticipation of pleasure and happiness as the prospect looked so bright and joyous before them, but alas ! a cruel war is raging in our land, they have gone at their country's call and while we are enjoying all the comforts of home, they are away on the tented battle field, exposed to all the dangers of an unhealthy climate, foul diseases, and from the attacks of a merciless foe. But while many of us are happy in our homes, we are not all so, we find desolate homes all over the land, Here and there we see a little group—the wife and children, mourning over the absence of the husband and father, fearing every hour that the sad news may come that he has fell in the bloody struggle, when the little ones shall say we have no father, save our Father in Heaven. Again we look away in yonder cottage and we see the lonely widow weeping over the loss of her darling boy, the pride of her heart, the only earthly staff in her old age, while many a sis' ter's heart is made to bleed while she hears the sad news that a loved brother is wounded and dying, or perhaps pining under disease in some crowded hospital, or perhaps what is still worse a prisoner pining away in some loathsome Southern dungeon. Oh, what a sad picture comes up before us, while we look over our once happy country, and it is not imaginary, for imagination is too weak to come up to the reality.—Truly it is enough to make an angel weep to witness the scenes that are transpiring, can we then help feeling sad, shall we close our eyes upon the scene, and say it will do no good to mourn? No, God forbid, we should feel it deeply, we should mourn over our sins as a people humbling ourselves under the mighty hand of a merciful God, and implore him for Christ's sake to remove his judgments from us, and to cause this bloody strife to cease, that we may once more have peace in our land, that as the year closes war with all its evils might close. Then truly there might be rejoicing all over the land, not in drunken revelry but in thanksgiving to the Ruler of heaven and earth. But the New Year dawns upon us and although our armies are victorious, yet the struggle goes on and God alone knows when it will end. But let us always remember that he holds the destinies of all men. And, that notwithstanding he has given man much power yet that he is liable in all his high and ambitious schemes to be thwarted, and to be disappointed in all their earthly plans, but while we see the uncertainty of human events, we still have a right to hope and a right to plan. God has given us this right, but our plans must not conflict with the will of our Maker, but in accordance with his plans, and our hopes built on His word which is immutable, depending on Him for strength and wisdom. Had this course been taken in the past, happy should we have been as a people. And unless we walk in wisdom's ways in the future, how many hearts will be made sad, how many disappointed and made wretched. But methinks I hear a short prayer ascending to day all over the land. It is, "I wish you a happy New Year." It is repeated from the tattling babe, who can just lisp it forth, to the grey-headed sire whose sands are almost run out. O, may that prayer be made in earnest to-day—with sincere hearts and with that prayer may it be the intention of our rulers to make their subjects happy, may it be the intention of all, high, low, rich, and poor to cause happiness all around them—let this be our object as we begin the year to diffuse happiness throughout the society in which we move, to really benefit each other, let our influence be exerted for good that the world may be the better for our having lived in it, and thus living we may have peace with God and with our fellow-men. And, Mr. Editor, I sincerely wish you and your readers all, a Happy New Year.

DEATH OF MR. CAREY.

It is our painful duty to-day to chronicle the death of Mr. SHELDON C. CAREY one of the proprietors of THE REPUBLICAN. Mr. CAREY left this office between four and five o'clock last evening for a pleasure ride on the river to Trempelean. He had driven some two miles below the village and was returning. When nearly opposite he saw before him what seemed to be open water, and stopped to examine ; but decived in the darkness by the reflection of the lights from its surface, concluded that it was glare ice and drove forward The horse and sleigh were precipitated into deep water, and before assistance could be rendered by the persons in another sleigh who accompanied him, were swept under the ice by the current of the river. They had missed the beaten road on their way down and were guiding themselves in their return by the lights from the town, Miss FARRINGTN, who was in the sleigh with Mr. CAREY, did not go under the ice, and after remaining in the water nearly half an hour was taken out senseless, but will recover.

By this distressing calamity a young man of unusual promise has been stricken down in the midst of a prosperous and useful career. Mr. CAREY first became connected with this office in the early part of October, 1857. He served his apprenticeship to the business here, and afterwards was engaged in canvassing and collecting for THE REPUBLICAN, and as foreman of the news-room. He had a thorough practical acquaintance with all departments of the business. On the first of last April he purchased the interest of Mr. W. G. DYE in the establishment which he still owned at the time of his death. In his conduct of the business affairs of THE REPUBLICAN he manifested the same enterprise and untiring energy which characterized him in whatever he undertook. His efforts in behalf of THE REPUBLICAN brought him into business relations with an extensive circle of acquaintances to whom his character and worth are so well known that no words of ours on this subject will be necessary.

Mr. CAREY actively interested himself in every good work. He was chiefly instrumental in organizing the Young Men's Library Association of this place, and whatever of success that organization has met with, and whatever of good it has done, is due in a large measure to his labors. Those who were best acquainted with him will recall many other like efforts. We doubt whether any other young man could have been taken from among us who has accomplished so much, in so short a life as he has done. He was but twenty-one years of age at the time of his death, yet he occupied a place in business and in the community which few are able to attain at so early an age. His loss will be generally felt as a great calamity, and to his parents, whose only son he was, and to the large circle of friends who knew him intimately, an unspeakable and irreparable one — Winona Republican.

THE TARIFF ON PAPER.—A Washington dispatch says several petitions have been presented in Congress from the Western Associate Press, praying for the repeal of the duty on foreign printing paper, which is now so high as to prohibit importation altogether. It is quite probable that both houses will repeal this duty, as an act of justice to the public press and Government. It appears by the report of the Superintendent of Public Printing that, at eighteen cents per pound for paper, which was his estimate last year, the paper used be the Government for the last year would have amounted to $713,481. After the twenty cents duty was imposed, paper advanced so much that it cost for the same period $1,277,243–making a difference of $500,000, which was lost to the Government.

Frightful Loss of Life.

It appears there were 197 sick soldiers on the North America when she went down. Only 62 out of 269 persons on board were saved. She had also a valuable cargo of cotton.

A Letter on "Graybacks."

We have received the following humorous letter from a correspondent in Co. B. 2d cavalry stationed at Fort Wadsworth. It is dated in October last, and has been a long while on the road, but notwithstanding, is worth perusal :

Do you not know what G. B., means ? Well, we'll tell you. It means graybacks ! Yes, graybacks ! We have heard of graybacks, very often, by people who have been on the Indian expedition. The fact that they have been obliged to sit up in bed, with a candle in one hand and a revolver in the other, in order to retain possession of the bed.—We have heard yarns told about them until we thought man's imagination could go no farther in creating stories, or we always considered them as gotten up for the purpose of killing time; but "a change came o'er the spirit of my dreams," and we are satisfied that the half has not been told. We have seen them—seen them in battalions—seen them in divisions, and in army corps, and they were of all sizes from the smallest—four of which can stand on the head of a pin, up to the size of a mud turtle. We have seen them regularly organized, thoroughly drilled and apparently in a good state of discipline. At first they would throw out a few foragers, who would wait very quietly until we were asleep, when they would draw what blood they could carry and go quietly off. For the sake of maintaining peace we submitted until they came in force one night, and attempted to carry us off bodily; then we objected as an American citizen, bound to maintain our rights, but it was of no use. We were obliged to leave and seek repose elsewhere. We finally took refuge in the farther corner of the camp, on the ground; there, we thought they would not find us, and, for one night they left us in peace; but, before the next night their skirmishers had ascertained our exact locality, and before we were fairly asleep they came at us in full force, but we were determined to maintain our position or perish in the attempt. Charge after charge they made which we successfully repulsed with a trifling loss of blood on our side. At length they changed their tactics, and one, much larger than the rest, advanced to the attack alone; then came the tug of war, and for a long time neither side could claim any advantage. We were rapidly losing strength, and thought our time had come. We remembered that our life was not insured and all the actions of it seemed to pass in rapid succession before us; we thought upon our homes and those dear ones that were anxiously awaiting our return, and were determined to struggle to the bitter end. At length fortune favored us, and by a brilliant manuevre we were enabled to, place our opponent on his back, and plunging a knife into him, finished him. The rest were apparently thunder-struck and stood unable to do anything, but gaze. So, taking advantage of their surprise, we seized our blankets and once more fled. That stands as the one eventful night of a lifetime. Never shall we forget the horrors of it. Our next resort was to the outside of the camp, thinking they would let us have at least one side of the camp, the outside, but after one or two nights they were after us again, although not in so great numbers, yet sufficient strong to keep us constantly on the alert. We soon found out that we could not stay there long, so we looked around for new quarters, where we might be secure at least for a few nights, until we should somewhat revive. We at length hit upon a little bank, waiting until darkness had settled upon the face of the earth. We again seized our blankets, and, like a thief we stole very quietly into camp, where we laid down and had a good rest. Three days have passed and they have not found our last retreat yet, but expect every day they will; so we are prepared to flee again. This time we shall take refuge on top of the flag-staff, and roost after the manner of a bird. After attaining our elevated position we shall hire a cheap boy to sweep the bottom of the flag staff continually so they will be unable to reach us. We are now quite reduced in flesh, and any one can see that we have not another drop of blood to spare. G. B's have become a perfect terror to us. Sleeping or walking, they are continually in our minds—our dreams are filled with monsters. They are ever present. If we sit down to write they are crawling over the paper by dozens—if we sit down to play a social game of cards, we talk of nothing but graybacks. The other day, a man asked us the time of day; we replied, Graybacks; and so it goes. Graybacks have become the bane of our lives, and we fear that we shall go crazy soon unless there is something done.

Death Of Hon. Geo. M. Dallas.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.

Hon. George M. Dallas, ex-Vice President of the United States, died at his residence at 9 o'clock to-day. He was well enough to be about yesterday.

Col. James H. Baker.

The St. Louis Republican of the 29th says:

Col. J. H. Baker, of the 10th Minnesota, has been appointed and commissioned as Provost Marshal General of this Department, lately made vacant by the resignation of Col. Joseph Darr, Jr., which took place at the time Gen. Rosecrans was relieved from command. Col. Baker has been commandant of this military post for a year past, and is therefore well, and we may add, favorably known to our citizens. A gentleman of good abilities, of high integrity, and of fine administrative capacity, and with a character of justice tempered with mercy, his friends will be greatly disappointed if he makes anything less than an able, efficient, and just Provost Marshal General.

A letter from General Sherman, which treats incidentilly of our administration, of the war, and prospects of the rebellion, and which closes with a sentence that clangs on manly ears with a ring of a viking's sword leaping from its scabboard: "My idea is that every young and middle-aged man ought to be proud to fight for the integrity of his country. I would like to see all trade and commerce absolutely cease until this conflict is over; and all who can fight, and won't fight, ought to be killed or banished; and those who won't support those who do fight should be denationalized."

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF
NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside !

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living, P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer ; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc , as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, MCLENAN, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials ; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear , and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era ; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country ; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample ; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr J. Robinson entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by MISS M. E BRADDON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its fat, columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals on the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance : Single copies, $2 50 a year ; three copies, $7 , six copies, $13 ; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 20 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage

Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State. Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

Official Paper of the County

The State Legislature was organized on Tuesday at noon, by the selection of the following officers:

In the House—Thos H. Armstrong Speaker.

Andrew C. Dunn—Chief Clerk.
Sol. Snow—Assistant Clerk.
J. K. Arnold—Enrolling Clerk.
R. C. Mitchell—Engrossing Clerk.
F. M. West—Serg't. at Arms.
-- Mortimer—Fireman.
Rev. Cyrus Brooks—Chaplain.
Senate—E. B. Ames, Sec'y.
G. P. Wilson—Assistant Sec'y.
F. A. Noble—Chaplain.

We call attention to the card of Dr. A. Welch, of Rochester. Those having decayed teeth will find it profitable to call on him.

Our Carrier Boy returns thanks to those who have so kindly remembered him, with a New Year's fee. In consequence of sickness he has been unable to furnish an address, as is usual, but nevertheless his heart is with them in "a Happy New Year."

"Secure the image while the day is bright"—and in order to do this call at the Photograph rooms of Mrs. Levan & Miss Gail during this beautiful season of weather, and get a dozen or more life-like pictures, while they can be had so reasonably low.

"A Happy New Year" says Randall of the Clothing Emporium, and with thanks for past favors, still solicits a share of public patronage, and will endeavor to suit all who may want anything in his line. Give him a call.

"Call at Lewis & Frisbie's and get one of those Family Expenditure Diary's.— They are a most convenient article— in which you may keep an account of all moneys received and expended.— They have just received a good assortment of School books, Blank books, Diarys Stationery, &c. Call and see them.

Telegraph operators inform us that "there is no news of importance from the War Department" but we have the intelligence that the [illegible] on those new new goods, which White & Marks are constantly placing in store, is being successful and rich prizes are being secured for a reasonable compensation.

It is suggested that the present season of [illegible] weather is especially to afford the [illegible] opportunity to secure a warm suit of clothes from that well selected stock of S. Randall, and those who do not choose to suffer from change that is about to occur, will not slight the opportunity afforded them.

Messrs. Demaray & Matthews are pleased to inform their friends that they will give their third Soiree this (Friday) evening, Jan. 6th, 1865. The orchestra will be composed of Messrs. B. Brice and Wm. Matthews, first and second violinists, Mr. Wiedemann, bass viol, and B. Brakelsberg, German Accordeon.

Parties wishing to become pupils would do well to commence between this and the middle of the present month.

Lessons will be given till the first of May next.

In addition to the general features, the AMERICAN ORGAN contains the most useful consolidation of the latest improvements. They have from one to twelve stops. The harmony of sound is superb. Much care and labor is exercised to make them as complete as possible, and they may be obtained of S. D. & H. W. SMITH, who are the sole Manufacturers.

W. W. KIMBALL, 142 Lake street Chicago, Wholesale Depot for the Northwest.

COUGH.—The administration of medicinal preperations in the form of a Lozenge, is of all modes the most eligible and convenient, more especially as regards a COUGH REMEDY. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" or Cough Lozenges allay irritation, which induces coughing, giving instant relief in Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Influenza, and Consumptive and Asthmatic complaints.

Through the kindness of Mr. Chapman we have been permitted to copy from his books the following items which will be of interest to our readers, showing the amount of personal property, the amount exempt from taxation &c. and the amount and value of stock in this county:

MARRIED:

On Wednesday evening, January 4th at the Mankato House, by the Rev. Thomas Day, Mr. SOLOMAN TURPENNING and Miss JANE VINCENT, both of the town of Courtland, Nicolett Co, Minnesota.

THE STAR FAMILY PAPER.—We print elsewhere the NEW YORK MERCURY'S novel and telling prospectus for 1865, which gives a fair idea of the tact and enterprise of the oldest, ablest, and most reliable literary weekly in America.

Its attractions for the coming year are unusually clever and numerous, and its serial stories always fresh, racy, and exciting. The miscellaneous features announced seem to us, who speak of the paper from long personal conversance with it, to constitute of themselves splendid inducements to subscribers. Its unrivalled circulation enables the publishers to supply it at lower rates than any of its less pleasing and successful contemporaries.

Went and Got Left.

A comfortable old couple sat a seat or two in front of us on the railroad, during one of the hottest days of summer. The journey was evidently one of the events of their lives, and their curiosity excited the attention of the passengers. At a way station the old gentleman stepped out to get a drink, or buy a doughnut, and heard the bell only in time to rush to the door of the eating and see the train move off without him. The old lady in her seat had been fidgeting, looking out of the window in her anxiety for his return, and when she saw his plight, his frantic gestures for the train to stop, as it moved away, she exclaimed:

"There, my old man has got left! he has! there see; he has! Wa'll," she continued, sitting back in her seat again, "I'm glad on't—it's always been Ma'am you'd get left, all my life long, and now he's gone and got left and I'm glad on't."

Her candid reflection on the accident and evident satisfaction she felt in the fact that it was the old man and not her, that was left, was greeted by a round of laughing applause. Not a few of the ladies in the car delighted that it was the old man and not the woman who had made the blunder, "gone and got left."

U. S. 7:30 LOAN !

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect. They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15, persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium, and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

Poetry.

The Soldier's Appeal.

Munching at "hard tack" as hard as a brick,
Swallowing beef an inch or more thick,
Drinking black coffee, a quart very quick—
What wonder that soldiers by dozens are sick!

Marching all day through sunshine and rain,
Sleeping all night on the wet muddy plain,
Up before daylight and at it again—
What wonder the body is soon racked with [pain!

No letters from home for months at a time,
No money to spend—not even a dime—
Clothes covered with filth, shoes half filled with slime—
What subjects for chaps who dabble in rhyme!

There is danger to face and death to dare,
And the soldier must show his courage there,
Must fight, though he dies, be it foul or fair—
What a sight to witness in God's free air!

Oh friends at the North, you love us we know,
And your hearts are with us wherever we go,
Yet still, there is something that you can do—
What? traitors near you and not strike a blow

The rebels are brave and are fighting us well, Thinning our ranks with their balls shot and shell,
Yet we fear far more I can truly tell—
What? why those Copperhead traitors of hell!

Oh! mighty Northland, awake! yes awake!
Let each loyal man beware of the "snake,"
And traitors home and abroad shall quake—
What but your fee love can now be the case!

Then arise in your strength and war shall end
No peace to traitors, but soldiers befriend,
And soon to our homes kind fortune will send—
What? why prosperity sweet peace and free men.

Select Miscellany.

"EYES OPEN."

"Our minister said in his sermon, last evening," said Mrs. Beach, the wife of a prosperous wholesale dry-goods merchant on Market street, as she dusted her mantel ornaments of porcelain and marble, on Monday morning, "that we who wanted to do good must be on the constant 'look out' for opportunities: that God does not find our works, and bring it ready-fitted and prepared to our hand; but spreads the world before us, and we are to walk through it as Christ and the Apostles did, with 'eyes open,' looking for the sick and suffering, the poor and the oppressed.

"Now, I'm certain," continued the lady, as she replaced a marble Diana in the centre of the mantel, "I should like to do some good every day; one feels so much better when they go to rest at night; and I'll just keep my 'eyes open' to-day, and see if I come across any opportunities that, under ordinary circumstances, I should let slip."

Half an hour later, Mrs. Beach was in the nursery, with the washerwoman, who had come for the clothes. "I wish Mrs. Simms," she said, as she heaped the soiled linen into the basket, "that you would get Tommy's aprons ready for me by Wednesday. We are going out of town, to remain until Saturday, and I shall want a good supply on hand for such a careless little scamp as he is."

"Well, I'll try, ma'am," said the washerwoman; "I've got behind hand a good deal since Sammy had the whooping cough; but now he's better, I must try to make up for lost time."

"Has he had the whooping-cough?—Poor little fellow! How old is he?" questioned the lady.

"He was three last April, ma'am."

"And Tom is four," mused the lady. "Look here, Mrs. Simms; won't you just open the lower drawer of that bureau, and take out those four green worsted dresses in the corner? Tom's outgrown them, you see since last winter but they're almost as good as new. Now, if you want them for little Sammy, they'll do nicely, without altering, I think."

'Want them, Mrs. Beach!' answered the washerwoman, with the tears starting into her dim eyes, 'I haven't any words to thank you, or to tell you what a treasure they'll be. Why, they'll keep the little fellow as warm as toast all winter.'

'Well, I'll place them on the top of the clothes,' said the lady, smiling to herself, as she thought, 'My eyes have been open once.

Not long afterward Mrs. Beach was on her way to market, for she was a notable housekeeper, when she met a boy who had lived a short time in her family the year before, to do errands, wait on the door, &c. He was a bright, good-hearted, merry faced lad, and had been a great favorite with the family, and Mrs. Beach had always felt interested in him; but this morning she was in quite a hurry, and would have passed the child with a cordial, but hasty 'How are you, Joseph, my boy? Do come and see us,' had it not struck her that Joseph's face did not wear its usual happy expression. She paused, as the memory of last night's sermon flashed through her mind, and asked, 'Is anything the matter with you, Joseph?—You don't look as happy as you used to.'

The boy looked up a moment, with a half doubting, half confiding expression, into the lady's face; the latter triumphed: 'Mr. Anderson's moved out of town,' he said, pushing back his worn, but neatly brushed cap from his hair, 'so I've lost my place; then little Mary's sick, and that makes it very bad just now.'

'So it does,' answered Mrs. Beach, her sympathies warmly enlisted. 'But never mind, Joseph; I remember only night before last my brother said he would want a new errand boy, in a few days for his store, and he'd give a good one two dollars a week. Now, I'll see him to-day, and get the situation for you, if you like.'

The boy's whole face brightened.—'Oh! I shall be so glad of it, Mrs Beach.'

'And see here, Joseph; I'm going to market, and perhaps we can find something nice for little Mary.' The lady remembered that Joseph's mother, though a poor seamstress, was a proud woman, and felt that this would be a delicate way of presenting her gift.

So she found some delicious pears and grapes, and a nice chicken, to make some broth for Mary, whom, she learned, was ill with fever, before she proceeded to do her own marketing. But it was a pity that the lady did not see Joseph as he sprang into the chamber where little Mary lay moaning wearily on her bed, while her mother sat stiching busily in one corner, and held up the chicken and the fruit, crying 'Good news! good news! I've got all these nice things for Mary, and a place at two dollars a week!'

Oh! how little Mary's hot fingers closed over the bunches of white grapes, while the sewing dropped from her mother's fingers, as the tears did down her cheeks.

It was evening, and Mrs Beach sat in the library, absorbed in some new book when she heard her husband's step in the hall. Though the morning had been so pleasant, the afternoon was cloudy, and the day had gone down in a low, sullen, penetrating rain.

Now Mrs Beach loved her husband with the love of a true wife [illegible] not a particularly [illegible] and the first beauty [illegible] married life had settled [illegible] what bare, every day, matter of fact existence. But her heart was warm to-night, warm with the good deeds of the day, and remembering her resolution of the morning, she threw down her book, and ran down the stairs.

'Henry, dear,' said the soft voice of the wife, 'has the rain wet you all? Let me take off your coat for you.'

'Thank you, Mary; I don't think I'm anywise injured. But you may help me just for the pleasure of it;' and he stood still while she removed the heavy coat, with all that softness of touch and movement which belongs to a woman. She hung it up, and then her husband drew her to his heart, with all the old lover-tenderness.

'You are very thoughtful of me, Mary, my wife,' he said.

And there was music in Mrs. Beach's heart as she went up stairs—[illegible] set to the words 'Eyes open! eyes open!'

Home! Sweet Home!

That wide, open, friendly fireplace with its lively crackling mirth, or its sweet twilight embers, always appears to me the meet emblem of a contented, great heart, answering back to your own joy, and, lightning up your shadows. And sometimes, surrounded by strangers, the object of dull remark, or cold criticism or ignorant condemnation, how have I pictured to myself a world of warmth like unto the great fireplace at home, where every man should be greeted with, 'Welcome! welcome, brother!' and a comfortable, snug corner of his own; and where all answer to each other with the sympathy and cheer of shining faces over the glowing hearth. Look kindly on the stranger, gentle friend, thy looks are either so many sweet, sunny beams, that betoken the common fellowship of true humanity, or so many icy rays that chill him to the heart—that freeze little by little the fountains of love—that fill him with distrust of the world and hatred of his species. No man knows for how much of others' wickedness and wretchedness he may be held accountable. A look of thine may breed sorrow in thy brother, though a stranger. A look of thine may do a good deed, may shine from thy face to his face, and be reflected, like a ray of the sun, over half the globe.

Live, ye gentle scenes of home! Light up, ye bright fires of domestic hearth! Glow, ye pleasant fancies of the wood fire! Smile ever, ye dimpled portraits on the wall of childhood! Come in ye sweet lilac breezes that rustle through the cozy curtains, the blossoms of youth and the airy old cobwebs of memory are shivering in your light! Place may change, friends come and go, hearts grow cold or wear away beneath the drops of care till they crumble and molder beneath the clods of the valley but a pleasant home, where childhood lived and loved, never dies. The memory thereof is a fortune, an indestructible faculty of self renewing joy.

What is heaven itself but the renewal of the fresh hearts and delightful pleasures of childhood's home? A happy child looks forward to a happy home above. The hireling initiated but too early in guilt and misery, or in misery without guilt, he seldom hopes for better accommodation at the journey's end; and the shadow of his childhood descends before him to the grave.

Only A Printer.

"He is only a printer," was the remark of a leader in the circle of aristocracy—of the codfish quality.

Well, who was the earl of Stanhope? He was only printer. What is Prince Frederick William, who married the Princess Royal of England? He too was only a printer. Who was William Caxton one of the fathers of literature? He was only a printer. Who are Horace Greely, Speaker Colfax, G. D. Prentice, Chas. Dickens, M. Theirs, Douglas Jerold, Bayard Taylor, Geo. P. Morris, J. Gales, C. Richardson, N. P. Willis, and Senators Dix, Cameron and Niles? They too were all printers. What was Benjamin Franklin? A printer. Artemus Ward, Doesticks, Petroleum Nasby, Dow, Jr. O. F. C. Kerr, and many others of our brightest wits, are printers.

Every person cannot be a printer—brains are necessary.

Washington Sharing his Blanket with a Negro.

Throughout the Revolutionary war, Primus Hall was the body servant of Col. Pickering, of Massachusetts. He was free and communicative, and delighted to sit down with an interested listener and pour out those stories and absorbing anecdotes with which his memory was stored.

It is well known that there was no officer in the whole American army, whose memory was dearer to Washington, and whose counsel was more esteemed by him, than that of the honest and patriotic Colonel Pickering. He was on intimate terms with him, and unbosomed himself to him with as little reserve, as, perhaps, to any confident in the army. Whenever he was stationed within such a distance as to admit of it, he passed many hours with the Colonel, consulting him upon anticipated measures, and delighting in his reciprocated friendship.

Washington was, therefore, often brought into contact with the servant of Colonel Pickering, the departed Primus. An opportunity was afforded to the [illegible] a striking [illegible] these anecdotes [illegible] One of them is very slight, indeed, yet so peculiar as to be repeated with interest. The authenticity of both may be fully relied on.

Washington once came to Colonel Pickering's headquarters, and found him absent.

'It is no matter,' said he to Primus, 'I am greatly in need of exercise. You must help me to get some before your master returns.'

Under Washington's directions, the negro busied himself in some simple preparations. A stake was driven into the ground about breast high a rope tied to it, and the Primus would stand at some distance and hold it horizontally extended. The boys, the country over, are familiar with this plan of getting sport. With true boyish zest, Washington ran forward and backward for some time, jumping over the rope as he came and went until he expressed himself satisfied with the 'exercise.'

Repeatedly afterward, when a favorable opportunity offered he would say; 'come, Primus, I am in need of exercise;' whereat the negro would drive down the stake, and Washington would jump over the rope until he had exercised himself to his content.

On the second occasion the great General was engaged in earnest consevation with Colonel Pickering in his tent until the night had fairly set in. Head quarters were at a considerable distance, and Washington signified his preference to staying with the Colonel over night, provided he had a spare blanket and straw.

'O yes,' said Primus, who was applied to; 'plenty of straw and blankets—plenty.'

Upon this assurance Washington continued his conference with the Colonel until it was time to retire to rest. Two humble beds were spread side by side, in the tent, and the officers laid themselves down, while Primus seemed to be busy with duties that required his attention before he could sleep. He worked or appeared to work, until the breathing of the prostrate gentlemen satisfied him that they were sleeping; and then seating himself upon a box or stool, he leaned his head upon his hands to obtain such repose as so inconvenient a position would allow. In the middle of the night Washington awoke. He looked about, and descried the negro as he sat. He gazed at him awhile; and then spoke:

'Primus?' said he, 'Primus?'

Primus started up and rubbed his eyes.—

'What, General?' said he.

Washington arose up in his bed.—'Primus,' said he, 'what did you mean by saying you had blankets and straw enough? Here you have given up your blanket and straw to me, that I may sleep comfortably, while you are obliged to sit through the night.'

'It's nothing,' said Primus, 'it's nothing. I'm well enough. Don't trouble yourself about me, General, but go to sleep again. No matter about me, I sleep very good.'

'But it is matter—it is matter,' said Washington, earnestly, 'I can not do it, Primus. If either is to sit up, I will.—But I think there is no need of either sitting up. The blanket is wide enough for two. Come and lie down here with me.'

O, no, General,' said Primus, starting and protesting against the proposition. 'No; let me sit here. I'll do very well on the stool.'

'I say, come and lie down here!' said Washington, authoritatively. 'There is room for both, and I insist upon it!'

He threw open the blanket as he spoke, and moved to one side of the straw.—Primus professes to have been exceedingly shocked at the idea of lying under the covering with the Commander-in-Chief, but his tones were so resolute and determined that he could not hesitate. He prepared himself, therefore, and laid himself down by Washington, and on the same blanket the General and the negro servant slept until morning.

Love is a heavenly feast, which none but the sincere and honest partake. It is as impossible for any dishonest man truly to love, as for a hypocrite to go to heaven.

Reminiscences of Whittier.

A writer in the Springfield Republican narrates the following:

In the spring of 185—, I was a student out of health and out of funds. To be sure there was nothing remarkable in that for students are apt to be in that way. But it led me to ramble toward the sea, and that took me through Amesbury, the home of Whittier. I carried the universal black bag, filled with "pins, needles, thimbles, sewing-silk, &c.," which served me instead of a purse; to all intents and purposes, then, I was a peddlar—a class of men not generally mentioned the same day with the minister, nor thought much of in comparison with quarterly meetings.

When I came into Amesbury I was tired and hungry with a long day's walk without a dinner. I had little money in my pockets, so depended on the bag. It was near dark and Saturday night. So I began the inquiry for an abiding place for the Sabbath; but what right had I, a peddlar, to expect any family to put themselves out to accommodate me? "There was a good hotel in the place." But with me a hotel was out of the question. And as I trudged on, I got substantially the same reply. At length I turned into Friend street; I had entirely forgotten that the "Quaker poet" lived in town. And going on indiscriminately in my applications, I approached a neat cottage, embowered in shrubbery, and the yard adorned with flowers, and through an open window I observed a table piled up with books and newspapers. "Probably a lawyer or a minister," said I; "little luck for me here." I rang the bell, and a tall spare man, with prominent features and mild countenance opened the door. From the portraits I had seen I recognized him in a moment. I had stumbled upon the poet.

"Good evening, young man," said he.

I responded. But I was abashed, and observing a hesitation in my manner, he invited me in. The benevolence of his voice gave me assurance.

"I am a peddlar, sir," said I, "in pursuit of a place to spend the Sabbath."

"I would keep you with great pleasure," said he, "had I a place for you to sleep; unfortunately there is a quarterly meeting of Friends here, and I have my beds full. But there is a good man lives in that house, (pointing) who will—but you look tired," said he; "are you well?"

I confessed I was not.

"I think Mr. Barnard will do well by you," said he; "if he cannot, come back to me. I am sorry to send you any further. It is a thing I never do when I can avoid it.

I went to Mr. Barnard's presenting my request, and was at once received. But I had hardly disposed of my bag and hat when Whittier entered.

"You looked so pale, young man," said he, "that I felt I had not done right, and came on after you lest you would be compelled to walk further. I happened to think I could sleep on the sofa myself."

He then sat down and talked with me for an hour, while the good wife was preparing supper, as if I had been an equal. I was, in fact, for he compelled me to be. He would not even receive my thanks for his kindness.

The next morning he invited me with him to their meeting, at their plain wooden meeting house on the edge of the wood near the village. He showed me all the conveniences of the house, how they divided it by sliding partitions, &c. He then took me into his seat, and sat down with his hat on. Plain, intelligent prim looking men, tidy women and neat children came in and sat down quietly. There was never a doubt what each one had on; they were all dressed plainly and alike. Then Whittier gave me his right hand. I shook it, and others shook each his neighbors hand and the congregation departed. The spirit had not moved; not a word had been spoken.

As we seperated at the gate of Mr. Barnard's yard, he bade me the kindest of good-days, and I stood and gazed after him with more admiration and reverence than I ever felt for any other great man.

The President's Religion.

A good deal is being said about the President's religion. The Washington Chronicle relates the following.

"On Thursday of last week, two ladies from Tennessee came before the President, asking the release of their husbands, held as prisoners of war at Johnson's Island. They were put off until Friday, when they came again, and were again put off until Saturday. At each of the interviews one of the ladies urged that husband was a religious man, and on Saturday, when the President ordered the release of the prisoners, he said to this lady: 'You say your husband is a religious man; tell him when you meet him that I say I am not much of a judge of religion, but that in in my opinion, the religion that sets men to rebel and fight against their government because, as they think, that government does not sufficiently help some men to eat their bread in other men's faces, is not the sort of religion upon which people can get to heaven.'"

"Talk of the inferiority of the female mind!" exclaimed an excited oratorian, "why Mr. President, woman possesses infinitely more of the divine afflatus than man, and any one who attempts to get around her in these days will have to start very early in the morning.

"ONCE."

"Did you ever attend the theatre?" said a young man to a blue-eyed maiden, who hung on his arm as they promenaded the streets of New York, one mild evening in October. The girl's cheek crimsoned, as she answered the interrogatory in the negative, and added.

"My mother has taught me from childhood that it is wrong to attend such places.

"But your mother formed perhaps, improper prejudices, from exaggerated accounts given by others; for I have often heard her say she never attended one in her life."

He spoke eloquently of the drama, comedy and tragedy, and dwelt with pathos on the important lessons there to be learned of human nature.

"Go with me once" said he "and judge for yourself.

Persuasion and curiosity triumphed over maternal precept and example, as she hesitatingly replied:

"I'll go but once"

She went, and in that theatre a charm came over her like that which the serpent sent forth, from [illegible] She went again and ag[illegible] that house of mirth and [illegible] led to one, from the po[illegible] she never returned.

Around a centre-table, where an astral lamp was shedding its mild light, sat three girls, one holding a pack of cards. At the back of her chair stood a young man who for years had successfully resisted every effort made by his companions to induce him to learn the characters of cards.

"Come," said she, "we want one to make out our game. Play with us once, if you never play again."

Her eye, cheek, and lip conspired to form an eloquent battery, which sent forth its attack upon the fortress of good resolutions, in which he had long stood secure, until it fell like the walls of an ancient city when jarred by the fearful battering ram. He learned the cards and played. A few weeks afterward I was passing his door at a late hour, and a candle was shedding its dim light through the window. Since that time I have looked from my chamber. Nearly every hour of the night, from the close of day till early morn, and seen the light faintly struggling through the curtain that screened the inmates of that room from every eye save His who seeth alike in darkness and noonday. Gaming brought with it disease, and death came just as he had numbered the half of his threescore years and ten. During his last hours I was sitting by his bedside when he fixed on me a look I shall never forget, and bade me listen to his dying words:

"I might have been a different man from what I am; but it is now too late. I am convinced that there is a state of being beyond the grave; and when I think of the retribution which awaits me in another world, I feel a horror which language is inadequate to describe." These were among the last words he ever uttered.

The junior class of a Southern College had assembled in a student's room to spend the night in riot and debauch. Amid the crowd was one who had never recited a bad lesson since his matriculation. In his studies he was "head and shoulders" above the class. That day he had failed. A shade of the deepest gloom came over him, and he was melancholy. But the wine and jest passed round while he felt like Lucifer in Eden, where all was joy and gladness around him. Said a classmate—

"Come, Bob, quaff this bumper, and it will make you feel bright as a hermit's lamp."

The tempter whispered in his ear, "Drink once, and forget the past." A powerful struggle seemed to be going on in his mind for a moment; but at last he silently shook his head and, retiring from the room, gave vent to a flood of tears.

That boy never drank—not even once. He took the valedictory [illegible] president of a college.

Once! Oh, on this st[illegible] turned for weal or wo the [illegible] deathless spirit. Cæsar paused [illegible] on the banks of the Rubicon; but it was a pause, like that which nature makes when gathering her elements for the dread tornado. Eve ate the forbidden fruit but once, and her countless posterity have felt the fearful consequences resulting from so rash an act. Reader, remember ONCE.

GEN. and MRS. GRANT.—"Burleigh," of the Boston Journal, thus describes the appearance of Gen. Grant and his wife:

General Grant was dressed in a new and elegant fitting uniform of high rank. No likeness that I have seen does him justice. His face is bronzed, but his eye is keen. His form is slim, and his stature is a little under size; but all in fine proportion. Mrs. Grant is a quiet and lady-like in her manners. She was dressed in modern traveling costume, and seemed to be averse to parade or ceremony, and is eivdently more at home amid her domestic duties than in a crowd of sight seers, looking for lions. A plain straw bonnet trimmed with green ribbon, and a large woolen traveling shawl over a gray alapaca dress, completed her costume.

ONE.—One hour gained by rising early, is worth a month in the year.

One hole in the fence will cost times as much as it will to fix it at once.

One diseased sheep will spoil a flock.

One drunkard will keep a family poor, and make them misereable.

One wife that is always telling how fine her neighbor dresses, and how little she can get, will look pleasanter if she talks about something else.

One husband that is penurious or lazy and deprives his family of necessary comforts such as their neighbors enjoy, is not desirable husband as he ought to be.

One good newspaper is one good thing in every family.

One unruly animal will teach all others in company bad tricks; and the Bible says, "one sinner destroyeth much good."

THE DEFEAT OF MR. WILKINSON FOR THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

We regret to announce that the Senatorial contest just over has resulted in the defeat of the best Senator of the West—the Hon. Morton S. Wilkinson. In the nominating caucus, after thirty-two ballots, Hon. Daniel S. Norton, of Winona received twenty seven votes to Senator Wilkinson twenty-one, twenty-five being necessary to elect.

The Senator owes his defeat to the chicanery and trickery of a few politicians who, unable to secure the nomination of their candidate, made a combination with their bitter enemy. His friends stuck by him to the last, though every effort was made to break his strong forces; while the opposition fluctuated from one candidate to another, anxiously waiting for something to turn up, until finally, on the excitement of the moment, they united on Mr. Norton and elected him much against the wishes of the Windom portion of Norton's supporters. They, thoughtlessly blundered into supporting their bitterest enemy, a step which, no sooner taken, was sincerely regretted.

Senator Wilkinson's friends come out of this contest with the highest honor and credit to themselves. They refused to make any combinations or pledges to further any selfish railroad or other projects, merely to obtain votes for their candidate. They supported him through the whole contest because they believed in him, and felt that he, of all men in Minnesota, was most worthy to fill the highest position of honor which a State can confer upon one of her citizens. And we believe that a large majority of the true believers in Republicanism in this State will sincerely regret that one of the most fearless and able leaders of our cause has been thus shamefully defeated. The very fact that the opposition fluctuated from one candidate to another during the caucus, trying to unite their strength on Windom, and Swift, and Rice, and then on Norton shows that there was no principle actuating the prime movers in their action, but only the selfish ends to gain which influence mere politicians.

Senator Wilkinson has the proud satisfaction of feeling that his friends never deserted him during the whole contest, while Mr. Norton at one time received only four votes, and by an accident finally received a bare majority. If we had had a second choice as to who should be Senator it would certainly have been Mr. Norton. He conducted himself very courteously and gentlemanly during the contest, and we regard him as the best fit for the senatorial position next to the present incumbent.

We have the best of feeling towards the friends of Mr. Norton who stood by their leader, and who expressed in the contest none but the best of wishes for Senator Wilkinson's success, next to the success of their own candidate.

We wish we could speak as favorably of the course Mr. Windom and his friends pursued. Had he possessed one sentiment of honor, he would never, in violation of his repeated pledges and assurances, have been a candidate against the present Senator. Mr. Wilkinson's friends in this section have always been the warm friends of Mr. Windom, and at great sacrifice to themselves, supported him warmly and successfully two years ago against a candidate from our own county, who possessed far more ability. They entered in the Congressional fight last fall and supported him on the expressed declaration, made by himself, that he was not, and would not be a candidate. He said through one of his leaders, two years ago, that he would never be a Senatorial aspirant against Mr. Wilkinson, and yet, notwithstanding all this he is not only an aspirant for the position and at his seat in Congress not a month ago, declared that he should certainly be elected, but he allowed his friends to indulge in a style of abuse and calumny against Senator Wilkinson which was entirely uncalled for, and did not prove of any material benefit to himself. His adherents made gross personal attacks on Mr. Wilkinson's private character, because they could find no tainted spot upon his public record. They brought everything to bear upon his supporters to induce them to desert the Senator, and endeavored to get one of his friends drunk to prevent his attending the caucus. Was there ever treachery so base, friendship so rewarded, or gratitude so blinded by selfishness as has been shown by this "dead cock in the pit?"

How near Mr. Windom came to being elected can be seen by examining the result of the caucus balloting, elsewhere, where he showed himself the weakest of the candidates.

Well did indiscreet Tommy Simpson, the right hand bower of Mr. Windom, express his deep regrets, at the action of Windom after the contest was over, by remarking at the International, "Windom is the worst beaten man of the whole crowd. He will never rise again."

As we said before, Mr. Norton we regard as the best man of the opponents of Senator Wilkinson, and we hope and believe that the same perseverance and industry which he has evinced for the last four years in looking after the welfare of his friend Windom, he will evince as a Senator in looking after the interests of our whole State.

THE IMMORTAL TWENTY.

We publish below the list of ballotings in the caucus for the nomination of United States Senator. Among the twenty-three members who voted for Mr. Wilkinson were twenty true friends who stuck to him from first to last. This solid phalanx deserves great credit for their unflinching fidelity. Their ranks could not be broken, though the opposition sought repeatedly to draw them off. Mr. L. C. Harrington, our representative from this county, proved himself a devoted friend, and an able leader.

The Board of Enrollment will Meet at Mankato.

During our stay in St. Paul we called upon Colonel Averill, the Provost Marshall General of the State, and we are happy to be able to say to our readers that he has consented to allow the Enrolling Board, to meet at this place for a few days. The Board will meet at St. Peter on the 17th inst., and remain in session for one week. It will meet at Mankato on the 23rd inst., and will remain three or four days. We would urge upon all our citizens in this and counties south and west of us to take an active part in purging the enrollment lists of the names of those who are exempt, and see that they visit the Board for examination. Our quotas can be greatly reduced if this course is pursued.

The St. Paul papers publish a table showing the age, nativity, occupation, &c., of the different members of our present State Legislature, from which we obtain the following interesting information:

In the Senate there are eight farmers, six lawyers, three merchants, one mechanic, one lumberman, one physician, one tanner, one miller, one clerk, one railroad president, one railroad agent, one clergyman, one civil engineer, and one gentleman.

In the House of Representatives, there are eighteen farmers, twelve lawyers, six merchants, two clergymen, one laborer, one land agent, one grain dealer, one banker, one insurance agent, one manufacturer, one register of deeds, one book keeper, one soldier, two millers and one grain dealer.

By the above it will be seen that we have twenty-six farmers in the State Legislature, to eighteen lawyers, nine merchants, &c., &c. Surely the farming interests of the State will not be jeopardized by legislative enactments, this session.

Where Sherman is going—An Incident of the Grand Promenade in Georgia.

An elderly rebel, of the pot-gut persuasion, extensively dressed in jeans, and bearing a gold headed cane, came to General Sherman's headquarters one evening, to see what was up. He was treated well, and took his misfortune in losing negroes and stock very philosophically (as he couldn't help it) and seemed to comfort himself with saying that "things is going to the devil, any how, and it didn't make much difference how soon!" As he was taking his leave he asked; "What'r yer gwine from har, General?" Sherman looked at the old fellow quizzically for a moment, and replied: "Why pretty much where we damn please!" With this comforting assurance the gold-headed cane retired.

The mail from Sherman's army, by the Arago, reached the New York Post Office at 6¼ o'clock on Friday evening, and the last letter of more than two hundred thousand was dispatched by the Erie line at 4½ o'clock the next afternoon. It took fifteen men night and day to cancel the stamps. This was the largest mail ever received at that post office.

The Death of Mosby, the Guerrilla Chief.

On Tuesday, December 17, an expedition comprising the Thirteenth and Sixteenth New York and Eighth Illinois cavalry, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Clendennin, started to scout the country this side of the Blue Ridge in search of Mosby. On arriving at White Plains on Wednesday the command separated, and the Thirteenth and Sixteenth New York went toward Middleburg, and the Eighth Illinois by another road, towards Aldie.

The first named proceeded to Salem, and charged through the place, capturing three or four of Mosby's men, and chasing his brother, who was Mosby's adjutant, for some distance, but without capturing him. They skirmished all the way to Rectortown. From there they took across road to Middleburg, where they arrived about ten P. M. They discovered a rebel officer sitting at the supper table with an orderly, in a house a little off the road. There was a sentinel in front of the house, whom they fired upon, but he escaped.

The noise brought the officer to the door. He had a pistol in his hand, and when called upon to surrender, stepped back into the house. He was then fired upon, and a ball entered his bowels, mortally wounding him. The orderly was secured, but refused to tell who the officer was. There is no doubt, however, that he was the redoubtable Mosby; for, in addition to other evidence, a rebel mail has since been captured, which contained a letter from a Mrs. Stinson, a friend of Mosby, stating that Mosby had been killed, and describing the manner of his death which corresponds exactly with the account above given, and also stating that his body had been sent to his friends. Major Frazer was in command of this party.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Dec. 27.

It was reported on the streets yesterday that the daring and distinguished guerrilla chief, Colonel John S. Mosby, had been killed by the enemy. The story was that he was surrounded while dining at the house of a friend in Culpepper and ordered to surrender; that he drew his pistol and fired upon the enemy, when he was shot dead. But a telegram from Fredericksburg, dated the 25th, was received yesterday morning, stating that he had been shot, but not mortally wounded, and was in the hands of his friends. The question of his condition is, however, not yet definitely ascertained.

A gentleman who reached here yesterday from Fredericksburg learned there from two of Colonel Mosby's men, that their chief was shot through the abdomen while scouting in Prince William county. They further stated that the surgeon did not consider the wound mortal, though they themselves thought differently. This we are disposed to believe, is the correct rumor of the lamentable casuality. We heard last night that Colonel Mosby has been carried to Charlottesville.

The Mint Report—Our Bullion and Coinage.

The following report of the Director of the Mint, which will be found to contain many highly satisfactory as well as interesting facts, showing the increasing prosperity of the country, even under the difficulties of the times. The mineral resources of our territory have been wonderfully developed amid all the strife and turmoil of internal warfare, as is shown by the large deposits of bullion in the Mint and its branches, and the amount of coin circulated. It appears that the gold deposits for the fiscal year 1863 amounted to $23,986,939, the silver $933,818—a total of over twenty five millions of bullion. The coinage amounted to $21,649,345 in gold, $548,214 in silver and $463,800 in cents—making in all nearly forty-seven millions of coins of every denomination.

The taste exhibited in designing some of these coins has been miserable, the nickel cent particularly. Previous to 1835 the coinage, both in gold and silver, was very creditable; but since then a new mind appears to have devoted itself to make our metal currency as disreputable as possible. The coins of France, England, Belgium and the German States, whether of gold, silver or bronze, are beautiful to the eye and might almost be closed in a numismatic category; but, with the single exception of the new two cent piece, which is really handsome and sensible in design, we have not a presentable coin of modern issue.

The growth of the country from year to year is well illustrated in the fact that, although it is not yet a hundred years, the issue of money has been immense—the product almost entirely of our own soil, industry and labor. Since the adoption of the constitution the Mint has struck off very nearly a thousand millions of dollars, and last year was the most prosperous of any. This is a hopeful sign of what the country will be able to do when a few years of peace have given her recuperative powers a chance to develop themselves.—N. Y. Herald.

News from Rebel Papers.

New York, Jan. 10.

Late rebel papers show that Davis has now on his hands quarrels with the governments of Mississippi and Alabama.

The Richmond Whig says the recent alleged Peace mission of the two Blairs, entitled the United States to be considered the most impudent nation that has ever had an existence.

The Charleston Courier says Hood has butchered his troops as recklessly, according to the Richmond Sentinel, as ever Grant did.

The Richmond Whig prints testimony from a Savannah clergymen, Gen. Wayne, and Gen. Beauregard, that the reported atrocities charged upon Union prisoners at Milledgeville are wholly unfounded. Ladies of Milledgeville also write that no such violence was even attempted.

The Richmond Examiner ridicules the citizens' meeting at Savannah, saying it was composed of seventeen persons.

Sherman on the Battle of Shiloh.

Gen. Sherman wrote last summer, a letter to correct some mis-statement concerning the great battle of Shiloh or Pittsburgh Landing——mis-statements which affected General Grant, but which Grant has never noticed. This letter has just been made public.

By a considerable part of the people Grant has always been blamed for crossing his army over the Tennessee; and it has been charged, too, that he selected improper ground for his camps. Sherman shows that Major General Charles F. Smith selected the camp ground and battle field; and that it was chosen with admirable skill, so that the flanks of our army were guarded, and but a narrow front left open to the enemy's attack. It was General Smith, also, who caused the occupation of the western bank of the river—which Sherman believes to have been a wise movement. This is also the opinion of all military training with whom we have spoken upon the subject.

As to the conduct of the battle, Sherman writes some particulars which gives us a glimpse of the indomitable courage and self-possesion of Grant. He also causally explodes the old lie that Grant was absent from the battle-field until the afternoon.

"General Grant visited my division in person about 10 A. M., when the battle raged fiercest. I was then on the right. After some general conservation, he remarked that I was doing right in stubbornly opposing the progress of the enemy; and, in answer to my inquiry as to cartridges, told me he had anticipated their want, and given orders accordingly; he then said his presence was more needed over at the left." * * *

"About 5 P. M., before the sun set, General Grant came again to me, and after hearing my report of matters, explained to me the situation of affairs on the left, which was not so favorable. Still the enemy had not reached the landing of the boats. We agreed that the enemy had expended the furore of his attack, and we estimated our loss, and approximated our then strength, including Lew. Wallace's fresh division, expected each minute. He then ordered me to get all things ready, and at daylight the next day to assume the offensive. This was before General Buell had arrived, but he was known to be near at hand."

Sherman adds that the fighting on the second was light compared to that on the first. We are reminded by this letter of an incident, told us by a gentleman who was at Grant's headquarters on the evening of the first day's fight. A number of officers were gathered in a tent, discussing the battle: and most of them concurred in a somewhat gloomy view of affairs. "Here comes the General; let's hear what he say's," remarked one as Grant entered the tent. After a little silence, "Well, gentlemen, we had a rough time to-day," said Grant. There was a chorus of assent. But we'll whip them to-morrow, gentlemen—we'll drive them to-morrow that's certain," continued Grant; whereat, as our informant averred, some of the officers present made a wry face; they had expected an order to cross the river during the night and abandon the contest. But that was never a part of Grant's purpose.

Speaking of Grant's order to resume the defensive, Sherman writes:

"I remember the fact the better from General Grant's anecdote of the Donelson battle, which he told me then for the first time—that at a certain period of the battle he saw that either side was ready to give way, if the other showed a bold front, and he determined to do that very thing, to advance on the enemy, when as he prognosticated, the enemy surrendered. At four P. M. of April 6th, he thought the appearance the same and he judged, with Lew. Wallace's fresh division, and such of our startled troops as had recovered their equilibrium, he would be justified in dropping the defensive, and assuming the offensive in the morning."

A Colonel then serving on Grant's staff, related to us that during the night preceeding the final and successful attack, he was sent down the river to meet Grant who had ridden down to consult with Foote after darkness put a stop to the fighting. He was instructed to represent to General Grant that an attack was expected; that already upon one part of the lines the enemy had made a sortie, but were repulsed; and that there were fears of the result, in case a general attack was made by the troops then within Fort Donelson. Grant asked "Did you take any prisoners?" "Yes sir, a few." "Ride back at once, and overhaul their haversack; if they are full, be sure that the enemy is desperate, and bent on cutting his way out. Order, in that case, preparations for a general assault as quickly as possible."

The haversacks of the prisoners were examined, and found to contain, as Grant supposed, three day's provisions. If the enemy had meant to hold Fort Donelson, he would not have encumbered an attacking party with a heavy load of rations. Grant followed his aid, and ordered an immediate assault, which resulted in the surrender of the fort, and the rebel army within it.

Gen. Butler Removed.

New York, Jan. 10.

The Herald's City Point correspondent of the 8th, says Maj.-Gen. Butler has been removed by the President, from the position of the commander of the Army of the James, and the Department of Virginia and North Carolina. Gen. Ord, late in charge of the corps has succeeded temporarily to the Department position.

Prominent gentlemen of Lancaster, Ohio, have inaugurated a movement for presenting Gen. Sherman with a Homestead Farm, as a substantial and enduring token of their appreciation of his genius and his achievements, and as an evidence that they desire that his name and fame should be forever united with his native State. A meeting is to be held at Columbus, to select Trustees to receive contributions and carry out the proposition.

OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novelette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo. Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by MISS M. E. BRADDON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. IS the only Union Journal published at the capital of the State, and enters upon its 5th volume with an established reputation as by far the best newspaper published west of Chicago. It is a sufficient proof of the unrivalled and rapidly increasing popularity of the Press that in the short space of four years it has attained nearly TREBBLE the circulation of any other Newspaper published in the State—a fact of great importance to advertisers. This marvellous success is owing not only to the fact that its political sentiments are in harmony with those of the great majority of the people, but to its great superiority over all its rivals in every department of newspaper intelligence, being always ahead in news and foremost in the discussion of all subjects of public interest, and in advocacy of all measures for the material development of the State.

It has a far more extensive and intelligent war and State correspondence than any Minnesota journal, and better local and commercial reporters and several excellent poetical and literary contributors. It is, in short,

The best General Newspaper,
The best State Newspaper,
The best Local Newspaper,
The best Political Journal,
The best Statistical Journal,
The best Emigration Journal,
The best Commercial Journal,
The best Literary Journal,
The best Family Journal,

published in the State. And furthermore the Press is much the largest daily in Minnesota, and publishes daily one third more reading matter than any other. It is the Official Paper of the State and United States,

and the only paper in the State which publishes

The Laws of Congress and Legislature.

THE TRI-WEEKLY PRESS

contains nearly all the matter published in our Daily, and is a magnificent sheet, containing usually from 24 to 30 columns of reading matter.

THE WEEKLY PRESS

is confessedly the best Family Journal, published in the State, containing all the news of the week, and the choicest literary selections, tales, poetry, political intelligence, local news, markets, etc.

The great advance in the cost of composition, paper, and all the materials employed in the manufacture of a newspaper, compelled a slight advance in our subscription price in August last; and though the cost of publication has greatly increased since then, we still adhere to the terms then announced, which will be found annexed.

The Daily Pioneer is issued every morning in the week except Monday.

The Tri-Weekly Pioneer is issued every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and will be found a very convenient issue in localities which have not a daily mail. It contains all the matter, excepting advertisements, that appears in the daily edition.

THE WEEKLY PIONEER

Is the first newspaper issued in Minnesota and has been published constantly since 1849. It contains all the news matter of the Daily and Tri-Weekly editions and is the largest newspaper published in the State. We shall endeavor, as in the past, to make it emphatically a Family Paper, and a welcome visitor to every circle and fireside. In addition to the news of the day, the Pioneer will contain select and original tales, poetry, reviews, and other excellent literary matter. It is in every respect a popular newspaper, and the cheapest and the best in the State.

The General Character of The Pioneer.

The several editions will preserve the faithful and reliable epitome of the latest current news, received through our regular telegraphic reports, correspondence, &c. Special pains will be bestowed upon Commercial and Market Reports, [illegible] we go [illegible] which will be added a [illegible] interest in local matters, and in matters calculated to promote the material prosperity of our people. The general army news will be published promptly, [illegible] especial attention will be directed to intelligence relating to Minnesota troops in the field, giving the latest, most authentic and detailed information as to their locality and the conduct of officers and soldiers.

Political Affairs.

While the Pioneer will refrain from intemperate and factious opposition to the present Administration, it will fearlessly criticise every act that is deemed subversive to the public good; but in a spirit of candor and moderation designed to evoke light and truth, [illegible] principles of political economy. We shall advocate at all times "Democratic Principles and Democratic Men," and oppose every tendency and corruption of radical measures [illegible] In short, we shall labor to make the Pioneer the central organ of the Democratic and conservative sentiment of Minnesota, and being determined to [illegible] we have [illegible] confidently appeal to the Democracy for their support.

In these days when the party in power is lavish of its benefit to [illegible] has become [illegible] as it has grown venal, and [illegible] the Democratic press is excluded from patronage, it is especially important that the masses of the Democratic Party should support its papers. The City and County.

Official Paper of the County

We ask the indulgence of our readers this week for the lack of editorial and local items. We have but just returned to our post, and at too late an hour to prepare matter for this issue.

The New York Tribune.—Those who wish to join our Tribune club will please send in their names by the first of next week, as we shall then forward the list.

L. G. M. Fletcher has got his warehouse in running order, and is now ready to store wheat for farmers.

Our Quota.—We have some interesting items in regard to the draft, and the quota of this district, gathered from Colonel Averill, of St. Paul, which we are unable to publish this week.

A Donation for the benefit of Rev. Jenkin Jenkins, will be held at the Congregational Church, in South Bend on the 23d inst. All are invited to attend.

Donation.—There will be a donation visit for the benefit of the Rev. Mr. Chubbuck, held on Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., at Farmers Hall, in Garden City. A general invitation is extended.

We have appointed J. S. Parks our agent at Pleasant Mound. He is a fine, social gentleman, who believes in supporting his county paper, and is one of those true Republicans whom we delight to honor. He is authorized to receipt for monies on subscriptions.

The State Legislature met in joint convention on Tuesday last to elect a United States Senator. Daniel S. Norton the Republican nominee, received 46 votes, to James George, Democrat, 13. Senator Porter, Democrat from this district, voted for Mr. Norton.

The Mite Society.—Another of these popular gatherings came off at City Hall on Monday evening last. There was a larger attendance than at any previous meeting, and everyone enjoyed the season finely. A fine collection was taken.

Musical Convention.—A musical convention will be held in this place on Thursday next, under the direction of Prof. W. E. Hawley. It will continue three days, and close on Saturday evening with a grand concert. The exercises will be interspersed with criticisms on style, taste, and all matters that go to make up an effective programme.—Tickets of membership $1,00. Arrangements are being made, we understand, to entertain singers from abroad.

Lots of Fun.—Joe Kimball Musical Comedian, (The Medicine Man) gave a concert at City Hall last evening, appearing in character on the occasion. Of course every one who wished to enjoy a hearty laugh was present. He gives a concert at St. Peter this evening.

Promoted.—Our excellent young friend Captain Wm. C. Durkee is again in luck having received a position on Gen. Pile's staff, as Chief of Ordnance, and Assistant Inspector General, at Santiago, Texas. The Captain enlisted as a private in Co. E. and has arrived at his present position mainly through his individual exertions.

The Senatorial question having been settled by the nomination of the successful candidate, it will be well for our readers to still remember that Randall's Clothing Emporium is the place to get the worth of your money, as he has marked his goods down, and wishes to close out his stock within the next thirty days.

Enrolling Officers.—The following are the enrolling officers, appointed by Marshal Pugh, in Brown county Richard Fisher for the towns of New Ulm and Milford.

Chas. Roos for the towns of Cottonwood, Sigel, Linden and Leavenworth.

For Renville, and Redwood counties, George Jacobs.

For Wattonwan county, Joseph Flanders.

Notice of Religious Services.—The second quarterly meeting of the M. E. Church for Mankato, will be held on Saturday and Sunday, January 21 and 22, in City Hall.

In consequence of other arrangements there will be no preaching on Saturday afternoon. The quarterly Conference will meet at the Parsonage at 7 o'clock P. M. to transact the regular business. Brethren—members of the conference—please be present, on the Sabbath. The services will be, Love Feast in the morning at 9 o'clock. Preaching at 11 o'clock by the Presiding Elder. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper directly after preaching. Sabbath School at 2½ o'clock. Preaching in the evening at 7 o'clock by the Presiding Elder.

The usual collection to meet the claim of the Elder on this station will be taken up after each sermon.

THOMAS DAY, Pastor.

Wood Sawers.—The high school Wood Sawing Club, was out on its second campaign last Saturday. The boys made rather a gay appearance marching through the streets with their arms—saws, saw-horses, and axes, shouldered with most precise military style.

The wood piles of some half dozen of our soldiers families, were completely demolished.

Gleason's Pictorial Dollar Weekly for this week, we have just received. It is a beautiful paper of sixteen pages, and is the first number for the new year. The price being only one dollar per annum, has placed it within the reach of all. Published every week by F. Gleason, 22 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

Brown's Bronchial Troches, advertised in another column, are highly recommended for public speakers and others, for the relief of colds and to clear the voice. Their efficacy is strongly attested by congressmen, clergymen and singers, who use them. Among the certificates to their merits we observe letters from Henry Ward Beecher, N. P. Willis, E. H. Chapin and others of eminence.—N. Y. Ev'g Post.

The American Organ, manufactured by S. D. & H. W. Smith, are worthy of note for their sterling quality and exterior beauty added to their fine, sweet tone of the flute. They are eminently suitable for Churches, Sunday schools and Lodges, and are sold from $80 to $450

The Weekly Union.

"Only a Laborer."

'The cars ran off the track to-day,'' Miss J. said to me, not long since.

''Indeed! Was any one injured?'' I asked.

'Yes, one man killed; but he was only a laborer.'

'Only a laborer! Was he not an honest man?'

'I believe so. Indeed, I heard that he was highly respected by his friends and employers.'

'Had he a family?'

'Yes, a wife two children. But why do you ask? He was only a laborer.'

'Only a laborer! We he the worse for that?'

'Pshaw, you are gloomy, and I will look for getter company,' said she; and flinging back her bright curls, that had fallen over her face, she glided from the room.

'Only a laborer,' I pondered, when she was gone Yet he was a fel low creature with hopes and fears like ourselves. He had an honest generous soul, and won golden opinions from all who knew him. Yet he was 'only a laborer,' and was despised by those who had their coffers full of paltry gold. 'Only a laborer.' and yet his death had made one happy home desolate. A young widow sits with clasped hands and stony eyes, gazing out upon nothing, nor heeding that it is growing cold within, while little ones, with pattering feet, run often to the window to look for one who never will come.

'Only a laborer!' Did the angels who bear weary souls home, while they carried him away, pause outside the gates of heaven and say; 'We cannot take him in, for he was only a laborer?'

Long Dresses.

"We do not see one lady in ten walking the streets," (says a venturesome cotemporary,) without a constant fussing and fidgeting with the long skirts of her dress. Some pin them up at regular, spaces, giving them a very rumpled appearance; others wear 'pages,' pulling up the dress just as our grandmothers used to do when they went to scrub the kitchen; others fancifully seize the sidebreadths holding them in front having the appearance of a desperate determination of sitting down the first convenient opportunity. Some walk on, letting their dress hang and are quickly brought up on the front breadth, stumbling, flounder, pull up and try it again.

New all this could be avoided. Modesty and respect for the opinion of mankind demand a reformation in this matter. We have only given a fair weather view of this matter. If ladies would put a quarter of a yard less in the length of their dresses, they would save the amount the goods cost and much public observation.

Poetry.

From the Boston Leader.

THE SOLDIER'S DOG.

He starts from the hearth with a low, sad whine,
As the night-wind rattles the casement frame,
And looks at me with eyes that shine
As if through tears when I speak your name.
Yonder your empty chair by the wall
Stands, half in the shadow and half in the light,
And the clock ticks in the silent hall
Like a shuddering pulse of the dreary night.

A click of the latch at the garden gate,
Some sound like steps on the upper floors,
In the still long hours when we sit and wait—
Perhaps for your face at the open doors—
And sigh at last as the ilex tree,
Shakes on the pane, and the fancy flies,
Then he lays his shaggy head down on my knee
And looks at me still with those wistful eyes.

Does not a thought of the summer dead,
E'er haunt him, following mute and slow
Down the dim old paths we used to tread
In the purple mornings of long ago?
Some long spent wind in the bearded grain,
Some lightsome carol on hedge or thorn,
Lost echoes caught from the reapers strain
Among the laurels and shining corn.

He listens, I think, for your footsteps still,
In the depths of the woodlands, gray and old,
Where the comfortless storms go sobbing at will
And the maples are casting their tawny gold—
For the lightsome call that he used to hear
Through the sharp dead rustle of leaf and spray
But the old ways now are lonely and sear,
And the roar of the cannon is far away.

Far, far away, old Rover and we Must wait at the shadowy hearth alone,
Haunted for aye by some tone of glee,
Some sleepless ghost of the glad days gone;
Come close to my side—there! your rough paws so,
And your brown head here—let the ilex leaves
Whirl on the pane—ah, we all must know
That the heart that loves is the heart that grieves.

Away, where the bellowing batteries' light
Reddens the dark of the southern sky,
He has laid him down on the turf to-night,
Thinking, Rover, of you and I.
Grim with the smoke of the trench, or worn,
With the toil of the battle, yet seeing there
The lights of home through the distance burn,
And the faces that watch by his empty chair.

Ah, well! the hour grows dark and late,
There will come no step on the silent floors,
No hand to-night at our garden gate,
No smiling face at the open doors.
The shadows deepen along the wall,
But one star shines through the falling rain;
They trust the best who have staked their all—
Lie down, old friend, at my feet again.

Select Miscellany.

EUTHANASY.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

'You remember Anna May, who sewed for you about a year ago?' said one fashionably dressed lady to another.

'That pale quiet girl who made up dresses for the children?'

'The one I sent you.'

'O, yes; very well. I had forgotten her name. What has become of her? If I remember rightly, I engaged her for a week or two in the fall. But she did not keep her engagement.'

'Poor thing,' said the first lady, whose name was Mrs. Bell, 'she'll keep no more engagements of that kind.'

'Why so? Is she dead?' The tone in which these brief questions were asked, evinced no lively interest in the fate of the poor sewing girl.

'Not dead; but very near the end of life's weary pilgrimage.'

'Ah, well we must all die. I suppose—though it's no pleasant thing to think about. But, I am glad you called in this morning'—the lady's voice rose into a more cheerful tone—'I was just about putting on my things to go down to Mrs. Bobinet's opening. You intend going, of course. I shall be so delighted to have you along, for I meant to consult your taste about a bonnet.'

'I came out for a different purpose, altogether Mrs. Ellis,' said Mrs. Bell, and have called to ask you to go with me.'

'Where?'

'To see Anna May.'

'What! that poor seamstress of whom you just spoke?' There was a look of unfeigned surprise in the lady's countenance.

'Yes; the poor seamstress, Anna May. Her days in this world are nearly numbered, I was to see her yesterday, and found her very low. She cannot long remain on this side of the river of death. I am now on my way to her mother's house. Will you not go with me?'

'No, no,' replied Mrs. Ellis, quickly, while a shadow fell over her face; 'why should I go? I never took any particular interest in the girl. And, as for dying, everything in relation thereto is unpleasant to me. I cannot bear to think of death; it makes me shudder all over.'

'You have never looked in the face of death,' said Mrs. Bell.

'And never wish to,' replied Mrs. Ellis, feelingly. 'O, if it wasn't for this terrible consummation, what a joyful thing life might be!'

'Anna May has looked death in the face; but does not find his aspect so appalling. She calls him a beautiful angel, who is about to take her by the hand and lead her gently and lovingly to her Father's house.'

There came into the face of Mrs. Ellis a sudden look of wonder.

'Are you in earnest, Mrs. Bell?'

'Altogether in earnest.'

'The mind of the girl is unbalanced.'

'No, Mrs. Ellis; never was it more evenly poised. Come with me; it will do you good.'

'Don't urge me, Mrs. Bell. If I go, it will make me sad for a week. Is the sick girl in want of any comfort?—I will freely minister thereto. But I do not wish to look upon death.'

'In this aspect, it is beautiful to look upon. Go with me then. The experience will be something to accompany you through life. The image of a frightful monster is in your mind; you may now have it displaced by the form of an angel.'

'How strangely you talk, Mrs. Bell! How can death be an angel? Is any thing more terrible than death?'

'The phantom called death, which a diseased imagination conjures up, may be terrible to look upon; but death itself is a kind messenger, whose office it is to summon us from this world of shadow and changes, to a world of eternal light and unfading beauty. But come, Mrs. Ellis; I must urge you to go with me. Do not fear a shock to your feelings, none will be experienced.'

So earnest were Mrs. Bell's persuasions, that her friend at last consented to go with her. At no great distance from the elegant residence of Mrs. Ellis in an obscure neighborhood, was a small house, humble in exterior, and modestly yet neatly attired within. At the door of this house the ladies paused, and were admitted by a woman somewhat advanced in years, on whose mild face sorrow and holy resignation were beautifully blended.

'How is your daughter?' inquired Mrs. Bell, as soon as they were seated in the small, neat parlor.

'Not so strong as when you were here, yesterday,' was answered with a faint smile. 'She is sinking hourly.'

'But continues in the same tranquil, heavenly state?'

'O, yes.' There was a sweet, touching earnestness in the mother's voice. 'Dear child! Her life has been pure and unselfish; and now, when her change is about to come, all is peace, and hope, and patient waiting for the time when she will be clothed upon with immortality.'

'Is she strong enough to see any one?' asked Mrs. Bell.

'The presence of others in no way disturbs her. Will you walk up to her chamber, friends?'

The two ladies walked up the narrow stairs, and Mrs. Ellis found herself, for the first time, in many years, in the presence of one about to die. A slender girl, with large, mild eyes, and face almost as white as the pillow it pressed, was before her. The unmistakable signs of speedy dissolution were on the pale, shrunken features; not beautiful, in the ordinary acceptation of beauty, but from the pure spirit within. Radiant with heavenly light was the smile that instantly played about her lips.

'How are you to day, Anna?' kindly inquired Mrs. Bell, as she took the shadowy hand of the dying girl.

'Weaker in body than when you were here yesterday,' was answered, 'but stronger in spirit.'

'I have brought Mrs. Ellis to see you. You remember Mrs. Ellis?'

Anna lifted her bright eyes to the face of Mrs Ellis, and said:

'O, yes, very well; and she feebly extended her hand. The lady touched her hand with a feeling akin to awe. As yet, the scene oppressed and bewildered her. There was something about it that was dreamlike and unreal. 'Death! death!' she questioned with herself 'can this be dying?'

'Your day will soon close, Anna,' said Mrs. Bell, in a cheerful tone.

'Or, as we say,' quickly replied Anna, smiling, 'my morning will soon break. It is only a kind of twilight here. I am waiting for the day dawn.'

'My dear young lady,' said Mrs. Ellis with much earnestness, bending over the dying girl as she spake—the newness and strangeness of the scene had so wrought upon her feelings that she could not repress their utterance—'is all indeed as you say? Are you inwardly so calm, so hopeful, so confident of the morning? Forgive me such a question, at such a moment. But the thoughts of death has ever been terrible to me; and now, to see a fellow-mortal standing, as you are, so near the grave, and yet speaking in cheerful tones of the last agony, fills me with wonder. Is it all real? Are you so full of heavenly tranquility?'

Was the light dimmed in Anna's eyes by such pressing questions? Did they turn her thought too realizingly upon the 'last agony?' O, no! Even in the waning hours of life, her quickest impulse was to render service to another. Earnest, therefore, was her desire to remove from the lady's mind this fear of death, even though she felt the waters of Jordan already touching her own descending feet.

'God is love,' she said, with an emphasis that gave to the mind of Mrs. Ellis a new appreciation of the words. In his love he made us, that he might bless us with infinite and eternal blessings, and these await us in heaven. And now that he sends an angel to take me by the hand and lead me up to my heavenly home, shall I tremble and fear to accompany the celestial messenger? Does the child, long separated from a loving parent, shrink at the thought of going home, or ask the hours to linger? O, no!'

'But all is so uncertain,' said Mrs. Ellis, eager to penetrate farther into the mystery.

'Uncertain!' There was something of surprise in the voice of Anna May 'God is truth, as well as love; and both in his love and truth, He is unchangeable. When, as Divine Truth, He came to our earth, and spake as never man spake. He said, 'In my Father's house are many mansions. I go to prepare a place for you.' The heavens and the earth may pass away, Mrs. Ellis, but not a jot or tittle of the Divine Word can fail.'

'Ah, but the preparation for those heavenly mansions?' said Mrs. Ellis 'The preparation, Anna! Who may be certain of this?'

The eyes of the sick girl closed, the long lashes resting like a dark fringe on her snowy cheek. For more than a moment she lay silent and motionless. Then looking up, she answered:

'God is love. If we would be with him, we must be like him.'

'How are we to be like him, Anna?' asked Mrs. Ellis.

'He is love: but not a love of himself. He loves and seeks to bless others. We must do the same.'

'And have you. Anna—'

But the words died on the lips of the speaker. Again had the drooping lashes fallen, and the pale lids closed over the beautiful eyes. And now a sudden light shone through the transparent tissue of that wan face; a light, the rays of which none who saw them needed to be told were but the gleams of the heavenly morning just breaking for the mortal sleeper.

How hushed the room—how motionless the group that bent forward towards the one just passing away! Was it the rustle of angel's garments that penetrated the inward sense of hearing.

It is over. The pure spirit of that humble girl, who, in her sphere was loving, and true, and faithful, hath ascended to the God, in whose infinite love she reposed a childlike and unwavering confidence. Calmly and sweetly she went to sleep, like an infant on its mother's bosom, knowing that the Everlasting arms were beneath and around her.

And thus in the by ways and obscure places of life, are daily passing away the humble, loving, true hearted ones. The world esteems them lightly; but they are precious in the sight of God. When the time of their departure comes, they shrink not back in fear, but lift their hands trustingly to the angel messenger, whom their father sends to lead them up to their home in heaven. With them, is the true 'Euthanasy.'

'Is not that a new experience in life?' said Mrs. Bell, as the two ladies walked slowly homeward. With a deep sigh, the other answered:

'New and wonderful. I scarcely comprehend what a lesson I have seen. Such a lesson from such a source! How lightly I thought of that poor sewing girl, who came and went so unobtrusively! How little dreamed I that so rich a jewel was in so plain a casket! Ah, I shall be wiser for this—wiser and I may hope, better. O, to be like to her as she has died—what of mere earthly good would I not cheerfully sacrifice!'

'It is for us all,' calmly answered Mrs. Bell. 'The secret we have just heard. We must be like God.'

'How—how?'

'He loves others out of himself, and seeks their good. If we would be like Him, we must be the same.'

Yes; this is the secret of an easy death, and the only true secret.

Farmers' Wives.

People talk of the 'pressure' on great men, but I should much prefer leading a fleet up to the death hurling forts of Charleston, writing a proclamation for the nation or editing the daily———, to the never ceasing pressure on our hard-working farmers' wives,

Another thing: they are not loved! One may live among ordinary farmers six years—which is long enough to form a pretty fair estimate—and never see in the husband any acts of self sacrifice, endearment or solicitude toward the pale drudging woman, who many years agone, stepped beaming and hopeful into his life path and wove her youth and loveliness into a crown for him! It is a shame, that Heaven shall make him blush for that he exhibits more care for his horses, than for his toiling mate indoors; that he has for them affectionate pats, a cheery word of greeting, but never anything of the sort for the silent starving heart which might be made so happy by them. With rare exceptions, no conversation ever takes place except upon some question of the farm, or the wants of the house. Indeed one would be puzzled to know if the conjugal tie existed, were it not for the abandon with which the wife (and sometimes the husband) is scolded.

The white winged "small sweet courtesies" of home never flutter amid those hard harsh lives

Of this half million of over tasked powers, and starved hearts, why should it be a matter of surprise that many and many of them are at last tormented into the darkness of insanity? And where does the evil lie? And where is the remedy? Cannot our brothers be "advised?—Hall's Journal of Health.

CONSULTED A LAWYER.—Col. Tom Stackpole was appointed Captain General of the White House grounds by ex President Pierce, which position he still holds. He was recently met by Major Benj. F. French, the Superintendent of Public Buildings, who cautiously informed him that certain politicians were after his situation, and were about to report him a secessionist, and advised the Colonel to be upon the lookout.

A few days after, these worthy sons of New Hampshire again met, when Ben inquired of the Colonel whether he had thought of the matter.

'Yes,' replied Tom, 'I've thought of it and concluded not to trouble myself about it at all.'

'Why don't you?' asked the Major, 'they'll have you out.'

Oh,' said Tom, 'I've consulted a lawyer, and he told me not to have any fears about it; they can't start me.'

'Consulted a lawyer?' returned Ben; 'well, who was it that gave you such advice as that?'

'Well,' said Tom, 'it's one of the smartest lawyers in the city. He came from Illinois, and his name is—Lincoln. He says I needn't be afraid—they can't hurt me.'

Mr. French now thinks that the Col. will not be removed.

IT is an easy thing to get up parties in a church, for the devil is always ready to help.

Paternal Duty.

THE father who plunges into business so deeply that he has no leisure for domestic duties and pleasures, whose only intercourse with his children consists in a brief word of authority, or a surly lamentation over their intolerable expensiveness, is equally to be pitied and to be blamed. What right has he to devote to other pursuits the time which God has allotted to his children? Nor is it an excuse to say that he cannot support his family in their present style of living without this effort. I ask by what right can his family demand to live in such a manner which requires him to neglect his most solemn and important duties? Nor is it an excuse to say that he wishes to leave them a competence. Is he under obligation to leave them that competence which he desires? Is it an advantage to be relieved from the necessity of labor? Besides, is money the only desirable bequest which a father can leave his children? Surely, well-cultivated intellects; hearts sensible to domestic affection, the love of parents, and brothers, and sisters; a taste for home pleasures; habits of order, regularity and industry; hatred of vice and vicious men: and a lively sensibility to the excellence of virtue—are as valuable a legacy as an inheritance of property—simple property, purchased by the loss of every habit which would render that property a blessing.—Wayland's Moral Science.

ROSA BONHEUR AND HER PICTURES.—Many of you have probably seen an engraving of the picture called "The Horse Fair," painted by a French lady, Rosa Bonheur. Her history is interesting, as showing what industry and plucky determination will do. Her father was a poor drawing master in Paris, and apprenticed Rosa, at the age of twelve, to learn dress-making; but her health failed, and she left a business she did not like She soon commenced to take models of animals and copy her father's paintings, hoping some day to be able to support herself. She worked hard day by day until her father noticed her wonderful progress and gave her a course of instruction He then sent her to the Louvre, the finest picture gallery in Paris, to copy from the best paintings. Here she used to work from morning until night Soon her pictures began to sell for a small sum which increased her diligence She was then but sixteen years old. Having resolved to devote herself to painting animals, and being too poor to buy models, she used to take a bit of bread in her pocket, walk out into the country, and copy from nature. She would also visit the cattle pens in the City, where animals were kept previous to being slaughtered. This was not a pleasant place for a young lady, but she was too much in earnest to be stopped by trifles. Her reward soon came. When nineteen years old, she recieved several prizes for her pictures exhibited in Paris and at last took the gold medal for the best painting. At thirty two she finished the 'Horse Fair,' which brought her $8,000, and from that time her fortune was made. She is now very wealthy, and the best animal painter in Europe. Remember the secret of her success—She loved her work and stuck to it.

Education of Young Ladies.

Lady Morgan, the gifted Irish authoress, whose novels delighted the higher circles in former years, when conversing with a friend about some ladies who had lost their fortune made the following very sensible remarks concerning the proper education of young ladies:

They do everything that is fashionable—imperfectly; their singing, dancing, and language amount to nothing. They are educated to marry, and had there been time they might have gone off with and hereafter from, husbands. They cannot earn their own salt; they do not even know how to dress themselves. I desire to give every girl, no matter what her rank, a trade—a profession, if the word pleases you better: cultivate what is necessary in the position she is born to, cultivate all things in moderation, but one thing to perfection, no matter what it is for which she has a talent—drawing, music, embroidery, housekeeping, even; give her a staff to lay hold of, let her feel this will carry me through without dependence. I was independent at fourteen, and never went in debt.

A TEACHER in a western town in Canada, while making his first visit to his "constituents," came into conversation with an ancient "Varmount" lady, who had taken up her residence in the "backwoods." Of course the school and former teachers came in for criticism; and the old lady speaking of his predecessor, asked: "Wa'al, master, what do you think he learnt the shollards?" "Couldn't say, ma'am. Pray what did he teach?" Wa'al he told them that this 'ere earth was reound, and went areound; and all that sort o' thing—Now, master what do you think about such stuff? Don't you think he was an ignorant feller?" Unwilling to come under the category of the ignorant, the teacher evasively remarked: "It really did seem strange: but still there are many learned men who teach these things." "Wa'al, says she, "if the airth is reound, and goes reound, what holds it up? "O, these learned men say that it goes around the sun, and that the sun holds it up by virtue of the law of attraction." The old lady lowered her "specs," and, by way of climax, responded. "Wa'll, if these high larnt men sez the sun holds up the airth I should like tu know what holds the airth up when the sun goes down?"

The Huzzas of Posterity.

A little boy, near Hagerstown, in Maryland, was one day pointing out to me a copse of trees as the place where Washington at the head of the Virginia Rangers, fought a battle, long before the revolution, with some Indians headed by the French, from Fort Duquense now Pittsburg. The little fellow had some balls of lead which had been fired in that battle, chopped from the centres of the most massive oaks. I saw the sunbeam of some moral emotion was in his eyes; and I asked him further of Washington, the brave youth who led the Virginians into that thicket, when the war-whoop shook its boughs and the rifle rung through its gloom. His mind seemed to glance like lightning through the illustrious deeds of arms in which Washington had engaged, and settled down at the scene in Yorktown. He told me of one circumstance only: Said he—when the British troops were marched out of their entrenchments to lay down their arms, Washington told the American army, 'My boys, let there be no insults over a conquered foe! when they lay down their arms, don't huzza; posterity will huzza for you!'

I could have hugged the little boy to my bosom. Although he had been able to read but a short time, yet his mind had drank deep in the moral greatness of the act which spared the feelings of a fallen foe. I asked him what it was that Washington said posterity would do, he quickly replied, 'HUZZA!' 'Huzza, then!' said I; and he sent his clear wild shout into the battle wood, and I shouted with him, "Huzza for Washington!"

A REPTILE IN A HORSE'S STOMACH.—Not long since a case occurred in Fishkill, in this State, which deserves notice from the veterinary profession. A working horse belonging to J. S. Cromwell, of that village, suddenly fell down in the shafts, while traveling on the road and swounded. A post mortem examination took place, and when the stomach was opened a lizard four inches in length crept out of it. It was believed that the existence of the creature in the horses stomach, caused his death. Of this, however there may be some doubt, we think, and the case is a very interesting one. In all probability, the lizard was swallowed when very small perhaps while the horse was in the act of drinking. As this reptile, does not live in water it may be that the one in horse's stomach was a newt, and not a lizard. Its being there, if we may judge from what takes place when bots are present in the stomach of the horse, would not cause sudden death.—Wilkes Spirit.

HINTS FOR BOYS.—Boys, says Mr. Ellis, are excessively fond of what certain people would call nonsense; but what is not always folly; and there is often much development of character, and much eliciting of good taste and right feeling, in the playful familiarity of a family united in all its members. At all events, the boys whose ambition it is to share their mother, will establish for themselves, if she is a right minded woman, a rule of safety for which she ought to be most thankful; for the young man who can be trusted in his mirth, never to go too far, nor choose for it a wrong object, and who is in no danger of being betrayed by excitement into the indulgence of any wrong feeling, may, indeed, be said to have reaped no trifling advantage from the society of his mother.

THE SWARMING SYSTEM.—From my own observations this year and last, I am satisfied that hives which are permitted to swarm, if forward, will yield a larger amount of honey than they would do if kept upon the conservative principle. I made a swarm on the 18th of May by taking a frame out of a bar and frame hive with the queen, and then placing it in an empty hive which was then located upon the stand of the old hive. I weighed this swarm a few days ago, and found it weighed about 40 lbs. nett. At the end of July it would have been at least 7 or 8 lbs. more, as my bees have done nothing since that time. A second swarm was made from the same stock, yet the old hive was equal in weight to the first swarm. Three storied hives yielded on an average 35 lbs. each of pure honey in their supers; but the stock hives were in each case very light, and required copious feeding to make them safe for the winter. Other hives which swarmed were very heavy. J. E. B., in Cottage Gardener.

WE find the following singular advertisement in an Illinois exchange:

My wife and I have an attack of something that we fear is old age. It looks like it, and feels like it. Has been coming on for some time, and gets gradually worse every year. We fear we shall not get well while on the farm.—Said complaint is doubtless worse in consequence of our having always been hard workers. But we can't stand the hard knocks any more. We have no help only as we hire, and we are going to sell our home that we may find time to die.

The Herald's Shenandoah special says that Jeff. Davis' recent orders to Mosby were to take no more prisoners. Every northern man, whether soldier or citizen, falling into his hands, was to be killed. Mosby's command was to be raised to eight battalions of four companies each, and scattered through the mountains; signal stations to be located on the mountains, and a complete signal code established.

AN ITEM FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.—It will cost but a penny to try the following, which an exchange recommends for keeping stoves and ranges bright:

Make a weak alum water and mix your British lustre with it; put two spoonfulls to a gill of alum water; let the stove be cold, and brush it with the mixture; then take a dry brush and lustre, and rub the stove till it is dry. Should any part before polishing, become so dry as to look gray, moisten it with a wet brush, and proceed as before. By two applications a year it can be kept as bright as a coach body.

IRRITABLE CHRISTIANS.—'There was a clergyman who often became quite vexed at finding his grandchildren in his study. One day one of these little children was standing by his mother's side, and she was speaking to him of heaven.

'Ma,' said he, 'I don't want to go to heaven.'

'Don't want to go to heaven, my son?'

'No, ma, I'm sure I don't.'

"Why not, my son?'

'Why, grandpa will be there, won't he?'

Why, yes, I hope he will.'

'Well just as soon as he sees us, he will come scolding along, and say, whew! whew! whew! what are these boys here for! I don't want to go to heaven if grandpa is going to be there.'

Superstition still exists in france Lately, in an interior town, a young mason dug up a body in a cementery, cut off one hand and burned it to ashes, which he mixed with gunpowder in the belief that he would then be able to shoot game without his gun making any report to attract the attention of the police guard.

The lieutenant-general of the United States army was walking on the dock at City Point, a day or two ago, apparently absorbed in thought and with the inevitable cigar in his mouth, when a negro guard touched his arm, saying; "No smoking on the dock, sir." "Are those your orders," asked the general, looking up. "Yes, sir," replied the negro, courteously, but decidedly. "Very good orders," said Grant, throwing his cigar into the water.

The following anecdote of the Iron Duke is recommended to the Secretary of War, and of the Navy, who have spent enormous sums in fruitless experiments with new inventions. A man came to the duke; 'What have you to offer?' 'A bullet proof jacket your grace.' 'Put it on,' The inventor obeyed. The duke rang a bell. An aid de camp presented himself. 'Tell the captain of the guard to order one of his men to load with ball cartridge.' The inventor disappeared and was never seen again near the House Guards. No money was waasted in trying that invention.

'A woman is always at the bottom of trouble.' You remember the story of the Shah of Persia. When he was told that a workman had fallen from a ladder, he called out. Who is she! who is she?'

'Please your Majesty, 'tis a he'

'Nonsense!' said the Shah, ,there's never an accident without a woman; who is she?'

The Shah was right, the man had fallen from his ladder because he was looking at a woman in a window. Many a man does this in other countries besides Persia.

When the humorous Judge Dawes was on the bench of the Supreme Court, in giving a charge to the jury, he had occasion frequently, to make use of the words mortgager and mortgagee. The foreman of the jury asked the Judge the meaning of the words, candidly confessing he did not know their import. His Honor facetiously explained them thus:

I nod to you—you notice me,
I'm the nod or, you the nod ee!

A witty clergyman, accosted by an old acquaintance of the name of Cobb, replied:

'I don't know you sir.'

'My name is Cobb,' rejoined the man, who was about half seas over.

'Ah, sir,' replied the clergyman' 'you have so much of the corn on you that I did not see the cob.'

MUST HAVE A ROW SOMEHOW.—When a poor Irishman was bound over to keep the peace towards all her Majesty's subjects, he left the office exclaiming, 'Well, then, God help the first furriner I meet with."

INDIANA AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE MATTERS.—A bill has been introduced into the Indiana Legislature accepting the congressional land grant, for agriculture and mechanics. Also one to establish an agricultural college, appropriating means, and establishing a board of trustees for the same. Both have passed a second reading.

MERIT.—The labor of a whole life directed to the object of establishing a merit of our own, will only widen our distance from peace; and we know of nothing that will send this visitant to our agitated bosoms but a firm and simple reliance on the declarations of the gospel.—Dr. Chalmers.

We ridicule others for their fears and failures and yet fear and fail like them in like situations, for many a path that appears smooth at a distance is found to be rough when we have to travel it.

☞ Tell me, angelic hosts, ye messengers of love, shall swindled printers here below have no redress above?—The shining angel band replied: 'To us is knowledge given, delinquents on the 'printer's books can never go to heaven!'

Commodore Foote is a very religious man, as is well known. Some one says that the rebels, who are feeling his bombs, must think he belongs to the 'hard shell Baptists.'

'Fine day for the race,' said a wag to a sporting friend one bright morning lately. 'What race,' anxiously inquired the friend. 'Why the human race, to be sure,' was the reply.

Improvement of the Minnesota.

enator Porter, has anticipated the hes of his constituents, and all others the Valley, by introducing a bill for improvement of navigation on the nesota river. The amount to be ap- priated is $3,000 or so much as may necessary to do the work.

he bill stipulates that all the logs l snags which may be found in the er between the rapids in Carver coun and New Ulm, shall be removed, the rk to be done under the direction of a ard of Commissioners appointed by Governor, who are to receive three lars per day for their services. There er has been a better time in which to this work, and probably it will not ur again in a number of years. The er is lower now than ever, and the can be thoroughly done if it is placed the hands of competent persons, Navigation on the river has been pre- ted as much by these snags and logs t have accumulated as by low water, d by their removal, even if we have no ring rise, our merchants will be ena- ed to ship their wheat in small boats d barges. At this place alone there e over two hundred thousand bushels wheat in store and we presume that her towns on the river have large nounts in store. The transportation this vast amount of grain will be of eat benefit to the State, and we think but right the State should extend re- f if it be possible.

Three thousand dollars is a trifling m to be expended for such a purpose. it is necessary to make it ten thou- nd in order to have funds sufficient to the work the money would not be asted. We hope the Legislature will e fit to pass the bill, and have the ork commenced immediately.

THE DRAFT.

It is evident from the following, from he Press, of the 18th, that we shall oon know the exact quota of the State, nd also the quotas of the sub-districts. From the number of names on the en- ollment lists, as furnished by Mr. Stine, e think our quota will not exceed for- y-five. It is expected that quite a num- er will, when subjected to an examina- ion before the Board, be exempted from he draft. This, of course, will reduce ur quota, and it may be brought down o thirty-five where it should properly be nder a 300.000 call.

Col. Averill received a dispatch yes- erday, from Gen. Fry, stating that his (Averill's) figures show Minnesota's ex- cess on the first of August were correct and had been adopted. These figures gave us an excess of 1,543 three years' men, equivalent to 4,629 one year men. Our quota will now be definitely deter- mined in a few days. Some time since a statement of our quota was received which was so evidently incorrect, that we declined to publish it, and it now ap- pears that we had not received credit for this excess.

The Board of Enrollment.

We received, yesterday, from Colonel Averill, a copy of the order issued by him to Capt. See of this District, directing that the Board of Enrollment should meet at Mankato, for a period of three days. Capt. See, has also sent us notice that the Board will be in session at this place for three days, commencing on Tuesday next, and continuing until Thursday evening. We trust that all who are interested in getting their names off the roll will not let this last opportunity pass.

Minnesota Railroad Grants.

We notice in the congressional proceedings in the Globe of the 10th, the following in relation to railroads:

Mr. Donnelly, by unanimous consent, introduced a bill extending the time for the completion of certain land grant railroads in the State of Minnesota, and for other purposes: which was read a first and second time, and referred to the committee on Public lands.

The Legislature.

Mr. Porter, Senator from this county, presented a number of claims of Major Evans and others, for services in the Sioux War, which were referred to the Committee on Claims, without reading.

Mr. Porter a bill to incorporate the village of Mankato, in Blue Earth county. Referred to Committee on Corporations.

Mr. Porter gave notice of a bill amending sec. 2 of Art. 2 of the Constitution.

In the appointment of committees our delegation has not been overlooked. In the House, Mr. Harrington is Chairman of the committee on State Prison, and is also on the committee on Railroads and State Library. Mr. Rogers is Chairman of the committee on rules, and Mr. Patten of Indian affairs, and is on the committee on Charitable Institutions.

In the Senate Mr. Porter is on the Committee on Claims, Railroads, Indian Affairs, and Enrollment.

On the 11th Mr. Harrington presented a petition from the Commissioners of this county, [illegible] memorial to Congress to amend the Homestead Law. It was referred to the committee on Public Lands.

On the 12th he also presented a petition from our County Commissioners asking their per diem be increased to five dollars.

Mr. Porter, on the 11th, introduced an act authorizing the commissioners of this county to issue bonds to aid in rebuilding the bridge over the Blue Earth river at LeHillier.

On the 12th he introduced a bill granting swamp lands to aid the Minneapolis and St. Cloud Railroad Company in building a road to Lake Superior and to Mankato or St. Peter.

A bill of much importance to the citizens of the valley, was introduced by Mr. Porter, appropriating $3,000 for the improvement of navigation in the Minnesota River. It was read the first time and referred to the committee on Internal improvements.

Correspondence from the Ninth Regiment.

PADUCAH, KY., Jan. 8, 1865.

To the Editor of the Union:

It has seldom been my fortune to have as painful a duty to perform as that I have assumed to-day—that of recording the death of one of our truest men and best officers, Lieut. John R. Roberts, of Company E, 9th Minn. Vol. In the late series of battles before Nashville, in which the 9th was engaged, Lieut. R. received a severe wound in one of his legs, from which he was confined in the hospital. But notwithstanding the severity of his wounds, strong hopes were entertained of his complete recovery, until typhoid fever commenced its work upon his already weakened frame. From the commencement of this disease, his friends began to despair of his recovery. The fever worked rapidly and in a few days all hopes were gone. It was evident to all, that the life that had been so wholly devoted to the interests of his comrades and friends was fast ebbing away,—that we would soon have nothing but the memory of many kind actions, his nobility of character and genial disposition, to remind us of our loved friend and faithful officer. He continued to grow worse until the evening of the 4th inst., when his spirit finally took its flight; Lieut. Roberts was dead. Our constant companion and faithful officer's name had been enrolled on the scroll containing the names of thousands who had preceded him and had like him made their lives a sacrifice on the altar of their country.

It is painful to us who have known him so well, and who have seen so much of his devotedness to the interests of the cause for which he died, to think that our association with him is ended. But a great load is lifted from our hearts when we realize that one so good and true as he, but leaves this world, to enjoy a better one. His last order to his company furnishes us an example of the disinterested patriotism, and heroic spirit that ever characterized his life. It was in a charge upon the rebel fortifications, that he fell. Seeing some one of his company coming to assist him, he said, 'Forward! take the fortifications and then look to me!'

His bereaved wife, relatives, and friends can rest assured that they have the heartfelt sympathy of every soldier who knew him, and particularly those of his own company and regiment, to whom he was as dear as a brother.

Our regiment in the late fight lost fifty-eight in killed and wounded. Among the killed, was Capt. Skaro, of company D. He fell while gallantly leading his company in a charge which resulted in the capture of the rebel fortifications, together with two battle flags. I might enumerate many more good and true men who were either killed or wounded, but my space will not admit of my doing so. I must however, mention the name of Capt. Jones of Co. A, who received a severe wound. It was at first supposed that he was killed, and I believe was so reported on the regimental books. But we are glad to know that this was a mistake. Capt. Jones is rapidly recovering and will probably be able to move north shortly.

Jimmy Clay, a recruit who was sent to Co. E last winter, was killed in the same charge that our Lieutenant received his wound. Jimmy was a good boy and it will be a long time before we cease to remember him.

The regiment is now near East Point, Alabama, and report this morning says it is going into winter quarters there. I hope it is true, as the boys all need rest.

SAM.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Jan. 8 1864.

EDITOR UNION:—This is the first time since my enlistment that I have troubled you with a communication, but the death of our much loved Lieut. J. R. Roberts must be my excuse this time. He died on the evening of the 4th of January. He was severely wounded in the leg, and typhoid fever set in and carried one of God's noble men to a haven of rest. When I speak of his many virtues I cannot speak too highly, or say too much. He was a true friend and a brave and noble soldier,—not having an enemy in the regiment,—and warmly loved by his company. He was in the battle of Nashville, and in the terrible charges of the 15th and 16th he led our company to deeds of daring, and setting the example by being in the advance. It was in the last grand charge which was to put the remaining hosts of Hood's army to flight that he fell, severely wounded. A number of our company went to him and wanted to help him from the field. He waved them on, 'Storm the works! forward, take the works, and then come back and assist me,' was the last command he gave to his company. Thus fell a true soldier and patriot; another sacrifice has been offered up on our country's altar in behalf of the freedom of the oppressed slave, for God has decreed that they shall go free and also that the Union of States shall be one and united. thus pass away the bravest and best blood of the land. To the many friends who mourn his loss you have indeed lost a true friend and I will say to you in behalf of Co. E, that we too, mourn with you his death. His place as a company officer cannot be filled. He he has ever been our friend, and we can not say too much or speak to highly in his favor, and I again say his death is a great misfortune to us though we have many good and true men in our company, but none possessing the peculiar qualifications and fitness for the position. Always cool under the most trying difficulties, always ready and willing to help a friend, and he appeared to have mastered that great passion, anger. I never recollect of seeing him in an angry passion or using a profane word. He could govern himself from excitement on occasions, even where the battle raged with all its fury, and where lead and iron hail fell thick and fast, he remained cool as ever, always treating every soldier as a man and respecting him as such.

Yes, Lieut. J. R. Roberts is dead; we mourn for him, but it will not bring him, our soldier Lieutenant, back to us. How many of us will follow, time alone will tell. We have nearly eight months more to serve our country, and then for home and friends again.

Our company is growing small. Our number is decreasing, but there will be a few left to greet families and friends.

James Clary is also dead. He was mortally wounded in the same charge. He was a good boy and a brave soldier.

Circular from Col. Fry.

The following important circular has just been issued by Provost Marshal Gen. Fry:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10, 1865.

The attention of mustering officers is called to the fact that existing regulations require them to state upon the muster-in-roll the sub-district or town, county, district and State to which soldiers are to be credited. This must be done where a man is mustered, and no entry shall be made on muster-in-rolls with a view to credit; nor shall any date be taken from them for that purpose other than that which was officially entered in them at the time of muster, and all musters by whomsoever made, must be reported to the Acting Assistant Provost Marshal General of the State or division to which the credit is given, and Provost Marshals and other mustering officers are instructed that they will, in no case, report credit directly to each other, nor apply any credits reported by other Provost Marshals or mustering officers, or from other sources, until the same have been reported to the Board of Enrollment, by the Acting Assistant Provost Marshal General, their State or district, with his approval.

Provost Marshal General.

Death of Hon. Edward Everett.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.

Edward Everett died this morning at 4 o'clock at his residence on Summer street of apoplexy. His age was 70 years and about nine months.

Mr. Everett addressed his fellow-citizens at Faneuil Hall on Monday last in aid of sending provisions to Savannah. During the afternoon of that day he was present in court in reference to a claim against the city of Charleston for overflowing a portion of the estate in Medford by constructing a dam on the Mystic river. On Tuesday he became afflicted with quite a severe cold, but neither his friends nor himself deemed it serious. Saturday evening he appeared about as well as usual and retired to bed, declining to trouble any one to remain with him. About three o'clock this morning his housekeeper entered the room and found him sleeping naturally. An hour later she was alarmed by hearing a heavy fall in his room, and found him lying on the floor breathing heavily. A physician was promptly summoned, but before his arrival Mr. Everett had expired.

The event was announced in nearly all the churches at the commencement of morning service, and created a profound feeling of sadness. Shortly after noon the bells of the city and suburbs were tolled.

Mr. Everett's funeral will take place at noon on Thursday next in the First Church, Rev. Rufus Ellis, Pastor. It is presumed the State and city authorities will take part in the obsequies of this great and good citizen.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.

The following announcement has been published for general information:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, Jan. 15.

The President directs the undersigned to perform the painful duty of informing the people of the United States, that Edward Everett, distinguished not more for learning and eloquence than by unsurpassed and distinguished labors of patriotism at a period of political disorder, departed this life at four o'clock this morning.

The several executive departments of the government will cause appropriate solemnities to be rendered to the memory of the deceased, at home and abroad, wherever the national name and authorities are acknowledged.

WM. H. SEWARD,
Secretary of State.

What Mrs. Senator Foote Says of Jeff. and his Crew.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Times special says: From an interview with Mrs. Senator Foote it appears that her husband resigned his seat at the time it was so reported, that the Rebel Congress is slavishly subservient to Davis; that when bills meet with opposition the majority go into secret session and rush them through; that the character of the war has been changed by Davis, and is now carried on for his own purposes; that unless it can be terminated to suit him and his school of politics, he will carry it on more bloody and barbarous than ever; that there is not the slightest prospect of Mr. Blair's meeting with success; that the contractors do not desire a termination of war, and are doing everything to continue it; that that the great mass of the people want to come back into the Union under the Constitution, but are restrained by military power, and as freedom of the press in this particular is gone, there is no way for them to express their views. It was for the purpose of serving these people Mr. Foote endeavored to reach Washington.

Mrs. Foote says those who serve the Richmond Junta live as well as ever, being supplied with all luxuries at comparatively small cost, as Government pays the expenses.

Improvement of the Navigation of the Minnesota River.

Senator Porter, of Blue Earth county, has introduced into the Senate a bill for the improvement of the navigation of the Minnesota river, that should receive favorable consideration. The bill provides for the appropriation of $3,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, to cut out all the logs and snags which may be found in the river from the rapids in Carver county to New Ulm in Brown county. The work to be done under the direction of Commissioners appointed by the Governor, who are to receive three dollars per day for their services. The river is lower now than it has ever been before, and these snags and logs are entirely exposed; if cut off now the river would be completely cleared of the greatest obstruction that has been experienced for the last two years.

Taking into consideration the large amount of wheat on the river which will not fall short of six hundred thousand bushels, it appears necessary that some relief should be extended to this section by the State. The fact of the river being very low for the past two seasons has been one of the causes of the accumulation of logs and snags which have in many places completely prevented navigation by the smallest boats and barges; if removed there would be a large portion of the wheat transported by the use of barges towed by steam tugs a mode of transportation which will have to be resorted to the coming season, as the prospects of a rise in the river are not at all promising. Under the most favorable circumstances for railroad progress, the Upper Minnesota country must be dependent on river transportation for one or two years at least, and if the improvement contemplated in the bill can be made for the sum proposed, we believe it is the duty of the Legislature to make the necessary appropriation.—St. Paul Pioneer.

Two hundred Indians burned four ranches and one mail station, west of here on Saturday, stealing quite a large number of horses and cattle, and destroying a large amount of property. They also tore down the telegraph line, and carried off the wire. There was some fighting.

The Times' Washington special says it is reported at the headquarters of the Potomac that Lee has sent his family out of Richmond, and that nothing but peace is talked of in that city.

FORT FISHER FALLEN.

The Last Rebel Port Sealed.

2,500 Prisoners Taken And 72 Guns.

OUR LOSS SEVERE.

PORTER AND TERRY IN COMMAND.

Gen. Ames Led the Attack.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17,

Maj. Gen. Dix:

The following official dispatches have just been received at this Department:

HEADQUARTERS U. S. FORCES,
On Federal Point, N. C., Jan 15th,
Via Fortress Monroe, Jan. 17.

Brig. Gen. J. A. Rawlins:

GENERAL: I have the honor to report that Fort Fisher was carried by assault this P. M and evening by General Ame's Division and the 2nd brigade of the 1st division of the 24th Army Corps, gallantly aided by a battalion of Marines and Seamen from the Navy.

The assault was preceded by a heavy bombardment from the fleet, and was made at 3:30 P. M. when the first brigade, Curtis', of Ames division, effected a lodgement upon the parapet; but full possession of the work was not obtained till afternoon.

The behaviour of both officers and men was most admirable.

All the works south of Fort Fisher are now occupied by our troops. We have not less than 1,200 prisoners, including Gen. Whiting and Col. Lamb, the commandant of the Fort.

I regret to say that our loss is severe, especially in officers. I am not yet able to form any estimate of the number of casualties.

ALFRED H. TERRY,
Brevet Major General Commanding the Expedition.

Fort Fisher, Jan 16—2 A. M

After a careful reconnoissance on the 14th it was decided to risk an assault on Fort Fisher, Paine's division, with Col. Abbott's brigade to hold our line, already strong, across the Peninsula facing Wilmington against Hoke, while Ames' division should assault on the west end.

After three hours heavy firing, the assault was made at 2 P. M. on the 15th, Curtis's brigade lead, and as soon as it was on the west end of the land front, it was followed by Pennibacker's, and the latter by Bell's.

After desperate fighting, going foot by foot, and severe loss, at 5 P. M we had possession of about half the land in front.

Abbott's brigade was then taken from our line facing Wilmington and put into Fort Fisher, and on pushing it forward at 10 P. M, it took the rest of the work with little resistance, the garrison falling back to the extreme of the Peninsula, where they were followed and captured. Among others General Whiting and Colonel Lamb, both wounded.

The land front was a formidable one—the parapet in many places twelve or fifteen feet high, but the men went at it nobly under a severe musketry fire.

The marines and sailors went up gallantly, but the musketry fire from the east end of the land front was so severe that they did not succeed in entering the work. The navy fire on the work, judging from the holes, must have been terrific.

Many of the guns were uninjured. How many there were on the Point I cannot say. Perhaps thirty or forty.

C. B. COMSTOCK,
Lt. Col. A. D. C. & Chief Engineer.

Lieutenant Governor Jacobs, of Kentucky, who returned with Mr. Blair, reports a strong peace feeling among the citizens of Richmond and even among officers of high grade. He predicts that there will be a cessation of hostilities within two months and proposal of peace from the rebel government.

Hon. James Guthrie has been elected United States Senator from Kentucky in place of Lazarus W. Powell, whose term expires March 4th.

Official Paper of the County

Our Enrollment.—C. A. Stine has just completed the enrollment for the towns of Mankato, McClellan and De Soto, and has furnished us the following items of interest:

The whole number enrolled in Mankato on the old roll was 267. There were five persons enrolled twice and five spurious names. Two persons have died. Forty-two new names have been added, making the whole number of names on the enrollment list 309. Out of this number are 63 names who are noted in the margin for exemption.

In McClellan, on the old roll there were 48 names. New names added 8. Total number enrolled 56. Noted in the margin for exemption 14.

In De Soto, on the old roll were three names. New names added seven. Total number of enrollment 10. Noted in the margin 1.

The Concert To-Morrow Night.—Saturday night, the music class of Prof. W. E. Hawley, assisted by a corps of excellent singers from Owatonna and St. Peter, will give a grand concert in the Presbyterian church. The arrangements made are such as will insure its complete success. A choice and varied selection of miscellaneous music will be introduced, both vocal and instrumental, the whole affording one of the most refined and pleasant entertainments ever offered to the citizens of Mankato. Mr. Hawley's class in this place numbers nearly fifty scholars, and he has taken a great deal of pains to instruct them in music, and has succeeded admirably. We venture the prediction, that the expectations of our people, however great, will be fully realized if they attend this concert. Tickets of admission twenty-five cents each. No half price. To be obtained at this office, at the drug stores, and at the door.

Blue Earth Express Line.—We call attention to the advertisement of the above new express line which has recently been established by A. D. Mason. It extends as far south as Blue Earth city, and connects there with the stage line for Fort Dodge. At this place it connects with the American Express Company. It is a great convenience to the citizens in the valley, and Mr. Mason's known ability, energy and responsibility is a good guarantee that all business entrusted to him will be promptly dispatched. Merchants in the valley ordering goods from this place, find it very convenient to order by express. Mason's express line is one of the fixtures of the valley, and we wish him abundant success.

The Races.—"Are you going to the races?" "What races?" asked a friend, "Why, the human race, of course,"—This very pleasant sell has caused several of our influential citizens to pay the beer, and occasioned considerable surprise, but its not equal to the pleasure we saw exhibited upon a poor woman's countenance at the good bargain she had made at the cheap cash store of White & Marks.

Revival Meetings.—The series of meetings held by Elders Craven and Dean in the log school house are said to be constantly increasing in interest and attendance. Elder Dean has had large experience in revival efforts, and his labors here will be attended with good results. A cordial welcome is extended to all to attend these meetings. Many have covenanted to pray and labor for an extensive work of Grace and all are invited to do so.

There will be no meeting Saturday night. Sunday morning and night there will be meeting. A sermon on Dancing will be delivered on Monday evening.

The meetings in the Presbyterian Church, under the direction of Rev. Mr. Dulliffson have been attended with much interest. Quite a number have arisen for prayers, and others are seriously disposed. We understand that the Methodists propose commencing a similar meeting next week if rooms can be secured.

We are glad, indeed, that an effort has been made in this direction. Surely there is need of it, for we know of no place the size of this where such a lack of interest is evinced in religious matters.

Rochester Insurance Company.—The card of this Insurance Company will be found in another column. The general office of the Company is at Rochester, in this State. It has recently been established, and is doing a fair business. The Secretary, Mr. C. H. Foote, called upon us the other day, and informed us that it was organized upon the mutual plan, and already had a capital of over ten thousand dollars. He took a number of applications while here. From what we know of the Company and its officers we judge it to be a safe company to insure in.

We call attention to the advertisement of H. Knox Taylor, of St. Paul, one of the most reliable merchants of that city. He is a whole souled gentleman, not because he made us a present out of his store, because he didn't do it, but because it is natural for him to be such. He has a large assortment of dry goods of all kinds, and sells cheaper than any store of the kind in St. Paul. Merchants in the valley will find it to their interests to patronize Mr. Taylor.

We publish elsewhere, a statement made by Serenus Farrington and Philip Quiggle, farmers living in Otisco township, Waseca county. It seems that Thomas C. Day, the traveling Agent for the Madison Mutual Insurance Company, called upon them last fall, and induced them to secure their property in the company he represented. Some two weeks afterward the prairie fires, which raged so terribly last fall burned all their grain, two colts and a fat hog.—And although not sufficient time had elapsed for the company to approve their application and send their policies to them. Yet their losses, amounting in all to $840 were promptly adjusted to their satisfaction, and paid by G. R. Montague, Esq., the Gen'l. Ag't. The Madison Ins. Co. has been doing business in our State for the last three years and within that time has proved itself worthy the confidence placed in it by the farmers of Minnesota, by the prompt payment of every loss which has occurred to its policy holders. In all countries there is more or less risk of property by fire and lightning, and in this western country, where almost all the houses are made of wood the risk is much greater, more or less grain also is burned every year. As the company insures against all loss or damage from lightning, farmers can secure their houses and stock against loss by this terrible element. The Madison Mutual Insurance Company is peculiarly adapted to the insurance of farm property, household furniture, clothing, and farming interests being included in its class of risks, in fact it insures no other kind of property, being a purely farmers company. Many have been saved from ruin by having a timely insurance effected upon their property, and as the cost is trifling, we would advise our farmers to secure a policy in the Madison Mutual Ins. Co., without delay, as by a thorough trial it has proved itself worthy their confidence.

Our Young Folks.—The first number of the new monthly for boys and girls is on our table, and is filled with entertaining matter of a character superior to that usually found in such publications. It is embellished with an engraving of the author of "Tom Brown at Oxford," The contents are Hum, the son of Bug; The Volunteer's Thanksgiving; Thumbling; The Red-Coats; The Color-Bearer; The Little Prisoner; Thomas Hughes; Physical Health; Andy's Adventure; Winning his Way; New-Year Carol; Farming for Boys; Afloat in the Forest, Round the Evening Lamp—written by Mrs. Stowe, Gail Hamilton, Mayne Reed and others. Terms $2, Ticknor & Fields, Boston.

Town Meeting.—The proposition to pay a bounty of $300, to each enlisted man from this town will be voted upon to morrow at the town meeting. The money to be raised by the issue of bonds drawing interest at 10 per cent. The polls will be open at 9 o'clock. It will be carried with but little opposition.

The Atlantic for January contains: Another Scene from the Dolliver Romance; The Wind over the Chimney, Between Europe and Asia; My Autumn Walk; Five Sisters Court at Christmas Tide; Ice and Esquimaux; Kallundborg Church; George Cruikshank in Mexico; Leaves from an Officer's Journal; The American Metropolis; Needle and Garden; Memories of Authors—Moore; On Board the Seventy-Six; The Chimney Corner; God Save the Flag; Anno Domini.

Mr. Editor: Please insert the following for the benefit of your many readers:

On the 29th of last Sept., Mr. Thomas C. Day, agent of the Madison Mutual Insurance Company, called upon us and proposed to insure our property. After satisfying ourselves that the company was reliable, we each took a policy of insurance on our dwelling houses and contents, grain and hay in stack, and live stock in temporary stables, as we had no frame barns, and in less than a month from the time, notwithstanding we had plowed and burnt around our stacks, the prairie fire burnt all our hay and grain in stacks, two valuable colts, and a fat hog, in our temporary stables. We notified the company of our loss, and G. R. Montague, Esq., the General Agent, has this day called, adjusted our loss, and paid us $840—the full amount due us according to our policy of insurance—to our entire satisfaction; consequently we take great pleasure in recommending the Madison Mutual Insurance company as the safest and best for every farmer to insure in; and one that always pays its losses with the least possible delay, dealing justly with all its patrons.

The Price of Brick.—A report was current sometime since, that Mr. Chas. Scheffer, the proprietor of the brick yard, was going to charge ten dollars per thousand the coming season. He authorizes us to contradict it.

Will you Wear Curls?—L. P. Franklin, of St. Paul, presents his compliments to the ladies of this vicinity, as will be seen by his card elsewhere. He is a competent workman, and we can recommend him with pleasure.

The friends of Rev. J. Jenkins will pay him a donation visit at the Congregational church in South Bend on Monday evening next the 23d inst. Mr. Jenkins is a very deserving man, and we trust there will be a large attendance of his friends.

Arrived Home.—We had the pleasure the other day of shaking hands with that prince of good fellows, Major Geo A. Clark, of the 4th Regiment, who has been mustered out of the service, his time having expired.

The Markets.—In another column we publish a list of market prices furnished by one of our most reliable business houses, and shall continue to do so during the winter. Farmers can rely upon their being correct.

Conscripts.—A large number of wagons, filled with conscripts, have passed through town during the week, on their way to St. Peter to secure exemption from the draft. Not more than one fifth are successful.

Recruiting.—Lieutenant Owens informs us that he is meeting with good success in recruiting men for the heavy artillery. Nearly one hundred have already enlisted.

The Mite Society will meet at City Hall next Monday evening. A general invitation is extended to all to be present, and make the occasion a pleasant one.

C. B. Thurston, Esq. of this place, has gone to St. Louis to spend the winter. Our best wishes go with you, 'Cy.'

Jas. B. Hubbell, and family, start to-morrow for Connecticut on a visit, and will remain until Spring.

Mean.—Some evil disposed persons broke in the windows of Mr. Gude's tailor shop on Sunday night last.

Wickersham has just received a fresh supply of Kerosene, which he is selling rapidly for cash.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5 20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

Popular Preachin.—A modern writer satirizing the endeavors of the pulpit to meet the false taste of the day, which, instead of hungering and thirsting after righteousness, craves for what has been called "the blancmange of Christianity," delivers himself of the following:

'What a curious production would a chemical analysis of many latter-day sermons furnish! Somewhat like this: 1 part Bible; 5 parts logic, badly kneaded; 20 parts city milk; 14 parts otto of roses; 60 parts yeast. Now this is a nice mixture to feed immortality on. It wouldn't live a day on such food.'

Mrs. Sarah Vandegrift, who died in Trenton on the 30th of November, a few months short of the age of ninety-five, was one of the company of young maidens [then Miss Moore] who sang the ode of welcome to Washington when he passed through Trenton to New York, April 21, 1789. The estimable lady never lost the enthusiasm of that day and within two weeks of her death, recited with animation the song she had learned seventy five years ago in honor of the first president of the United States. Is there now a single survivor of the throngs that, on that day, followed the illustrious visitor over the Assanpink?

HARPER'S

NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's Magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular Monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journals. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Trübner's Guide to American Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier

SEWING MACHINES.

These Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do: will Hem Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseill's without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced

These are peculiar facts, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5 20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent premium and before the war the premium on six per cent U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul.

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, mesmerizer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novelists writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, feuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc. as Geo. Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Mollie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquettish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faithful and elegant higly illustratrative of the oldest nobles', and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Braddon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have ... so many mushroom journals off the ... and left their patrons ... the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance; Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage. Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State.

Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

THE DRUMMER BOY.

BY ALFRED B. STREET.

Dear mother, I wish you were with me; I'm lying here all alone!
I see but the dead around me, I hear but the dying groan;
I'm very, very faint, mother, my wound is throbbing so bad;
Could I see you even for a moment, I should feel to my heart right glad!
My blood is staining the hollow, it reddens the drum I dropped
When the quick, hot ball shot through me, and all within me stopped;
My drum, my delight and glory, that I carried all through the day,
Rolling and beating and tapping, as to and fro went the fray;
Will I e'er beat it again, it was ever my glory and joy,
But I cannot—ah! ah! this spasm—oh, mother! come, come to your boy!

The homestead, the dear old homestead, it rises to sight once more,
With its meadows and rocky woodland, and the orchard beside the door;
I [illegible] toss hay in the harvest, or follow the fox to his den;
Or taste the [illegible] ripe apples by the winter fire again!
I see my brother John in the meadow, dear Sissy at the well;
How I used to lag at the windlass—ah! me—the tears now swell;
But I do not feel I had enlisted, I would do it again to fight
The wicked rebels and traitors who trampled on honor and right,
As Deacon Wooster explained it, just after the news had come
That Charleston's ten thousand knaves had whipped seventy of our [illegible].

No, no, I rejoice I enlisted, for did not the wretched crew
Fire on the flag of the nation, and sever the Union in two?
The flag my father defended, at blood-stained Lundy's Lane!
The Union that Uncle Ben said should be an eternal chain!
And there lives no tonguier lawyer! No, no, I rejoice I came.
Though here I'm lying and dying, they put me all in a flame;
The wicked rebels and traitors! Oh! I wish I could spring to my feet
And [illegible] rub-a-dub-dub once more, my drum in the battle beat!
Oh! did we not drive them famously? Ah! that [illegible] was like a [illegible]
[illegible] mother! [illegible] I'm weary and sick at heart!

[illegible] I'm weary, weary, my head seems running wild—
[illegible] mother! if you but knew this, how soon you would fly to your child!
[illegible]
[illegible] Bible—I feel it—but my eyes grow [illegible]
[illegible] shall I see you never again?
[illegible] full of music—the bugle of [illegible]
[illegible] it sounds—it is, it is mother's [illegible]
[illegible] dear mother! I dream, I so rejoice!
[illegible]
[illegible] around me, and now I—will go—to—sleep!

Select Miscellany.

MODEL HUSBANDS.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

"Another day's work done, thank fortune!" said Mr. Peterkin, throwing himself, with an air of careless satisfaction, in a reclining attitude on a bench. 'I'm not a lazy man, but I do feel glad, these hot June days, when the sun goes down.'

A few minutes only did Mr. Peterkin remain in this position. Rising up quickly, as a thought crossed his mind, he added—

'Woman's work, it is truly said, is never done. I must hurry off home, and see how poor Mary is getting along.—She did not seem at all well when I left her at dinner time.'

'You don't expect to cook your supper, do you?' remarked an employee in the establishment where Mr. Peterkin was engaged, speaking with a slightly sneering expression.

'If cook should happen to be out, and wifey sick,' was the smiling answer, 'the kettle will not fail to reach the boiling point through my neglect or indifference. That's a fact.'

'Every man to his taste,' said the other. 'But I'm no Betty. I suppose you could dress the baby, on a pinch?'

'Haven't tried it yet; but we are never too old to learn, you know. Shouldn't object to an experiment in that line—for I love babies—if there was no woman's gentler and more skilful hand ready to do the work,' cheerfully returned Peterkin.

The other tossed his head in a half contemptuous manner replying that his babies would go a long time without washing and dressing, if they waited for him to do it. For his part, he despised woman's work.

'You don't despise women also, I hope?' said Peterkin, looking so steadily and meaningly at his companion that he appeared slightly confused.

'They are well enough in their place, and exceedingly useful,' was answered in a tone of affected gayety. Then he added, more seriously, as if to do away with any unfavorable impression in regard to his home relations that his words and manner might have created, 'I leave to my wife the entire management of the kitchen and nursery, and never trespass an inch on her prerogative. It's as much as I can do to maintain the household. Her departments is entirely distinct from mine. She never interferes with me, and I award to her a like immunity.'

'How is it if a meal is late or badly cooked?' asked Peterkin.

'I grumble, of course—perhaps scold,' said the other. 'If I find the money to buy good food, and it is spoiled in cooking, I think I've a right to grumble—I should like to know what you would do under similar circumstance?'

'I haven't the trial often,' returned Peterkin.

'Your'e lucky then, that's all I have to say. I suppose you raise such a storm when there is any defect, that your wife receives a lesson which she does not care often to have repeated. I think I shall try your remedy.'

'It might be better, perhaps, if you would,' said Peterkin smiling.

'Well, what is your remedy, precisely? What do you say, and how do you say it?'

'When a meal is late, or badly cooked, you mean?'

'Yes.'

'I take several things for granted, in the outset,' answered Peterkin.

'What are they?'

'In the first place, I give my wife credit for good intentions. I know that she meant to have all right. This, of course, stifles impatience and a disposition to complain. In the second place, I know that she is sufficiently annoyed at the defeat. To increase this annoyance by fault finding or fretfulness, would not only be selfish and cruel on my part, but cre te a state of feeling in wife that must increase her unhappiness, and cloud the whole atmosphere of home'

'And you say nothing about' it?' exclaimed the other, in surprise.

'Not a word. The pleasures of mere eating and drinking do not constitute the whole of domestic enjoyment. If the meal is not quite so good as expected, so much the more necessity to increase, rather than diminish, good feeling, which also has its office of recreating and strengthening. But I must not stand talking here,' added Peterkin. 'They will be looking for me at home. Mary as I said, was not well when I left at dinner-time. She has a new girl in the kitchen, too; one, in my opinion not much to be relied on. Good-evening, all.'

And the young man started off with a light, quick step. The one with whom he had been talking felt strongly inclined to utter a sneering commentary on the declaration of Peterkin; but certain contrasts between his own home conduct and that of his business companion, were presented so vividly before his mind that, in very shame he kept silent.

The day had been unusually hot and sultry, and the duties of Mr. Peterkin of an exhausting nature. Cheerful as he appeared, and lightly as he moved away, under the temporary excitement of mind occasioned by the little interview just mentioned, he found himself weak and weary before reaching home. Hungry, too, he was, and quite ready for a comfortable evening meal.

'It can't be seven o'clock, Henry,' said his wife, as he entered; and she seemed slightly worried.

'Yes, and ten minutes past,' answered Peterkin; and he sat down, with an exhausted air, and commenced fanning himself with the broad brim of his Panama, which he still held in his hand.—'What a trying day it has been!' he remarked. 'The hottest of the season.'

'Get your father a cool drink of water, Anna,' said Mrs. Peterkin to their little daughter, as soon as she perceived how weary and heated her husband was.

[illegible] brought, [illegible] ever [illegible]

'Thank you, dear,' said the father, with a smile, as he received the water 'Ah, that is refreshing!' he added, as he took the glass from his lips. 'I feel a hundred per cent. better already. Hang up my hat, Carry. How is baby? She wasn't at all well when I left home this morning.'

'Poor little dear! She's been fretful all day,' replied Mrs. Peterkin. 'It has been so warm, and I think she's cutting a tooth. I've had her in my arms nearly all the afternoon. Hush! There, she is awake again. I was in hopes she would rest the evening through. Oh, dear, I'm quite worn out! Carry, go up to your sister, and try to amuse her, while I see about supper. This new girl isn't at all to be depended upon.'

Mrs. Peterkin went to the kitchen where she found the promise of an early tea even worse than she had anticipated. But there was a kind of magic in her presence that quickly gave a new aspect to everything. A slight, but skillful re-arrangement of the fire caused it to burn clearer, and a few prompt directions to the cook brightened the ideas of that individual wonderfully. Just as Mrs. Peterkin's hands were fairly in her work, the baby, which had at first been partially quieted through Carry's efforts, began to scream violently.

'Oh, dear, dear!' exclaimed the mother, whose nerves were already so excited that she only maintained exterior composure through the more earnest effort. 'What is to be done? I can't bear to hear that poor sick child's cries; and, if I leave her, there's no telling when tea will be ready.'

It only needed an impatient word from her husband to destroy the equilibrium for which Mrs. Peterkin was so bravely struggling. With him, at that moment rested the happiness or unhappiness of his little household. He was depressed in body from weariness and hunger. He had looked forward to the evening meal with pleasure and had expected to find it, as usual, on the table. Instead of this, he found his wife in a slightly worried state, and the supper he was so fully prepared to enjoy far from being ready. It had cost him a little effort to hide his disappointment on discovering the aspect of affairs, when he first came in; but he gave utterance to cheerful words, and these restored cheerful feelings.

Left alone, after his wife had gone to see after the evening meal, and his little daughter to quiet the baby, Mr. Peterkin's thoughts diverged into rather an unusual channel for him, and he was actually saying to himself, 'A little forecast on wifey's part would have prevented this,' when the baby's loud screams disturbed him. It was rarely that he suffered anything to annoy him at home. An exhausted body left an exhausted mind. Over his countenance flitted an impatient expression, and a few contracting lines shadowed his forehead.—For a little while he sat, the screams of the baby fluttering his nerves. Then he arose, and was about passing into the kitchen to say, half impatiently, 'Do let supper alone, and go up to the baby,' when a better thought was borne of a better purpose, and, instead of doing as at first inclined, he ascended to the chamber, and, taking the child, quickly soothed it with gentle tones and loving words.

What a magic power to discord or produce harmony was possessed by the husband and father in that little point of time! The good and the evil impulse were for a moment or two evenly balanced, but good preponderated, and a calmness fell upon the slightly troubled waters of his pleasant household. And such a power every husband and father possesses; yet how few use their influence, at all times, well and wisely!

So interested did Mr. Peterkin soon become in the now quiet and happy babe, that he forgot all about his hunger and weariness; and, when supper was at last announced, he took his place at the table in a pleasant frame of mind, and communicated to all a measure of his cheerful spirit. If he noticed that the tea was a little smoked, or the toast burnt at the edge, he did not speak of it, and so relieved the mind of his wife, who felt worried at these little defects in their evening meal.

Baby cried no more. After tea, she fell off into a natural sleep, and did not awaken until next morning.

'Don't sew this evening, Mary,' said Mr. Peterkin, as his wife took her work basket and drew up to the table on which she had just placed a lamp.

'It's only a little mending,' she replied, with a grateful look at her husband for his kind consideration; 'and it must be done to-night. It won't take me long.'

'Woman's work is never done,' said Mr. Peterkin. 'I wish I could help you; but applying the needle [illegible] of my line'

'You can read, [illegible],' answered his wife, with one of her [illegible] smiles, 'and that we can both enjoy.'

Mrs. Peterkin, although it was an hour before she put up her needle, experienced no weariness of body during the time, for the deep interest she felt in the volume from which her husband read.

Peace drew that night around this humble family [illegible] repose.—They [illegible] they were not [illegible], and yet few arose with a more cheerful spirit when the day dawned, or retired with calmer hearts when night called them to refreshing slumber. And why? We need not answer the question.

'And this is your 'good model' of a husband!' we hear some fine young lady, or 'accomplished' gentleman, say, with [illegible] of the head. "So a man must [illegible] the baby, and stay at home and read to his wife every night while she darns the stockings, or else he is not a good husband, according to your wonderfully elevated standard!"

And this is the spirit in which you have read? Well, we don't feel inclined to discuss the matter with you. Here is a model; we have called it a good one. It is taken from humble life. If all husbands in every social grade, from the highest to the lowliest, will bear towards their wives the same unselfish regard that Mr. Peterkin bore towards his, there will be light in many dwellings where all now is darkness and discontent.

Want of Decision.

A great deal of talent is lost to the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men, who have only remained in obscurity because their timidity has prevented them from making a first effort, and who, if they had only been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is, that in doing anything in the world worth doing, we must not stand shivering on the bank thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can. It will not do to be perpetually calculating risk and adjusting nice chances; it did all very well before the flood, when a man could consult his friends upon an intended publication for a hundred and fifty years and live to see its success for six or seven centuries afterwards; but at present a man waits, and doubts, and consults his brothers, uncles, and his particular friends till one day he finds that he is sixty five years of age, that he has lost so much time in consulting first cousins and particular friends that he has no more time to follow their advice. There is so little time for over squeamishness at present, that the opportunity slips away. The very period of life at which man chooses to venture, if ever, is so confined, that it is no bad rule to preach up the necessity, in such instances, of a little violence done to the feelings, and efforts made in defiance of a strict and sober calculation.

☞ A bashful youth was paying his addresses to a gay lass of the country, who had long despaired of bringing things to a crisis. He called one day when she was at home alone. After settling the merits of the weather, Miss said, looking slyly into his face—

'I dreamed of you last night.'

'Did you? Why, now?'

'Yes, I dreamed that you kissed me.'

'Why, now! What did you dream your mother said?

'Oh! dreamed she wasn't at home.'

A light dawned on the youth's intellect, and directly something was heard to crack—perhaps his whip, and perhaps not, but in about a month they were married.

Can Travel Like Pizen.

The electric telegraph is bound to remain a mystery to the million, and the ludicrous conceptions of its modus operandi, which some of the most ignorant people have formed, are as amusing as anything out of Rabelais or Smollet.—The last illustration of this that has fallen under our eyes, is the following story:

Not long since, an old lady entered O'Reilly's office in Pittsburg and said that she had a message to send to Wheeling. In a few minutes her note was deposited in a dumb waiter, and ascended in a mysterious manner through the ceiling.

'Is that going straight to Wheeling? inquired the old lady, with her eyes bent upon the ceiling.

'Yes, ma'am,' answered the clerk.

'I never was there,' continued she, 'but it hardly seems possible that the town lies in that direction. When will I get an answer Mr. Telegraph?'

'I can scarcely tell, it may be two or three hours.'

The old lady went away; and returned in exactly two hours. Just as she entered the door the dumb waiter came down through the ceiling.

'There is your answer, ma'am,' said the clerk.

The old lady took the neat yellow envelope in her hands with a smile of mingled gratifications and astonishment.

'Now that beats all,' exclaimed she, 'Bless my heart. All the way from Wheeling, and the wafer wet yet. That's an awkward looking box—but it can travel like pizen.'

A Model Composition.

To boys and girls who are perplexed to know what to write about and how to write it, when required by their teacher to bring a 'composition,' we commend the following model:

WINTER—Winter is the coldest season of the year because it comes in the winter. In some countries winter comes in the summer and then it is very pleasant. I wish winter came in the summer in this country.—then I could go skating barefoot, and slide down hill in linen trousers. We could snow-ball without our fingers getting cold—and men who go out sleigh-riding wouldn't have to stop at every tavern to warm as they do now. It snows more in the winter than it does in any other season of the year.—This is because so many cutters and sleighs are made at that time.

Ice grows much better in winter than in summer, which was an inconvenience before the discovery of ice-houses. Water that is left out of doors is apt to freeze at this season. Some people take in their wells and cisterns on a cold night and keep them by the fire so they don't freeze.

Skating is great fun in winter. The boys get the skates on when the river is frozen over, and race, play tag, break through and get wet all over, (they get drowned sometimes;) fall and break their heads, and enjoy themselves in many other ways. A wicked boy once borrowed my skates and ran off with them, and I couldn't catch him. Mother said a judgment would overtake him some day. Judgment will have to be pretty lively on its legs if it does, for he runs badly.

FILLING ICE-HOUSES WITH SNOW.—As the time is now approaching when the supply of ice for the ensuing year is to be secured, I beg the leave to give you the experience of one of our 'Clifton Farmers Club,' of Clifton O. His ice-house is situated on the side of a gravel hill, covering a pit 10 feet deep and 12 feet square, and a simple frame structure over the pit about four or five feet in height; the sides of the pit are boarded up, and the drainage is through the gravel.

Finding it expensive to haul ice from the neighbouring ponds and rivers, he last winter filled his house with snow, after the custom prevailing in Switzerland and California (for my friend is a traveler,) simply rolling it up in masses, and with a wheelbarrow conveying it to the house.—first lining the sides of the pit with straw, and after it was filled covering the straw with the same material, thus filling his house without cost and securing an abundant supply of good ice for his large family during the whole summer. The snow settled down into a compact mass, when the spring and summer heats affecting it, and a portion still remains at the bottom of the pit as solid as a glacier of the Alps.—Verbum Sap. in Country Gentleman.

An Inquiring Mind.

Professor Dunning, the lecturer on geology was interesting the primary scholars in a city school recently by showing with black board and chalk how the bee was made. He had just finished it by putting in the sting, when a little fellow who had been watching the process most closely spoke up—

'Mr. Dunnen?'

'What my boy?'

'Did'nt Dod make the bee?'

'Yes, certainly. God made the bee.'

The little fellow was silent a minute, when he spoke again—

'Mr. Dunnen?'

'Well, what now, my son'

'I was thinking,' said the young philosopher, 'how Dod could put the sting into the bee without dittin' his fingers stung before he let it do.'

That child ought to be encouraged.

An Irishman dropped a letter into the post office the other day, with the following memorandum on the corner, for the benefit of all indolent postmasters into whose hands it might fall: 'Please hasten the delay of this.'

A Thrilling Incident.

At a temperance meeting in Philadelphia some years ago, a learned clergyman spoke in favor of wine as a drink; demonstrating it quite to his own satisfaction, to be scriptural, gentlemanly, healthful. When the clergyman sat down, a plain, elderly man rose, and asked the liberty of saying a few words.

"A young friend of mine," said he, "who had long been intemperate, was at length prevailed on, to the great joy of his friends to take the pledge of entire abstinence from all that could intoxicate. He kept the pledge faithfully for some time, though the struggle with his habit was fearful; till one evening at a social party, glasses of wine handed round. They came to a clergyman present, who took a glass, saying a few words in vindication of the practice. 'Well,' thought the young man, 'if a clergyman can take wine and justify it so well, why not I?' So he took a glass. It instantly rekindled his fiery and slumbering appetite; and after a rapid downward course, he died of delirium tremens—a raving madman?

The old man paused for utterance; and was just able to add—"That young man was my only son; and the clergyman was the Reverend Doctor who has just addressed this assembly!"

To Refine Tallow for Candles.

Boil the tallow in water just made slippery to the taste with ley. When cold cut out and scrape from the bottom all impurities. Then boil the tallow slowly half a day in a kettle of water in which one pound of saltpeter (to [illegible] pounds tallow) is dissolved. When cold and the dregs are scraped from it, boil again in water in which one pound of alum is dissolved. When cold, melt with one pound of bleached wax and mould at your leisure. We took a premium once on candles thus prepared, and they could hardly be distinguished from star candles.—Country Gentleman.

A TRIO OF YOUNG VAGABONDS.—In the village of Herkimer, N. Y., last week, three boys engaged in playing 'confiscation,' as they termed it. They entered the house of a lady who was absent from home for a week or two, and spent the most of two whole days in destroying and mutilating everything within reach. They ripped open and broke in pieces sofas and chairs, broke bureaus and mirrors, went down cellar, taking all its contents in the way of preserves, molasses, vinegar, etc., up into the front parlor, and there spreading them out on the brussels carpet, and mixed them up with flour, meal, feathers from the beds, and almost every imaginable thing in the house.

They took up handfuls of butter and lard and threw them over the walls and furniture, and, in fact, exhausted all their ingenuity to perfectly destroy everything they could find. They then proceeded to "confiscate" the school house, entering it through a window. They took down the large maps, tearing them and throwing them into the furnace, broke the school room lamps in pieces, poured pails of water into the melodeon, broke the locks from the doors, and did other damage to a large amount. The story they told of the crimes they had committed and those they had planned for future operations, including the murder of Mr. Champion the school teacher, for which two of them had provided themselves with pistols, is too awful to be believed, two of whom are not twelve years of age, and the other only fifteen years of age.

A NEW WAY WITH ATTORNEYS.—One day a simple farmer, who had just buried a rich relation, an attorney, was complaining of the great expense of a funeral cavalcade in the country.

'Why do you bury your attorneys here?' asked Foote.

'Yes, to be sure we do; how else?'

'Oh! we never do that in London.'

'Oh!' said the other, much surprised; 'how do you manage then?'

'Why, when the patient happens to die, we lay him out in a room over night by himself, lock the door, throw open the window, and in the morning he is gone.'

'Indeed!' exclaimed the farmer with amazement, what becomes of him?'

'Why that we cannot exactly tell; all we know is, there's a strong smell of brimstone in the room the next morning.'

HYFLAMMAGASTROLOGY.—One of the Rhapsodists having lucidly declared:

'In the twelfth hour of the glory of God, the life of God, the Lord in God, the Holy Procedure shall crown the Triune Creator with the disclosive illumination. Then shall the creation, in its supernal effulgence above the divine arise into the disclosure in a comprehensive revolving galaxy of supreme created beatitude.'

An exchange learnedly adds:

'Then shall blockheadism, the Jackassical dome of disclusive procedure, above the all fired great leather fungus of Peter Nipyenimigo, the great gooseberry grinder, rise into the dome disclosive, until co-equal, co-extensive and conglomerated lummuxes, mixing into one comprehensive mux, shall assimilate into nothing, and revolve like a bobtailed pussy cat after the space where her tail was.'

A soldier came home from the war last week, with both legs shot off, and $700 bounty in his pocket. His wife, who had taken great dislike to the poor fellow, on account of his crippled condition, stole his money and ran off with it. The ladies must begin to learn that glory is a sufficient compensation for legs.

Old Capitol Prison Disclosures.

Washington Correspondence Chicago Tribune.

A sensation was unexpectedly produced in the House, to-day, by an effort of Thad. Stevens to prevent an investigation ordered a day or two ago, into the arrests and confinement in the Old Capitol Prison. He sought to put it on the ground of an attack on the Administration, and thus array a party majority against it; but Henry Winter Davis came out in a strong speech against the violation of the law in many of these arrests, and was followed by a ringing speech from Kasson of Iowa, who went so far as to denounce the course of the Secretary of War himself. At this stage of the discussion, Garfield entered the hall and announced that the Military Committee had already begun the investigation, and such outrages had already been developed that he implored the House not to stop it.

Under this pressure, the yeas and nays were called, and just enough members in the House, including Thad. Stevens and Spaulding voted to sustain the investigation. It is understood that the party likely to be found guilty of the outrages now being exposed is the disreputable detective Baker, whom the War Department permits to make arrests in its name. The investigation promises to leave him in a bad predicament. It was sworn before the Committee to-day by an officer in the Old Capitol, that there was not a person about the prison who did not believe this detective to be a scoundrel.

One case exposed to day, is that of a Colonel who has done honorable service in the field, who was arrested without charges and has been held to confinement six months without trial, and who to-day swears that he has not the remotest idea what he was arrested for, and can get nobody to tell him.

BREAKING OXEN.—When you first put a yoke on your two year old steers, coax them with an apple or an ear of soft corn (soft corn are allowable in this case,) then they will hold up their heads and be glad to follow you. No whip will be needed at the first yoking. Let the yoke and the soft corn be associated in their minds, and they will never be shy of the yoke; but if you make use of force alone, they will down their heads to keep from the blows. After you have taught them to follow you around in the yoke, and that it will not injure them to carry it, you can hitch them on before the older oxen, and make them take the lead. The driver should go beside them occasionally, with a switch stick, or a light and short whip but he will not have any need to beat them except in extreme cases.

A young New England mamma on the important occasion of making her little boy his first pair of colored trousers, conceived the idea that it would be more economical to make them of the same dimensions behind and before, so that they might be changed about and wear evenly; and so she fashioned them. Their effect, when donned by the little victim, was ludicrous in the extreme. Papa, at the first sight of the baggy garments, "so fearfully and wonderfully made," burst into a roar of laughter, and exclaimed, "Oh, my dear, how could you have the heart to do it? Why, the poor little fellow won't know whether he's going to school or coming home."

UNRAVELING.—A man coming home late one night, a little more than "half seas over," feeling thirsty, procured a glass of water and drank it. In doing so he swallowed a small ball of silk that lay in the bottom of the tumbler, the end catching in his teeth. Feeling something in his mouth, and not knowing what it was, he began pulling at the end, and the little ball unrolling, he soon had several feet in his hands, and still no end apparently. Terrified, he shouted at the top of his voice, 'Wife! wife! I say, wife, come here! I am all unraveling.'

An Irish family in Colchester, Conn., were very much disturbed the other day by seeing their husband and father enter the house, as they had a few days before paid $150 for the transportation home of his body from the army, and they buried him with many tears. It took time for the live Irishman to convince his family that he was not a ghost, and then they exhumed the body and sent it back to the army, fearing it might be the body of a rebel soldier.

CONUNDRUMS.—'Sambo, can you tell me in what building in Scarboro' people are most likely to take cold?' 'Why, no, me stranger in de town, and can't tell dat.' 'Well, I will tell you: it is de bank.' 'How's dat?' 'Because dare are so many drafts in it? 'No.' Because so many go dare to raise de wind. Yah, ha, ha.'

PLUCK.—There is a man in Maine, the owner of a piece of crinoline, who shows decided pluck. He says that when the minister was hugging and kissing his wife, he peeped through the crack of the door and saw it all; and as long as he had the spirit of a man remaining, he would peep on such occasions!

The printers and publishers of Maine, are about to memorialize Congress in favor of the proposition for a reduction of the duty on printing paper. The present duty is 20 per cent., which, payable in gold, is equal to nearly 50. The paper manufacturers of this country are believed to be making enormous profits at present—some full 100 cent.

'Pat, do you love your country?' 'Yes, your honor.' 'What's the best thing about Ireland, Pat?' 'The whiskey, yer honor.' "Ah, I see, Pat, with all her faults, you love her still."

'Miss,' said a fop to a young lady, 'what a pity you wasn't a mirror.' 'Why so?' said the blushing lady. "Because you would be such a good looking-glass."

United States Official Paper.

Mankato, Friday, January 27, 1865.

THE DRAFT.

Provost Marshal General Fry has addressed a very lengthy circular to Gov. Miller, explaining matters in relation to the assignment of quotas and applying of credits.

He says the object of the present call is to raise 300,000 men, and they will be required from the different localities in proportion to the number enrolled, and the number which such localities were deficient or in excess, under the call for 500,000. They are to be counted as units in filling the quota, and if any town has an excess, or is entitled to a credit for filling its quota with three years' men, the excess of years service will be estimated in the assignment of future quotas, should another call be made. But we do not understand that it will be taken into the account in the assignment of quotas under the present call. Yet, in another place he says, "All men raised since the call of July 18, 1864, are credited upon the quota under that call; if the quota is more than filled, it is carried as an excess to the credit of the locality, and taken into account in the assignment of the quota under the call of December 19, 1864, and Provost Marshals are instructed, that in determining the quotas of sub-districts under the present call, they will apply such excess accordingly; and all men raised since December 19, are of course credited upon the call of that date. In crediting the excess that is carried forward from the call of July 18, 1864, and applied to the call of December 19, 1864, I consider not only the number of men of which the excess is composed, but also the period of their service; and the quotas assigned under the call of December 19, are thus reduced by this excess of service, and hence they should not be further reduced, except by enlistments subsequent to December 19, 1864, the date of the call for 300,000 men."

These statements appear to us as contradictory, but General Fry has a way of his own in managing these things, and we presume can make them gibe nicely, and to his own satisfaction, and its no matter whether the citizens understand it, so that they but put their shoulders to the wheel and help fill our quotas.

In closing his circular to the Governor he says:

The credits to the State of Minnesota (under the call of July 18, 1864), up to Nov. 30, 1864, show that the men furnished for one year was 1,685, for two years, 204; for three years, 61; a very large proportion, as will be observed, being one year's men. The excess of credits on the first day of August was 1,407, of which the First District is credited with 1,037, and the Second District with 370, and credit has been given for three years' term of service on each unit. The First District furnished 1,859 more years of service than the Second District, and consequently the larger number to be furnished, under call of Dec. 19, falls on the Second District. If there is any error in these figures I shall be happy to correct it when pointed out.

THE QUOTA OF MINNESOTA.

We are glad to be able to state that Col. Averill has succeeded in getting our quota corrected, and that we shall soon know the exact quota of this district, and of the sub-districts. We copy the Press' article on this subject:

The pressing representations of Col. Averill to the War Department have resulted in a large reduction of the quota originally assigned to this State, which was over 6,000. Yesterday Col. Averill was advised by telegraph that the quota of Minnesota under the last call—including all deficiencies under previous ones, would be but 3,636, which strikes us as being just about our fair proportion of the 300,000.

The quotas for the Congressional Districts are not yet received, having only been mailed yesterday, at Washington. They will reach us in about a week.

According to the letter of General Fry, to Governor Miller, which we recently published, it appears that much the larger proportion of this quota will fall upon this—the second—District.

He says:

"The excess of credits on the first day of August, was 1407, of which the First District is credited with 1,037, and the Second District with 370, and credit has been given for three years term of service on each unit. The First District furnished 1859 more years of service than the Second District and consequently the larger number to be furnished, under call of December 19th, falls on the Second District."

The fact that the draft is fixed at the 15th of February, will be a sufficient stimulus to active measures everywhere throughout the State to fill its quota.

The prospect, now so bright, of an early and glorious termination of the war, will no doubt be a powerful incentive to voluntary enlistments for a year's service. Hundreds of young men will be willing to go to assured victory and to share in the glory of triumphant onward marches, who would, perhaps, be reluctant to lend their strength and blood to a long, weary and doubtful struggle.

The circumstances are all auspicious for a reflux of the splendid enthusiasm which nearly four years ago impelled our young men to contend for the privilege of defending the honor of our flag. Everything that can encourage, and nothing that can depress, all the impulse of pride, and hope, and ambition, and the spirit of adventure, conspire with the nobler sentiment of patriotic duty to supply motives for enlistment. We hope and trust, therefore, that our quota will be filled without a resort to a draft.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS.

Mr. Porter's bill for the improvement for the Minnesota river passed the Senate on the 20th by a vote of 16 yeas to 4 nays. It is intended to have the work commenced at an early day.

Mr. Nicols, reported in favor of the claims of E. P. Evans, for expenses incurred in Blue Earth County during the Indian war amounting to $733.96.

Mr. Griswold gave notice that he would introduce a bill for an act to amend the Constitution so as to confer the right of citizenship on colored men.

Mr. Porter introduced a bill for an amendment to the Constitution authorizing any person or company to charge toll for improvements which he or they may make in the navigation of the rivers in Minnesota.

The Senate in Committee of the whole reported in favor of the memorial for a daily mail from Mankato to New Ulm.

On the 23rd Mr. Porter's bill for an act to incorporate the town of Mankato, was read the third time and passed.

Mr. Windom has introduced a resolution into the House of Representatives which asks that a committee of five be appointed to investigate all dealings and transactions of the government, through its agents and officers, with the various Indian tribes in the West. The resolution is intended as a thrust at certain Indian officials, and we hope the matter will be thoroughly investigated, as it will be highly pleasing to Mr. Windom's confrere, A. D. S. Balcombe. Adopt the resolution, by all means.

PUB. DOC.—Hon. Alexander Ramsey will accept our thanks for recent favors, in the shape of public documents.

We are under obligation to State Senator Porter for copies of the State Auditors and other reports.

From the Eleventh Regiment.

GALLATIN, Tenn., Jan 16, 1865.

To the Editor of the Union:

I desire to acknowledge the reception of several copies of your excellent paper. Though myself a stranger at Mankato, yet the items are of interest. But much more to the members of Co. C. who are delighted, and literally wear out every copy. The health of the regiment is excellent. Co. C. has lost two men. One by disease, and the other by an accidental gun [illegible].

The weather just now is very fine, but it has been horrible, and may be again to-morrow. The weather in this country, like the loyalty of many of its inhabitants, 'won't do to bet on."

The State Convention has just adjourned. Its proceedings were important to the future interests of Tennessee. Amendments to the constitution are to be submitted to the people, abolishing slavery, inaugurating an efficient common school system which has, as a delegate said, "proved so efficient in the North." They also nominated Parson Brownlow for Governor. He accepted in a characteristic speech, and foreshadowed his policy in the determination to shoot or hang every man that would not submit to the law of the land. East Tennesseeans are in earnest now, and you may look for some one to get hurt if the bushwhackers stay around a great while. So mote it be.

Yours truly,
C. G. BOWDISH
Chaplain of 11th Regiment.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

In St. Paul, a deserter named Jackson Moore, confined in the headquarters of the Provost Guard, drugged the sentinel appointed to guard him and effected his escape.

AMONG the National Banks just authorized to commence operations, we find the name of the Second National Bank, St. Paul. The capital of the Bank is $150,000, authorized to be increased to $500,000.

A MEETING of gentlemen has been held at Louisville to devise measures for a new Galt House. The Press says $500,000 can be readily subscribed for the purpose.

THE Express says: "A movement is now going on against Mobile. Prominent persons express the opinion that the city is now in our hands."

TERRY BLE.—It is reported in military circles that the real secret of the success of our second attack on Fort Fisher is, that the rebels were Terry fied into submission.

FIFTEEN hundred cases of small pox are reported at New Orleans. An extensive small pox hospital has been established.

☞ Two capital bargains have been made for the country during the past year. General McCLELLAN resigned and PHIL. SHERIDAN was appointed to fill the vacant Major Generalship. General FREMONT resigned and recently General THOMAS has been appointed in his stead.

STATE NEWS.

THE WRITING SCHOOL.—Prof. Shaw's Writing school is progressing finely, about one hundred and twenty scholars being in attendance. The scholars are unanimous in their expression of satisfaction with Mr. Shaw's style, and we expect, at the close of the school, the Professor will be "drafted" into the "service" for another term.

We understand it is his intention soon to open a writing school in Hudson.—We can assure our Hudson friends that they will find Prof. Shaw a gentleman of fine attainments in his profession, and every way worthy of their confidence and support.—Stillwater Messenger.

WOOD SAWER'S CLUB.—A large number of boys in Mankato have formed themselves into a club with the above title, the object of which is to saw and split up the wood piles for all the soldier's families living in that vicinity.—Every Saturday is a campaign day, in which they march in military order through the streets, from house to house, with their saws, axes and saw-horses on their shoulders.

We suggest that a score or two of our well-developed youths in this city, who are using up a large amount of superabundant strength and vitality in cutting flourishes on the ice and in hauling sleds up hill, form a club similar to the one in Mankato. There is a large field in our midst for charitable effort in that direction.—Stillwater Messenger.

A Woman Tries to Aid a Deserter.

A dispatch from Baltimore, dated the 1st, relates the following:

"A German woman named Mary L. Linder, arrived here on Friday last on the Norfolk boat, with a very large traveling trunk. She employed a hackman to take her and the trunk to a boarding house, where she stopped during Saturday. Her movements were very mysterious. She went about deeply veiled, and finally employed another hackman to take her trunk to the North Central Railroad, and remain there until her arrival. The trunk was directed to a man in Chicago.

The hackman waited but the woman did not appear, and the cars left. He carried the trunk back, and it was finally taken to the watch-house last night, and on being opened, the dead body of a man thirty-five years old, well dressed, was found inside. It proved to be a soldier named Samuel Freeborn, of the 20th New York Cavalry, now stationed at Norfolk.

The woman came up to-day and confessed she was aiding the man to desert in this way. He had been in the trunk several days, and slept there rather comfortably, but it is supposed he finally suffocated, or was killed by the trunk being carelessly knocked about, or was frozen to death. The woman makes a clean confession of her complicity, and is now in jail to await trial for aiding desertion, and murder.

Lincoln and Davis Contrasted.

From the Charleston Mercury Jan. 10th.

When Abraham Lincoln took the chair of the Presidency of the United States, he promised in his flat boat lingo to "run the machine as he found it."—Whether he has strictly kept his promise, those may doubt who choose to consider the subject. It is enough for us to know whether "running his machine" in the pathway of his predecessors, or not he has run it with a stern, inflexible purpose, a bold, steady hand, a vigilant, active eye, a sleepless energy, a fanatic spirit, and an eye single to his end—conquest—emancipation. He has called around him in counsel the ablest and most earnest men of his country.—Where he has lacked in individual ability, learning, experience or statesmanship, he has sought it, and has found it in the able men about him, whose assistance he unhesitatingly accepts, whose powers he applies to the advancement of the cause he has undertaken. In the cabinet and in the field he has consistently and fearlessly pressed on the search for men who could advance his cause, and has as unhesitatingly cut off all those who clogged it with weakness, timidity, imbecility or failure. Force energy, brains, earnestness, he has collected around him in every department.—Blackguard and buffoon as he is, he has pursued his end with an energy as untiring as an Indian, and a singleness of purpose that might almost be called patriotic. If he were not an unscrupulous knave in his end, and a fanatic in his political views, he would undoubtedly command our respect as a ruler, so far as we are concerned. Abroad and at home, he has exercised alike the same ceaseless energy and circumspection."

We turn our eyes to Richmond, and the contrast is appalling, sickening to the heart.

A Letter from Jeff. Davis.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.

The Richmond Whig of the 18th publishes a letter from Jeff. Davis in reply to a Senator's letter from Georgia, in which they took ground against the resolution introduced in the rebel House in favor of reconstruction.

Davis argues that a convention of the States is impracticable, and that peace movements on the part of individual States tend only to the creation of discord in the Confederacy. He says the only plan by which peace can be obtained is provided for in the rebel constitution. He does not say what this plan is, but proceeds at length to show that all propositions looking to convention and negotiations are futile; that the United States will not negotiate; that they will accept only a surrender which the rebel States cannot and will not grant.

A Question Settled.

When the Diplomatic Appropriation bill came up in the Senate a few days ago Senator Wade moved to amend the clause making appropriations "for diplomatic and consular expenses in Mexico" by inserting before the word 'Mexico,' the 'the republic of.' He said there were two governments in Mexico, and we could recognize none but the 'Republic.' We had nothing to do with the 'Empire.' The amendment of Mr. Wade was adopted. The Consular Appropriation bill was then passed.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Sherman's Army On the Move—The Captured Cotton—Secretary Stanton's return.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.

The World's Port Royal correspondent of the 7th says:—Ere this reaches New York, Sherman's grand army will be on the move, and we will soon hear of the Stars and Stripes floating over more conquered rebel cities.

A brother of Gen. Hardee and others having made claim to the cotton in Savannah, Gen. Sherman gave them a written reply, in which he said the cotton ought to go into the hands of the Government, which, he said, could never be indemnified for the blood and treasure required to regain possession of Savannah. This was his opinion, still they might go to Washington, and try to have the decision revoked.

The Times' Savannah correspondent of the 17th says, at this writing, the left wing of Sherman's army is moving from Savannah on a line which the enemy may possibly ascertain for himself. It is thought the rebels will make a stand at Asheps, thirty miles north of Charleston and then fall back on the city. They have not the men nor the stamina to stand against Sherman's magnificent army.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.

Mr. Stanton who has been to Savannah, promoted several officers, including Kilpatrick, who was breveted Major General.

Mr. Draper was superintending the shipment of the captured cotton. Several vessels were already loaded with it, and when a sufficient number were in readiness to sail, they would be dispatched northward under a strong gunboat convoy. Two or three unsuccessful incendiary attempts to destroy portions of the immense stores of the valuable staple, had been made. President Lincoln has issued an order, opening the Savannah Post Office for regular mail business.

Preparing to Evacuate Charleston.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.

The World's Savannah correspondent says: The rebels, expecting an advance on Charleston, are making preparations to evacuate that city and have already commenced removing Government property.

A Rebel Transformed to a Duke

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.

Letters from Mazatlin to the 14th inst., announce the arrival of Capt. Beauregard, brother of Beauregard of the Confederate States, in capacity of Private Secretary to Wm Gwynne, formerly United States Senator for California. Capt. Beauregard reports that Gwynne has been created Duke by the Emperor Maximillian.

Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.

The Senate, in Executive session today, confirmed the nomination Chas. A. Danna Assistant Secretary of War to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Peter H. Watson.

Official Paper of the County

PROF. HAWLEY'S CONCERT.—Several weeks ago Prof. W. E. Hawley, of Medford, in this State, came to Mankato, and advertised to teach vocal music. Without any trouble a class numbering forty-six was soon obtained, and he commenced teaching. Many of his scholars, though good singers, could not read music, but when the term closed could read quite readily. His reputation as an accomplished teacher is fully established in the State, and his efforts here have not detracted from it in the least. His labors among our singers for the present, were concluded on Saturday evening last, by giving a grand concert in the Presbyterian Church, on which occasion the entire class participated in the exercises.

Several gentlemen and ladies from St. Peter were present during the three days and very materially aided the class in the concert. Among those present we would mention Mrs. Tibbetts, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. McGill, Mr. Colten, Mr. Williams, and Rev. Mr. Richardson. From Owatonna, the friends who assisted at the concert were Mr. Abbott, Miss Abbott, Miss Dailey, and Miss Hawley, of Medford. All of these friends are excellent singers, well read in music, and more than that, are very social people.

We would like to mention each piece on the programme, and the names of those who took part in singing it, but our space forbids, and we can only particularize on some of the quartettes and duetts. The other pieces were, without exception, well rendered. "The Broken Stile," by Miss Anna Sibley, was well executed. "We all wear Cloaks," a song and chorus, by Messrs. Lindholm, Sargent, Dunham and Abbott, produced a good deal of merriment. "Lay me down and save the flag," a song and chorus, was sung by Mrs. Pitcher and was admirably sung. Mrs. P. has a rich, clear voice, and will make a fine singer. "Nicodemus," sung by Miss Carrie Pease, was rendered equal to any on the programme. Miss Pease is a new beginner in singing, and by practice she will rank among the best. "Coming thro' the Rye," by Mrs. Tibbetts, gave the best of satisfaction. Mrs. Tibbetts is probably one of the best singers in the State, and her appearance before any audience would be highly creditable to older towns. Mrs. Davis is a very sweet singer, and sang several pieces. Miss Daily assisted in singing the "Star and Stripes." She has a sweet clear voice.

The concert closed by singing "Praise God from whom all blessing flow," &c., in which the audience joined; but before closing the following series of resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted:

Whereas it has been well said that 'vocal music' as a study, has the most favorable influence upon all the mental powers; that it is a source, also of the purest and most rational pleasures; that it guards the temper, regulates the passions and improves the heart; and above all, that it inspires the sentiment of devotion, gratitude and praise to the Great Author of all good. Therefore, Resolved

1st, That we regard the cultivation of this pleasing, useful and important branch of education as not only the privilege but the imperative duty of all well wishers to our common humanity in all civilized communities, in the best manner possible. Resolved,

2d, That we regard ourselves as a class—as highly favored in having had the privilege of attending upon the able and fruitful instructions in this important branch of Prof Hawley, and wish him appropriate success in this arduous but delightful labor elsewhere. Resolved,

3d, By the citizens, we too desire to give our hearty expression of approbation as to the improvement of the musical class of our town under the direction of Prof Hawley, and we do hereby express our appreciation of his capacity as a musical instructor second to none, and of our hope that wherever he goes he may have the same favorable success attending his labors

Resolved, 4th, That as a class, and as citizens we tender our hearty and unqualified thanks to our friends from St. Peter and Owatonna who have kindly aided us on this occasion, and also to the Trustees of the Presbyterian Society for the free use of their Church.

Our citizens have reason to be proud of the musical talent which this concert has drawn out. Many of the Professor's class have all the elements that make good singers, and we would suggest that efforts be made to organize a 'Musical Society,' and thus keep in practice all of the present class.

A SHOOTING AFFRAY.—An affray occurred at Garden City, on Saturday evening which resulted in a Mr. Graves being shot in the hip by Mr. A. G. La Grange, the landlord of the hotel. A special town meeting had been held during the day, to vote a bounty to volunteers. Several persons had partaken quite freely of liquor, and towards night the effects became apparent. They visited the hotel in the evening, and made themselves merry by breaking up the furniture, and trying to put a beer keg in the stove, and committing other depredations; but Mr. La Grange finally succeeded in getting them out and fastened up his house for the night. About nine o'clock the party returned to the house, and finding the lights all out, commenced pounding on the door, breaking the door knob off, and throwing a stone through the window. Not succeeding in effecting an entrance, they went away, and when about four rods from the house, we are informed, Mr. La Grange opened the door and fired at the party. The contents of his shot gun, in which there was over eighty shot, hitting Mr. Graves in the hip. Mr. Jones picked Mr. Graves up and carried him into Barney's drug store. Dr. Wellcome was called and dressed the wound. On Saturday morning Dr. Wellcome sent for Dr. Clark, of this place, to consult with. We have not been able to obtain the full particulars, as there are various versions of the affair, and our report was gathered from different persons. The examination takes place to-day before Esquire Marvin, Mr. Barney, of Mankato is attorney for the State, and Mr. Wiswell for the defendant.

RECRUITING.—The persons engaged in recruiting for the heavy artillery feel highly encouraged at the success they have meet with. They have already secured over one hundred men, and many more are promised. There will be no difficulty in raising the number in the next ten days. It is a noticeable fact that only one person has thus far been credited to the town of Mankato. Others are holding off waiting to see where they can get the largest bounty. This regard for money matters is all well enough, but it appears to us that men should take some pride in helping to fill the quota of their own towns thus keeping away the draft. No town feels itself under obligations to support, or render aid to the family of a soldier who is credited to another town, and yet it often happens that such assistance is necessary from the failure of the Government to pay up promptly. This fact should not be forgotten.

WE call attention to the advertisement of A. Blakeman, jeweler, of St. Paul, which we publish in our columns. Mr. B. deals extensively in all kinds of jewelry, and silver, and plated ware, and keeps on hand a large stock of the celebrated Seth Thomas' clocks, which he sells at wholesale. Jewelers who wish to replenish their stock without sending East, or who are in the habit of buying at St. Paul, cannot do better than to patronize Mr. Blakeman. We have known him intimately for a number of years, and his word can be relied on. All his goods are warranted.

THE LADIES NATIONAL.—None of the monthly magazines are more sought after this year than Petersons'. His monthly is vastly improved over last year. The February number which is now before us, contains a beautiful steel engraving of "The Birds at Breakfast." Then follows a colored fashioned plate, a wood cut illustration, eleven pages of patterns, embroidery, crochet work, and a beautiful piece of music for the guitar. These are alone worth the price of a year's subscription, to say nothing about the sixty pages of good reading which it contains.

IN SEARCH OF KNOWLEDGE UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—A kitten was seen chasing its tail on the door step of a house on Broad street, the other night. Deputy Marshal Pugh being in sight, was called, and ordered to arrest the kitten, and ascertain the reason of its running around so furiously. Upon doing so he discovered, attached to its 'narrative' a notice that Lewis & Frisbie would commence receiving their new goods the first of next week.

A DESERTER ARRESTED.—Deputy Marshal Pugh arrested George L. Ebelseiger, last week, at the Mankato House. He was drafted from the town of Leavenworth, Brown county, in December last, and had failed to report. When arrested by the Marshal, he said he was on his way to Rochester, but on examining the way bill at the stage office, it was found that he had bought a ticket through to La Crosse. He was taken before Capt. See, at St. Peter, and held to trial for desertion.

REV. MR. JENKIN'S DONATION.—The donation visit paid to this excellent gentleman at South Bend on Monday evening last, was a very pleasant one indeed. The proceeds amounted to $50 65.—Quite a number of persons were present. W. W. Davis, Esq., who is an excellent singer, favored the company with a few of his choice songs, and others were called upon to make short speeches, and taken altogether it was one of the most sociable gatherings of the kind ever had in South Bend.

A JOKE.—It is said about town, for the truth of which, we will not vouch, that one of the proprietors of the "Rabbit Park," just across the river, at this place, gave his family physician fifty dollars to give him a certificate to exempt him from the draft, when his disability was of so clear a nature that the Board would have exempted him without any certificate. He thinks this exemption business is a "big thing" on ice especially when the law is brought out.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—Godey has really taken his subscribers by storm, in presenting them with such a magnificent number for February. A beautiful steel engraving 'Sabbath Eve,' is given this month together with over sixty other engravings, and the large amount of interesting reading matter makes the February number more attractive than ever. All who wish to read one of the very best magazines published should subscribe for Godey.

THE BOARD OF ENROLLMENT.—The Enrolling Board closed its session in this place yesterday. Over fourteen hundred persons underwent an examination, of whom about one-fourth were exempted from service. In this town out of 309 names over 100 were exempted. We had intended to publish a list of the exempts this week, but have not been able to get it ready. We shall publish the correct enrollment list of the county in a short time.

BANK AT NEW ULM.—A bank has been organized at this place, styled the First National Bank of New Ulm, with a capital of $60,000. Hon. D. G. Shillock is President, H. A. Subilia, Cashier, and J. C. Randolph, Assistant Cashier. The gentlemen connected with it, are men of means, responsible, and honest, and their known business ability is a guarantee that the bank will be well conducted.

GOOD SLEIGHING.—Since our last issue snow to the depth of eight inches has fallen, and we are now favored with tip-top sleighing. But the weather has been so excessively cold that there is no enjoyment in a sleigh ride. Give us a few of your warm rays, old Sol, and the tinkle of bells will be heard in every direction.

THE BOUNTY VOTE.—We have not been able to get from the clerk the figures on the result of the election last Saturday, but it passed off very quietly, and was carried in favor of the bounty four to one, or, as an indignant friend expresses it, "it was carried like h—l! d—n 'em!"

IT is said that at death a man arrives at immense knowledge, and doesn't open his mouth. But we fail to find it anywhere recorded that it's against the law for any one to go to Wickersham's drug store, and buy a bottle of Smith's writing fluid, or any other of the excellent articles that Jason keeps for sale.

ARTHUR FOR FEBRUARY is on our table. It is really an interesting number, and contains another instalment of that excellent story, "Not Anything for Peace." Arthur's Magazine is ranking among the best now published, and no pains is spared to make it attractive.

VERY TRUE.—The more we know, the less we say, and that's the reason why so many people have bought goods at White & Marks the past week without saying "nary a word." They knew where to get good bargains.

Citizens in the township of Danville have signed and forwarded to the Postmaster General a petition for a mail route from the Agency to Minnesota Lake, also asking that a Mr. Blake be appointed postmaster. Mr. B. is a very worthy man, and would fill the position creditably.

We hope our readers have not suffered from the severe cold of the past few days, for want of good warm clothing, which might have been procured, and still can be had at Randall's at bargains. Give him a call.

ANOTHER MINNESOTA GENERAL.—General Ames, who led the assault on Fort Fisher, the greatest feat of the war, is a citizen of this State, and when at home, resides in Northfield, Rice County, where his father now lives.

WE call attention to Lewis & Frisbie's new advertisement in this issue.

OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright aegis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch writer living; P. T. Barnum the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novelette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo. Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Patten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquettish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faithful and elegant highly illustrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the great Fashion Article by Jennie June, whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War by Alfred Trumple; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. BRADDON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long [illegible] subscribers against the [illegible] tics which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 20 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage.

Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State.

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Trubner's Guide to American Literature London.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

OF
NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its [illegible] for the new year, over the wrecks of its feeble and lifeless contemporaries, with its [illegible] fixed upon the sun, beneath which it [illegible] no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] for the year of 1865 shake the [illegible] whatever [illegible] in serial [illegible] tier its tribute [illegible] filling [illegible] of Miss [illegible], romancer of the [illegible] whose [illegible] entry [illegible] in the [illegible] to [illegible] modern [illegible] of the [illegible] of belle, [illegible] will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable [illegible] papers, written expressly for its [illegible] irresistibly [illegible] Herbert [illegible], the most polished [illegible] imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. [illegible] world [illegible] and [illegible] grapher; Mrs. [illegible], Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," [illegible] versatile [illegible] of such facile [illegible], fabulists, humorists, [illegible], paragraphists, [illegible], Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Aldred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, [illegible] Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. [illegible], and others, [illegible] enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, [illegible], and White, the first [illegible] of the [illegible], will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or [illegible] to [illegible] appear during the year, will be [illegible] made available.

In addition to [illegible] and telling editorials; its delectable [illegible] Chat, in which the [illegible] and [illegible] and hal [illegible] of the time first appear, and a [illegible] Ladies' Promenade, to [illegible] sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their [illegible], The New York Mercury will continue the [illegible] and elegant highly illustrative of the oldest aisles, and [illegible] of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly [illegible] upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to [illegible] of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated sketches of Grotesque Adventure in foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trumpet; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry [illegible], the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. H. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. [illegible], written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and the enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter, will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, [illegible] year; three copies, $7; six copies, [illegible]; nine copies $20. The party who sends us [illegible] for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send [illegible] cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage. Correspondents should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State. Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

HARPER'S
NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the [illegible] a more enterprising friend than Harper's magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Tribune's Guide to American Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as cannot be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

—o—

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank, which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only is pledged for payment, while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositories of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

THE PRETTY MACHINE.

You may see them at work any time of the day;
Oh, what dainty perfection their movements display!
There's a rustling and swaying as onward they sweep
And the dirt of the pavement before them they heap;
It's the finest invention that ever was seen,
This pretty, new-fangled street-sweeping machine.

They are simple in shape, they are easy to move,
And the walk of a city they vastly improve;
You may have them of silk, or barege, or delaine,
You may have them trimmed gaily, or have them quite plain.
It's the neatest invention that ever was seen,
This pretty, new-fangled street-sweeping machine.

There are some who declare they demand too much room,
There are some who prefer, too, the old style of broom.
But all these are old fogies, who always cry down
Every bright innovation with anger and frown;
It's the nicest invention that ever was seen,
This pretty, new-fangled street-sweeping machine.

In what delicate folds round the owners they flow!
In what shimmering slopes to the pavement they go!
Where's the use of contractors for cleaning the street,
When the job's neatly done by the fairies we meet?
It's the rarest invention that ever was seen,
This pretty, new-fangled street-sweeping machine.

THE SONG OF THE PRINTER.

Pick and click,
Goes the type in the stick,
As the printer stands at his case;
His eyes glance quick, and his fingers pick
The type at a rapid pace;
And one by one as the letters go,
Words are piled up steady and slow—
Steady and slow,
But still they grow,
And words of fire they soon will glow;
Wonderful words, that without a sound
Traverse the earth to its utmost bound;
Words that shall make
The tyrant quake
And the fetters of the oppressed shall break;
Words that can crumble an army's might,
Or treble its strength in a righteous fight.
Yet the type they look but leaden and dumb,
As he puts them in place with finger and thumb,
But the printer smiles,
And his work beguiles
By chanting a song as the letters he piles,
With pick and click,
Like the world's chronometer, tick! tick! tick!

O, where is the man with such simple tools
Can govern the world like I?
With a printing press, an iron stick,
And a little leaden die,
With paper of white, and ink of black,
I support the Right, and the Wrong attack.

Say where is he, or who may he be,
That can rival the printer's power?
To no monarchs that live the wall doth he bow;
Their sway lasts only an hour;
While the printer still grows, and God only knows
When his might shall cease to tower!

Select Miscellany.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE MINNESOTA RIVER.

The following debate on Mr. Porter's bill to appropriate $3,000 for the improvement of the Minnesota river, occurred in the House on the 26th ult.

The House then resolved itself into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Taylor, of Stearns, in the Chair.

Senate File, No. 5, a bill for the improvement of navigation on the Minnesota River, appropriating $3,000 therefor, was taken up.

Mr. Poehler moved that when the Committee rise, it report the bill back and recommend its passage.

Mr. Cornell moved an amendment, appropriating a similar sum for the improvement of the Rum River. In proposing it he remarked that he was not prepared to say anything now for or against the policy of granting aid as provided in the bill. The object of the act was to unlock the large stores of wheat now held in the Minnesota Valley. It was a praiseworthy measure, truly, but he proposed similar aid for one equally so—bringing out the lumber from Rum River. Only a small appropriation would be necessary for the purpose, and when accomplished it would contribute materially to the prosperity of the State. He hoped the amendment would be adopted.

Mr. Smith said its adoption would lead to something there would be no end to. Other localities would come in urging similar appropriations. Let each one stand on its own merits. He thought the object of tacking on this amendment was to kill the bill. He urged adherence to the theory proposed by Mr. Cornell himself, that the friends of a bill should perfect it as much as possible, and thus let it go through on its merits.

Mr. Cornell denied that his object was to kill the bill. He proposed a new appropriation—let each appropriation stand on its own merits. The question "how far will the State Treasury stand it?" comes up before other amendments can be considered, and whether the interests in which the most capital is tied up do not want attention first. His amendment was one of importance enough to demand such attention. His constituents desired such an appropriation, and he was expressing their determination to have it, by thus offering it. There are 60,000,000 feet of logs in Rum River, that can be brought out by such an appropriation and any one can see the great good to flow from its execution.

Mr. Smith again urged the separation of the amendment into a new bill. He had generally opposed "omnibus" bills, because he regarded them as dangerous. Thus the friends of one measure can unite with those of another, and secure enough votes to pass a bill, whose measures would not pass separately on their merits. There were other localities that would be urging similar claims. In fact, he had designed offering a bill appropriating money for a bridge on Kettle River. He might with equal propriety try to tack it on to this bill.

Mr. Armstrong said that though he, as a general thing, thought bills of this nature wrong in principle, this measure seemed so meritorious, that if the small appropriation called for would accomplish the object desired, he would go for it. But if the bill were loaded down with amendments, in his opinion it would fall. The original bill was the one demanding consideration first. The members from the Minnesota Valley say they can get all the wheat out if the navigation can be improved as desired, but that the work must commence without much delay.

Mr. Gilfillan said he thought Mr. Cornell was sincere in declaring that he did not want to kill the bill, but that his amendment would have that effect. If, said he, Mr. Cornell will introduce a separate bill for the Rum River improvement, I will vote for it. I agree with Mr. Smith, that every bill should stand separate and alone, on its own merits.

I regard this bill as a very important one for the whole State. There are, I am credibly informed one million bushels of wheat in the Minnesota Valley, that will be brought to market if the navigation of the river can be improved as proposed. This is an amount equal to one-third the product of the State, thus locked up. A very small sum, comparatively, will clear the river out, so that it will always remain in navigable condition. The beneficial effects of such a policy will be felt by the whole State, not only now, but in the future.

I consider the getting out of the large amount of logs in the Rum River pineries as equally important, but desire to see it stand on its own merits. This amendment alone will not so much affect the bill, but if we admit that, we must admit other amendments, for improvements in other localities, and thus finally the bill will be killed. I again urge that each measure pass on its own merits.

Mr. Hewson said he thought the amendment should not be tacked on the bill, although he should go for such a measure, because it was one in which his constituency was deeply interested.

Mr. Cornell replied that he could not see why the House might not determine on the merits of the proposition in its present shape, for it was as much a distinct proposition or measure as if thrown into a separate bill. He thought there was not another improvement that could be proposed, that would unlock and open to market such an amount of products. In consideration of measures of this character we should see how we can reap the greatest benefit to the greatest number, and surely two more important subjects than wheat and lumber could not be legislated for in one bill.

He disagreed with Mr. Smith in calling this an omnibus bill, in case his amendment was adopted. An 'omnibus' bill is one which ties together propositions of divers kinds. This does not.—It extends its benefits over the whole State. And if there are other amendments of equal general benefit, he would go in for them. Mr. Gilfillan's constituency is as much interested in the Rum River Improvement as his own is. Capital from St. Paul is as much tied up in the logs in Rum River, as in wheat up the Minnesota Valley. The lumbering and agricultural interests are of equal value to St. Paul. And he would tell the gentleman from Isanti (Mr. Hewson) that if he failed to secure the measure now, it fails entirely.

Mr. Stowell said he felt considerable interest in this measure. He had no desire to kill the bill, but thought it should pass. It would bring into market a great source of the wealth of the State. But he fully endorsed Mr. Cornell's amendment, and his views. In fact that gentleman had rather understated the value of the Rum River Improvement to the State. Four million dollars worth of logs are now locked up in Rum River—the results of two years' lumbering operations. Last year the lumbermen laid out considerable of their own means in endeavoring to improve the river.

He could not see why the amendment would not do as well in this bill as in a separate bill. Each locality would have to bring forward its own bill then. And he was opposed to any discrimination in favor of the wheat interest against the lumber interest.

Mr. Smith said that the lumber and the wheat interests were the two prominent interests of the State, undoubtedly. But taking measures together is apt to produce unwise legislation. He did not refer to this case so much, as to the danger of allowing a precedent. Members will form rings: "You go for mine and I will go for yours," will be the plan, and undeserving measures will then pass, sandwiched in with meritorious ones.

Mr. Gilman said he did not object to Mr. Cornell having the sense of the House on each separate proposition, but the difficulty comes after that. Suppose the majority favor the Rum River Appropriation and oppose the Minnesota. Now the question for them to decide is whether they ought to vote for the bill, which contains a clause they do not like, or oppose the whole bill because it is there. Thus for the sake of securing a part that is right, they are compelled to vote for the part that is wrong.

As regarded the question of the relative importance to the State of releasing the capital tied up in the two interests, he could not draw a discriminating line, but wanted the House to judge on each separately, and not tie them up in one bill.

Mr. Cornell asked—Then why not vote on each amendment separately—they will thus show on their own merits. The plan of the bill is to unlock the wheat wealth of the State. Next [illegible]
Bollo Plaine. Thus the Valley will have two avenues of shipping their wheat Rum River has not one now. The wheat and lumber interests are the only one that commands our attention, so that no other localities can press their claims for appropriations.

Mr. Armstrong said he took a broader view of the question than in a sectional light, or as regards any one interest. Rum River is not a navigable stream. The Minnesota is. It is one of our national highways. General commerce is not carried on on Rum River. It has but one interest. On the navigation of the Minnesota many branches of Trade and Commerce depend, and a large proportion of the population of our State will feel the good flowing from its improvement. It is the poorer classes that have an interest in it—the settlers who raise wheat. In the Rum River Improvement but few are interested, and they are heavy capitalists. It is their interests Mr. Cornell was advocating.

Mr. Hewson said the poor settlers in his region needed the improvement of Rum River as much as those on the Minnesota did of that river. Besides, the latter needed cheap lumber, and so the improvement of Rum River would benefit them too.

Mr. Aldrich denied Mr. Armstrong's position that the lumbermen were wealthy. The real lumbermen, who do the logging, a very numerous class, are poor. Their means are tied up in the logs, and all classes feel the pressure. More than four or five million of dollars are thus tied up. Lumber is a necessity. Farmers need it for their improvements.—He hoped the bill would pass, but desired also that Cornell's amendment should be adopted.

Mr. Smith again urged arguments in favor of considering the Rum River matter in a separate bill.

Mr. Cornell said his duty to his constituency required him to press the amendment. He wished to have the Senate vote on the proposition at the same time with the bill before them. In reference to the argument of the Speaker that the Minnesota River Improvement is in the interest of the poorer classes, he said their wheat had already passed out of their hands into those of rich capitalists.

Mr. Speaker—It will affect the next crop.

Mr. Cornell—And by that time they will have a railroad. The lumbermen are generally persons of small means.—They borrow money in the fall and procure supplies and do their winter's logging. As they can't sell their logs, their obligations are still pressing upon them.

Mr. Poehler wished the bill to pass soon, as the work should be commenced at once. He refuted the statements that the wheat in the Minnesota Valley was owned by capitalists. The last crop is yet held by farmers, since the capitalists quit buying a year ago, as they could not ship any.

Mr. Stowell said it was true that agriculture underlies all other interests, and the farmers in his region had a better market in the lumbering camps than at St. Paul. What is a tax of $3,000 when four or five million dollars can be set in circulation. Lumber is essential to our State's progress. Its scarcity for a couple of years has crippled the growth of nearly all our towns, and embarrassed agriculture, too.

Mr. Cornell's amendment was here put and lost, and Mr. Poehler's motion adopted. After considering one or two more bills, the House then rose and reported.

Mr. Cornell called for separate action on the Improvement Bill, and moved to amend the report of the Committee of the Whole, so as to refer it to a select committee of five, to enquire into the expediency of making an appropriation for the Improvement of Rum River, and such other streams as general public interests require. Lost, yeas 12 nays 24.

Mr. Cornell then moved to amend by adding his former amendment. The yeas and nays being called for and ordered there were yeas 10, and nays 28.

Yeas—Messrs. Aldrich, Cornell, Downer, Hewson, Huntoon, Locke, Stowell, Charles Taylor, Teachout and Tuthill.

Nays—Messrs. Bullis, Beatty, Chalfant, Colville, Crane, Crooker, Davis, Evans, Gilfillan, Gilman, Goodrich, Griswold, Harrington Jay, Keister, Patten, Poehler, Renz, Rigby, Rogers, Shandrew, Smith, Stark, Oscar Taylor, Tew, West, Whittemore and Mr. Speaker.

So the motion was lost and the House adjourned.

A droll story is told of an honest, solid farmer, who in attempting to drive home a bull got suddenly hoisted over the fence. Recovering himself he saw the animal on the other side of the fence sawing the air with his head and neck, and pawing the ground. The good old man looked steadily at him a moment and exclaimed: 'Darn your apologies; you need'nt stand there, you tarnal critter, a bowin' and scrapen', you did it a purpose, darn your ugly pictures'.

INFLUENCE OF LOVE-TOKENS.—There is after all, something in those trifles which friends bestow upon each other, which is an unfailing indication of the place the giver holds in the affections. I would believe that one who preserved a lock of hair, a single flower, or any trifle of my bestowing, loved me, though no show were made of it; while all the protestations in the world would not win me if I knew they set no value on such things. Trifles they may be, but it is by [illegible] character and disposition are oftenest revealed.—Washington Irving.

"Breathe Through Your Nose."

Correspondence St. Paul Pioneer.

I noticed, some time since, a fugitive paragraph going the rounds of the papers with the above caption. I have now forgotten what it said, but the subject is of more importance than most people are aware of. It is fraught with consequences of serious importance to health and life. There are but few people who seem to know what their noses are made for. They seem to regard them as ugly protuberances, designed to point the facial angle and adorn the major expansions. But the nose is designed for a more important office—namely, to breathe through. While most people have a vague idea that the nostrils are intended for this purpose—in certain contingencies, while the mouth is plugged up with food, for instance—few realize the importance of this provision to health, comfort and even life. It is a very erroneous impression to suppose that the mouth will answer for breathing as well as the nose. The mouth never was intended to be used for this purpose, except as an occasional substitute. Its almost universal employment in this way, therefore, is a perversion of nature, acquired by habit. The Creator, designed the nose as the ventilating pipe of the system. The advantages and disadvantages of a neglect of its proper use may be briefly stated as follows.

1. The nose is a longer, narrower, and more tortuous route to the lungs than the mouth. It is intended to convey the air in an equable stream so as to gradually inflate the lungs. Two objects are accomplished by this. First, in slowly passing through the winding nasal passage, the air becomes warmed so as to be agreeable to the lungs; and in the second place, it is gradually admitted to them, so that there is ample time to allow the blood to absorb all the oxygen it contains.

2. The external meatus (or orifice) of the nasal passage is provided with a growth of hair, which most people take great pains to keep pulled out. This is wrong for this fringe is intended for an important purpose. It is designed as a sieve or strainer of the air, to arrest the coarser particles of foreign matter, such as lint, dirt, dust &c., which are sometimes mixed with the air, and which if allowed to enter the lungs, clog up the smaller tubes and create tickling and irritation of the lungs, and produce cough. Never pull a hair out of the nostrils, but they may be clipped off a little if they project out. The moustache of gentlemen answers a somewhat similar purpose, and should always be allowed to grow.

3. By breathing through the nose you avoid any danger of its ever freezing in cold weather. The warm air passing out through it from the lungs will prevent this. Besides you will never have a "cold in the head."

4. By breathing through the mouth, all these advantages are not only lost, but many disadvantages are incurred.—The air is drawn in all in a bulk; the lungs do not dilate to half their capacity before they contract and expel it, before the blood has absorbed all its oxygen, or parted with all its own carbonic acid gas. The cold air playing on the fauces, tonsils, and larger bronchial tubes produces inflamation, catarrh, and bronchitis. The air is thus admitted to the lungs without preparation, often too cold, or too hot,—for in summer the nostrils cool the air if heated too much.—which induces irritation and inflamation, and lays the foundation for half the consumptions, pneumonias, and bad colds. Not only this but all the sand, dust, lint, &c., that is in the air is sucked right down into the small tubes where much of it remains till it produces sufficient irritation to induce coughing to expel it. I remarked that the exterior of the nasal passage was fringed with hair as a seive. While this arrests the coarser particles, the mucus membranes of the passage are covered with a tenacious moist mucus which absorbs the finer particles. Therefore, there is philosophy and good sense in the injunction to "breathe through your nose."

BUTTER AND POTATOES.—Mrs. Stowe's receipts for making butter and cooking potatoes are good enough for a place in this column:

To keep the cream in a perfectly pure, cool atmosphere, to churn while it is yet sweet, to work out the buttermilk thoroughly, and to add salt with such direction as not to ruin the fine, delicate flavor of the cream.—All this is quite simple, that one wonders at thousands and millions of pounds of butter yearly manufactured which are merely a hobgoblin bewitchment of cream into foul and loathsome poisons.

We have seen boiled potatoes from an untaught cook coming upon the table like lumps of yellow wax,—and the same article, the day after, under the directions of a skillful mistress, appearing in snowy balls of powdery lightness. In the one case, they were thrown in their skins into water, and suffered to soak or boil, as the case might be, at the cooks leisure. and after they were boiled to stand in the water till she was ready to peal them. In the other case, the potatoes being first peeled were boiled as quickly as possible in salted water, which the moment they were done they were drained off, and then they were gently shaken for a minute or two over the fire to dry them still more thoroughly. We have never yet seen the potato so depraved and given over to evil that could not be reclaimed by this mode of treatment. As to fried potatoes, who that remembers the crisp, golden slices of the french restaurant, thin as wafers and light as snow-flakes, [illegible] does not speak respectfully of them? What cousinship with these have those coarse, grassy masses of solid potato, wholly soggy and partly burnt, to which we are treated under the name of fried potatoes a la America?

An Editor at a Dance.

The editor of the Lansing (Iowa) Journal, has been to a social hop, and here is what he says about it:

WE HOPPETH.—Last Thursday evening brought another attack of hops, and we had 'em bad. It was a nice night, and a goodly number of people met at Martl's. Music came to us sweetly, and we felt jubilant and light of heel. We glided into the mazy dance, became lost in its intricate twistifications. A fellow in the orchestra makes it his special business to 'boss' the people around. He ordered us about with great rapidity, and without regard to whether we knew how to obey his bossin.' As a natural result of his carelessness, we were repeatedly ensnarled. It is very distressing to find one's self between a couple who insist on holding on to each other very closely and promenading around, when at the same time your partner is waiting for you to come to her arms—hands we mean!

It is also discouraging to stand on the floor and see your partner go off with another 'feller,' and you in the meantime having no remedy but to bite your finger nails! It also makes one lonesome to have another chap come along and take your place when you are on the floor ready for a dance, and tell you to sit down! and in the meantime your partner sticks out her tongue at you and accompanies the act with a twist of her mouth.

We finally got to the southwest corner of the dance. We had got along considerably for awhile, until we observed a row of men and boys, who seemed captivated by our original and recherche style of dancing. After a time a stub nosed urchin with 'yaller' hair remarked: 'Say, mister, hadn't you better move that left leg of yourn wunce 'n a while?' We observed the insinuation, and accordingly proceeded to 'put in our left' with great vigor for about five minutes. We found ourselvis near him again, when he grinned and said: 'That's bully for the left, but ain't it about time you stirred the other some?' By this time we discovered that the bystanders took a lively interest in our style of steps, and although we had previously concluded that it would not be worth our while to let ourself out on a common hop, we determined to throw in a few of our fancy steps and astonish the natives. Accordingly we opened with a 'pigeon wing' quickly followed by a double back action flamadoodle kick, and brought up on the home stretch with a grand Kangaroo walk around, which delighted the spectators, and squelched the youth with the 'yaller' hair. It also was the universal admiration of one man—an auctioneer, who, in the highest of his enthusiasm made this first class observation: 'I've seen some pretty tall dancing in my day, but darn my buttons if that didn't knock the hind sights off the whole caboodle of 'em!'

We soon after went home, proud, happy, lame, tired and sleepy.

How the News of Peace was Received in 1815.

Years ago the office of the New York Gazette was in Hannover Square, near the corner of Pearl street. It was a place of resort for news and conversation, especially in the evening. The evening of February 15th, 1815, was cold, and at a late hour, only Alderman Sebra and another gentleman were left with father Lang, the genius of the place. The office was about being closed, when a pilot rushed in, and stood for a moment so entirely exhausted as not to be able to speak.

'He has got news!' said Mr. Lang.

Presently the pilot, gasping for breath, whispered intelligibly—'Peace! Peace!'

The gentlemen lost their breath as fast as the pilot gained his. Directly the pilot was able to say—

'An English sloop is below, with news of a treaty of peace!'

They say that Mr. Lang exclaimed, in greater words than he ever used before—and all hands rushed into Hannover Square exclaiming—'Peace! Peace!'

The windows flew up—for families lived there then. No sooner were the inmates sure of the sweet sound of peace, than the windows began to glow with brilliant illuminations. The cry of 'peace peace!' spread through the city at the top of all voices. No one stopped to enquire about "free trade and sailor's rights." No one enquired whether the national honor had been preserved. The matters by which the politicians had irritated the nation into the war, had lost all their importance. It was enough that the ruinous war was over. An old man on Broadway, attracted by the noise to his door, was seen to pull down a placard, 'To Let,' which had been long posted up. Never was there such joy in the city. A few evenings after, there was a general illumination, and although the snow was a foot deep, and soaked with rain, yet the streets were crowded with men and women, eager to see and partake of everything which had in it the sight or taste of peace.

CRIME IN ENGLAND.—Our cousins across the water have a bad and unhandsome habit of thanking God that they are not as other people, especially the wicked Yankees, are in the matter of offences against the moral law. It is a painful fact, however that in no country in the world is there so much of brutality and outgageous crime as in England. A Liverpool paper furnishes the following specimens of England in the year of our Lord 1864:

'The season of christmas seems to be remarkable for crime and riotous inebriety.—At the Bow street police office, London, there were more persons arrested on the 25th than the cells could accomodate, and the extent of dissipation is declared to be unprecedentedly great. At Stafford two men were executed on the 27th for murder, three men for the same offense, were under sentence of death at Liverpool, one of whom has been respited. In London, an Italian named Poliono, in a public house brawl, killed one man by stabbing him in the abdomen, and dangerously wounded two others. At Brighton, a wretched cripple, without either of his legs, deliberately blew out the brains of a man with whom he had some trumpery quarrel. At Aldershot, the body of a man has been found and it is believed that a murder has been commited. At Clemsford, Wayne, the man who murdered Amelia Blunt, was hanged. At Liverpool, thirty cases occupied the coroners attention in a single day, and in fifteen of these cases, the persons were found dead'

The Tax Law Unconstitutional.

We learn that the Supreme Court of e State has recently decided that the x law of 1862, authorizing the sale of nds for taxes of the year 1859, and all evious years, is unconstitutional on e ground that the bill was not ap-oved by the Governor within the time quired by law. We opine that this ecision will cause some persons in town ho supposed they had a "big thing" the lands they had thus purchased at x sale under this law, to regard their ties as not being as perfect and clear s they might be. There was a great eal of speculating done at the last tax ale, and many thousands of dollars aid out for "tax titles" which this de-ision has rendered not worth a rush. The buyers in many instances resold the ands to other parties for their full value. Under this decision, we suppose the ands will revert to the original holders n payment of delinquent taxes.

THE STATE PRINTING.

Gov. Miller, in his late message, sug-ested that the State printing be let to he lowest bidder for a period of three or ve years, adding that it would be a reat saving to the State. This, of ourse, does not accord with the views f the Saint Paul Press whose ideas of conomy are materially changed on matters which clash with its own interests. But we notice that the Winnebago Homestead, and the Record, of this place ave come out in favor of Gov. Miller's suggestion, and that the Faribault Republican advocates the giving of it to some other person than a "time-serving toady," who was brought into existence through its patronage, and who has learned too well how to kick the hand that feeds it. We fully agree with these exchanges that the Governor's recommendation should be adopted by the Legislature. Many of its members are in favor of it, on the ground of economy, and not for that only, but that the past course of the "official organ" may be fittingly rebuked. Ever since the State Printing passed into its hands it has evinced a tender regard for warrants on the State Treasury. It was this tender regard for the State printing which induced it to refrain from expressing its preferences for U. S. Senator, any farther than to advocate the claims of "the best man." Of course it has found that Dan Norton is "the best man." It was a tender regard for the State printing that induced the present State printer to present to the President of the Senate, while that body was in session a list of names of members whom he wished appointed on the printing committee, and to whom the President replied that he "generally appointed his own committees."

Ever since the State printing has been done by the Press that sheet has pursued a domineering and tyrannical course over the party, and individual members of it, except at periods when the State patronage was to be disposed of, then like a whipped cur it would beslaver the party, and evince its toadying propensities, than which no other paper in the State knows how to do it better.

There are other Republican journals in the State, that are looked upon as leading papers of the party, and they are fully as deserving, if not more so, of State patronage than the present recipient. Some of them have facilities for doing all the work equal to the Press, and can do it cheaper, in better style, and in less time, and we are decidedly in favor of giving them a chance to do it, We hope the Legislature will consider this matter well before they make such disposition of the printing as will give them cause for future regret.

Supper to Mr. Norton.

The friends of the Hon. D. S. Norton, U. S. Senator, elect, of Winona, learning that he was to leave for Washington, extended to him a complimentary supper on Saturday evening last, at Huff's hotel, in that city. A large number of his personal friends were present, and the evening passed pleasantly away.—After the supper was over, speeches were made by Messrs. Youmans, Buck, Berry, Lamberton, and others. Mr. Norton responded in a very appropriate speech, and at its conclusion said, "you have been pleased, sir, to remind me that I am called to a high position in the national councils at a time full of great danger and difficulty. I am not insensible to the fact in its highest import. And in reply to the kind solicitude of friends as to what my course shall be upon the various disturbing questions that may arise during the next six years, I will simply remark: If an earnest desire for the country's best welfare; if a due regard to the sacred landmarks set up by the Father of the Republic for the guidance of their descendants, with the light which these landmarks have had shed upon them during the bitter experience of the past four years, if careful study and diligent endeavor in the path where duty may lead me—if these, and such as these, are what you expect of a faithful representative in the national legislature, then I pledge you that no effort on my part shall be wanting to meet your highest anticipations. [Applause.] And in conclusion, I pledge you further, that if any word or act of mine can conduce to a restoration—or a reconstruction, if you please—of our battle scarred Republic, and to placing it upon a surer and stronger foundation than before—purified from all corrupting influences; united in feeling, in sympathy, and in interest, from one end of the land to the other; freer in condition and loftier in purpose than it has been in the time that is past—then to this end shall my voice and my humble influence ever be given, Again, my friends, I thank you for this kind greeting and for your presence here to-night. [Long continued applause."]

Faribault must be a delightful place just now. The Enrolling Board is in session there to pass upon claims for exemption, and of course all the lawyers and doctors within a radius of fifty miles are there, with their swindling shops in full blast looking out for victims to the draft. Rich harvests were reaped by these "agencies" when the Board was at St. Peter and this place, and Faribault will not be an exception, as a greater number will visit that town for exemption than at either of the other places. We look upon this system of procuring exemptions as a gross outrage upon the people, an insult to the intelligence of the examining physician. The Board has the power to put a stop to it, and we hope they will do it.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY.

But little has occurred during the past week in our State Legislature of interest to this section. On the 27th ult., Mr. Shillock presented a petition from soldiers in the First regiment, stating that they had served three years in the army and on their return found their property taxed for the payment of bounties to volunteers, and praying an act exempting all soldiers from such tax, who received only the government bounty. Referred to the Committee on Taxes and Tax Law.

Leave of absence was granted to Hon. D. S. Norton, for the remainder of the term, and he has since gone to Washington.

A joint resolution was passed requesting Senators and Representatives to secure the location of the North or Sioux City branch of the Pacific Railroad westwardly as near as may be along the paralell of forty-two and one-half degrees of North Latitude to a point of junction with the main trunk of said road.

In the House Mr. Chas. Taylor introduced a bill to legalize the action of County Commissioners in appropriating money for bounty to soldiers and to the support of their families. Referred to Committee on Taxes.

The Senate bill appropriating $3,000 for the improvemnut of navigation on the Minnesota River passed the house on the 27th by a vote of 30 for to 6 against.

On the 30th ult., Mr. Griswold presented a petition from citizens of Hastings asking that the word "white" be stricken out of our constitution.

Mr. Shandrew introduced a bill for an act to exempt the wages of laborers from service upon garnishee process, or proceedings supplementary to an execution. Referred to Committee on Judiciary.

The Speaker introduced a bill for an act to declare the rights and privileges of such persons as have volunteered, or have been drafted, or may volunteer or be drafted into the service of the United States from the State of Minnesota, exempting them from service of all civil process. Referred to Committee on Judiciary.

On the 31st, Mr. Baxter introduced a bill to prevent the running at large of horses diseased with glanders, or driving the same on public highways. Referred to the Committee on Towns and Counties.

Mr. Porter introduced a bill accepting the grant, and in execution of the trust, made and created by section 7 of an act of Congress, approved May 12, 1864, entitled an act for a grant of lands in the State of Iowa in alternate sections, to aid in the construction of railroads in said State. Referred to the Committee on Railroads.

From the Eleventh Regiment.

RICHLAND STATION TENN. Jan. 20th 1865.

FRIEND SLOCUM.—I having been located for the last four months at the above named place; doing my share of duty in guarding the L. and N. R. R. in connection with the rest of Co. C. of the 11th. Thinking that a few lines to you would be appropos, I now improve the opportunity to write you. I have seen nothing in the papers from there mentioning our regiment. Probably our duties are such that we attract no notice from that section of the union worthy of mention. If so we do not wish you to leave out articles of momentous importance for the sake of minor ones. It may be you have heard nothing consequently can say nothing. Our regiment was scattered along this road soon after our arrival at Nashville, in consequence of the inefficiency of a negro regiment in protecting it against guerillas, who were continually harrassing them, burning trains, bridges, and tearing up the track and doing mischief generally. Thereby damaging the business necessary to be done on the road in forwarding men and supplies necessary to meet the enemy, which soon confronted us at Nashville. Communication for quick transportation has to be kept open between the north, and our southern bases of supplies, without which our hopes for reconstruction would be fruitless. It requires men of nerve, activity, and watchfulnes to be ever ready to repel the raiders whenever they appear. And who has proven to be more fit for such duties than our gallant sons of Minnesota. Since here, we have taken and killed many of those who had great hopes of sucessfully preventing us from accomplishing that which has effectually been done in middle Tennessee. I think our prospects are favorable for staying here during our term of service. If so we will be likely to return with a regiment very little depleted in number. We have lost two from our company. One being accidentally shot, the other dying with the erysipelas. Other companies have probably lost in like proportion.

I hear that our town has several men to furnish to fill its quota under the present call. I hope you will not be guilty at the present stage of the game of allowing a draft to fall on the town. Although unless you raise a bounty sufficient to induce enlistments enough to clear the town, the draft ought to be enforced and if possible it would suit me if it discriminate between the loyal and copperheads. (If there be any such since Mac. was so badly beaten,) and take liberally of the latter as they, with others, seem to abhor the idea of being soldiers. I think that Thomas' brilliant victory. Sherman's great achievements, together with the capture of Fort Fisher, has done much toward crushing the rebellion. A few other successes equally as great, which are certain to come, will complete the work and the rebellion is broken. Who would not enlist to witness the dying agonies of this cursed rebellion. After which we are to enjoy a united and free country, made so by its own true sons of freedom. Whereby all castes of whatever clime or race they may be can enjoy the sweets of freedom.

FARIBAULT COUNTY ITEMS.

From the Blue Earth Advocate.

A lodge of Good Templars was organized in Blue Earth City last week, twenty two members being initiated on the occasion. Its regular meetings are held on Tuesday evenings.

The new flouring mill has commenced operations, and grinds about three hundred bushels of wheat per day. Large quantities of corn are also manufactured

Mr. Wesley Hill recently sold his half of the saw mill at the lower side of the city, to Mr. Sly for $1,500.

The old post office building was sold again the other day for $400. Messrs. McArthur, of Elmore were the purchasers.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—We think we have seldom seen a more touchingly beautiful engraving than that which embellishes the February number of this magazine. It is called 'The Prisoner's Child,' and is a story in itself. The face of the girl is full of an indescribable sadness, and as she feeds the birds outside the prison bars, we long to speak some words of pity and comfort to her. The Double Steel Fashion Plate for this month is a very handsome one, both in design and execution: the contrast between the colors is especially fine. The other fashions and engravings of fancy work are as usual varied and well executed. The music for this month is the 'Linden Hall Polka.' The Literary contents are 'The Norlands;' 'The Cooper Shop Story,' showing how one of the New England ladies in the olden times, before 'Women's Rights' were invented, acted in the spirit of leap year, (a true story by the way); A Story of a Household,' by Mrs. Hosmer; 'Better than Chestnuts,' an amusing tale by Francis Lee; 'Nearly Lost,' by Laura J. Rittenhouse; 'Francis Haley,' by Clara Augusta; 'Hopeful Ray,' by Minnie W. May; 'Not Much of a Master after All,' by F. H. Stauffer; 'Going Home,' by Ida Mason; Curious Styles of Head Dresses in the last Century, Editor's Department, &c., &c.

Price $2.50; 2 copies $4.00; 9 copies $16.00; 21 copies $35.00. Specimen numbers will be sent to those desirous of making up clubs for 15 cts.—Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as Premiums.—Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

The Princess Mary of Cambridge, has become thinner. She abstains from bread, potatoes and milk. and loses fat thereby.

The St. Peter Tribune says: Our readers will be pleased to see by a letter published elsewhere, from Chaplain Kerr of the Ninth regiment, that Captain Skaro's old company—D. of the 9th—have voted unanimously to pay the entire expenses of procuring and embalming the body of their lamented Captain, and of obtaining a metallic coffin and sending the body home. The total expense was $237. This is an act of generosity on the part of Co. 'D,' that entitles them to the praise of all.

It appears from a communication of the Secretary of War that the entire subject of an exchange of prisoners is now placed in the hands of Lieut. Gen. Grant, and that although only partial exchanges have been made there is reason to believe a full exchange will soon be effected.

HEREAFTER no permits will be granted for the removal of dead soldiers interred, at any point south of the District of Columbia. It will be utterly useless for parties to make application for any such permits until the restriction is removed, of which public notice will be given.

A Boston dispatch says that the crew of the pirate Florida, confined in Fort Warren, have received an order for their release on condition of leaving the country within ten days, but are unable from want of funds. About 300 prisoners, including nine generals, are now in Fort Warren.

The Eighth Minnesota is en route to SHERMAN or GRANT, and all mail matter for the regiment should be directed to Washington for the present.

Disastrous Steamboat Explosion.

CAIRO, Jan. 30.

Further particulars of the explosion of the steamer Eclipse say 27 persons were killed instantly, and a number missing, supposed to be drowned. The clerk of the steamer and several of her crew are among the killed. The scalded sufferers, over 60, mostly belonging to the 9th Indiana battery, were brought to Paducah, and put in the hands of hospital surgeons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Richmond Examiner of the 25th has the following: We hear of no changes in the Cabinet. Seddon has certainly and decisively resigned. His successor is not named. The president has signed the bill creating a general-in-chief. No appointment has been made.

The following is from the Sentinel of the 27th: Cannon and musketry were both heard in the direction of Battery Harrison, yesterday. It was reported on the streets that battery Harrison had been captured from the Yankees.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.

Mary Harris, the young woman from Chicago, who shot and killed Andrew J. Burroughs, a clerk in the office of the Comptroller of Currency, yesterday, has been lodged in jail. It appears from the testimony that she stated to Mr. McCullough, the Comptroller, that Burroughs had violated his marriage engagement with her. He had done her no harm, but was engaged with her from childhood and had continued his correspondence with her until within a month of his marriage. She said she asked no sympathy for herself; all the sorrow to be felt was for her aged parents. She charged that the deceased had betrayed her from home and friends, and placed her in a house of illfame, which determined her to do the deed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.

It is said that evidence of the cession of the Northern States of Mexico to Louis Napoleon, by Maxmillian, has been on file in the office of the French Legation at Washington, for some months past.

It is also announced that Mr. Drouyn de L'Huys, Napoleon's Minister of State has asked Secretary Seward for an explanation of the recent Congressional censure of the French in regard to Mexico.

From The South

NEW YORK Jan. 28.—The Charleston correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says that if Sherman succeeds in getting possession of Branchville. the fall of Charleston will soon follow.

Late rebel papers continue to show the confusion, doubt, and despondency regarding the success of their confederacy now prevalent among the chief rebels themselves as well as the mass of the people:

The Richmond Examiner of the 24th says: A long series of blunders—convincing some sooner, others later—have now produced a very general, indeed we might say, a universal belief among all intelligent observers, that our govrnment as it is now conducted is not equal to the great occasion. That feeling of confidence so carefully nurtured has been hopelessly broken; that great element of success is gone from us, unless in some way we reform the administration of the government.

The Examiner says: The expedition of our iron clads down the river had been designed to break the enemy's pontoon bridges, and thus destroy his communications, and to take advantage of the fact that he had withdrawn most of his naval force from the river probably to Wilmington, leaving but one iron clad and some wooden vessels in the channel above Virina. There was also reason to suppose that the recent freshet had washed out a pontoon of his line of obstructions and thus opened the way to the attack on his pontoons. We may say here that the expedition is understood to have originated and to have been planned by Gen. Lee, in view of the circumstances referred to.

WE find the following in the Globe of a recent date:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.

HOUSE.—Mr. Ross offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of Congress and the country are due to President Lincoln for removing Major General Butler from military command. Tabled, 77 to 43.

The House considered the resolution that Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, and Mississippi are not entitled to representatives in the electoral college, and therefore no such votes shall be received or counted for President or Vice President.

A Hoosier who suspected unfair play in the drafting operations asked to be allowed to draw the names from the wheel. He did so and drew his own name the first time.

Sophia Kittle has recovered $3,000 of William Walch in a New York court, for refusing to marry her after promising to. Sophias courting was to some effect, if William's wasn't.

A REBEL VIEW.—The New South contains an editorial from the Charleston Mercury of the 12th, which says:

'The condition of this military department (Georgia and South Carolina) is any thing but satisfactory, and none less so than to the general commanding. His department has been newly turned into his hands, and many of the troops are new to him and to the department. They came to him under the command of imbeciles, and he has received them. What has been done to eradicate this fatal evil we shall not stop to inquire. The time has been short to do much, and the forces been very much scattered, but at the very last moment are arriving, when all must be done that can be done. The enemy does not intend to wait on our leisure, and there is much to do. The path we are now traveling is straight to destruction. The crisis of the confederacy has arrived in earnest. The result of the next six months will bring the confederacy to the ground, or will reinstate her in power. Without reform we are doomed. There must be no more Jeff Davis' fooling, but brains and nerve.'

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County

OUR TOWN CHARTER.—Senator Porter, sometime since, introduced into the State Senate a bill incorporating the village of Mankato. We have not seen the bill, but have been permitted to copy from a private letter a correct synopsis of its leading features.

The management of its municipal concerns shall be vested in three Trustees, one of whom shall be chosen as President. Besides these the village officers shall consist of a Clerk, Treasurer, and Marshall, who shall be appointed, whether by the Board we are not informed.

The terms of all officers shall be for one year, and they must all be residents of the village. It is required of the Trustees and Treasurer that they be freeholders.

The election of officers shall be annually, on the first Tuesday in May, of each year, and the trustees are required to give ten days notice of the time and place for holding said election.

Sherman Finch, S. F. Barney and Steven Lamm, are named in the charter as the first board of Trustees for the purpose of organizing the village under this act, and are to hold their offices until the first election.

Compensation is not paid to any officer, excepting the Treasurer and Marshall, and their compensation is to be fixed by the bye-laws. The duties of the Marshall are the same as those of Constable.

A majority of the Board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

The bill then proceeds to enumerate the powers of the trustees, as follows: They have power to licence showmen or any public exhibition, billiard tables, bowling saloons, and all persons to vend or deal in spirituous liquors; to restrain the running at large of hogs, cattle or other animals; to prescribe what shall constitute a nuisance, and provides for the removal of the same; to suppress disorderly houses and gambling houses; to direct the location of slaughter houses and markets; the storage or keeping of gun powder; to prevent the incumbering of streets, sidewalks, crossings &c; to prescribe the limits within which wooden buildings may be erected; to prevent the depositing of ashes in unsafe places; to erect suitable buildings for village purposes; to purchase fire engines and other fire apparatus.

The charter exempts the members of fire companies from serving on juries, and from doing highway labor except on property tax.

The expense of repairing streets and sidewalks is to be chargable to lots fronting on such improvements.

All work done for the village to be let to the lowest bidder.

All property, real and personal, in the village, except such as may be exempt by the laws of the State, shall be subject to taxation, not exceeding three mills on the dollar, for general purposes.

The charter, in many respects, is unexceptionable, but there are some features of it we do not like, about which we shall have something to say in the future.

THE SHOOTING AFFRAY AT GARDEN CITY.—The examination of A. G. Lagrange, of Garden City, who was arrested for shooting Mr. Graves, of that place, the particulars of which we mentioned last week, took place before Justice Marvin, on Friday and Saturday last, and resulted in the prisoner's being bound over in the sum of $800.00 to appear at the next term of the District Court, to answer to any bill of indictment which the Grand Jury at that time may find against him in regard to the affair. The examination was conducted on behalf of the State by the Prosecuting Attorney, E. P. Freeman, with whom was associated S. F. Barney Esq. J. A. Wiswell appeared as counsel for the prisoner.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.—The interest in religious matters in our town, during the past week, has not seemed to abate. The different denominations hold meetings every night in their respective places of worship, and quite a number of persons have been added to the churches. The Presbyterian meetings under the direction of the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Marshall, have received a new impetus, and are well attended. The Baptists are still doing good service. The Methodists commenced their meetings last Friday evening in the American House building. The Pastor Mr. Day, has been assisted during a part of this week, by Rev. Mr. Richardson of St. Peter, and considerable interest is manifested.

BLUE EARTH EXPRESS CO.—Parties who reside along the line of this company, ordering goods from the East should have them marked "Care of Blue Earth Valley Express Co." The business of the company since it was organized has rapidly increased. Mr. Mason has engaged in the oyster trade, and is prepared to supply customers in the city with these "bivalves."

THE ATLANTIC FOR FEBRUARY.—This national magazine comes to us laden with choice and instructive reading. A new story "Dr. Johns," is commenced in this number, and will be continued for several months. More than ordinary care seems to have been taken in the preparation of the number before us, and it is certainly worth the perusal of every one. We advise our readers to send for the Atlantic,

A rebel advertises in a Southern paper that for one million dollars he will cause the lives of President Lincoln, Wm. H. Seward and Andrew Johnson to be taken by the first of March, and offers to give one thousand dollars towards it himself, but he forgot to add that White & Marks still live in a "land of liberty" and for less than half that amount will give you a tip-top suit of clothes, or any "other man."

NEW ADVERTISMENTS.—Twenty-five dollars reward is offered for the recovery of some stray cattle. A chance for some honest man to make money.

Collector Hall addresses a few words to the patrons of Uncle Samuel, on an important subject. Pay up old scores, gentlemen.

We call attention to the new card of Lewis & Frisbie. They are constantly receiving new goods.

To those who sustained damages by the Indians in 1862 Superintendent Thompson has something to say.

ENOCH ARDEN.—This charming poem, by Alfred Tennyson, has been published by Ticknor & Fields, of Boston, Mass. in pamphlet form at 25 cents. There should be a copy in every household in the land. We are indebted to the publishers for a copy.

DONATION—We are requested to announce that a donation visit will be made to the Rev. Mr. Reese, at his residence at Butternut Valley, on the afternoon and evening of the 1st of February. His friends and the public generally are invited to be present.

VALENTINES! VALENTINES!—Lewis & Frisbie, at the City Drug Store, have received a large lot of Valentines of all kinds, comic and sentimental. They have some very beautiful ones to which they invite attention. Don't forget to give them a call.

Our readers will please remember that Winter is not over, and that we may have even colder weather than we have had yet. To be guarded against such contingencies, it is necessary to have good warm clothing, which may still be had at Randall's, and at reduced prices, as he wishes to close out. Give him a call.

THE weather for the past few days has been very mild, with a southwest wind indicating rain. Yesterday morning it commenced raining, and to day we are minus considerable good sleighing, which we had hoped would remain with us for some time to come.

RECRUITS FOR THE FORT.—Nearly one hundred recruits for Capt. Owens company of heavy artillery, have passed through town this week for Fort Snelling, to be mustered into the service.—They were principally from Blue Earth and Faribault counties.

PRICES REDUCED.—Mrs. Potts desires us to say that for the next thirty days she will sell her millinery goods at greatly reduced prices, as she is making preparations to go East for her Spring stock,

Major E. H. Smith, started Wednesday morning, of this week, for Chi— Washington, and will be absent about a month.

REV. Mr Marshall, of New York, a gentleman of fine abilities and social qualities, has arrived in town, and will, hereafter, hold regular service in the Presbyterian church.

ICE! ICE!—Finch & Thurston receive orders for ice, and fill them promptly.

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M, A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by MISS M, E. BRADON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage. Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their postoffice, county and State, Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

HARPER'S

NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people: and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Tribune's Guide to Ameriaan Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Traesury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the veryliberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is new worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5 20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

Superbly colored, rich and rare,
With full sized patterns all complete,
And then explained with nicest care;

However rich the one before,
Presenting gems of art and thought,

And bear forth from shore to shore,

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novelette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, feuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo. Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the neatest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquettish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent higly illustrative of the oldest, ablest, and unthiliest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novelette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by MISS M. E. BRADDON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2.50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage.

☞Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State.

Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

HARPER'S

NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost Magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's Magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people: and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Tribune's Guide to American Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

FAMILY INTERCOURSE.

This is a sore subject to touch. One feels like treading all at once on a hundred corns. Nearly every family has its sore spot, its dark corner, its private closet, carefully locked up, and in the interior hidden from the light of day.—It seems strange to say that most family difficulties arise from the ignorance of the different members of each other, and yet it is sadly true. Many families live together for years, and separate, knowing less of each other's secret feelings, motives, and the springs which guide action, than of others who have lived outside the family circle. Small jealousies, petty selfishness, creep in and produce estrangements, which frequently mar the happiness of a lifetime.

There is little appreciation of the divine beauty and loving, graceful possibilities of the family relation. It is so common a fact that we lose sight of its wisdom, just as we forget to be thankful that the sun shines, or that the dew or rain falls. The sweet name of mother, brother, sister, falls upon the ear without meaning, while we are constantly associated with them, and in the habitual enjoyment of their kind offices; it is only long after, when perhaps some bright eyes have become dimmed, and the merry laughter of others hushed, and the weary, tired heart seeks its rest among strangers, that the magic of household names, and the deep, tender meaning of the household relationship, are really felt.

The great want in families in justice and reciprocity, and that forbearance which it is necessary for mortals always to exercise toward each other. We willingly accept it from others, but we are not willing to give it in return. We establish a claim on some incidental circumstance, or the bare fact of relationship, and impose burdens and accept kindness without a thought of obligation on our part. Children make the life of their parents one of never ending toil and anxiety, and often refuse even the poor reward of their love and confidence. Sisters demand aid, protection, and favors of all sorts from their brothers, and if asked to make their shirts, mend their hose, or even hem a handkerchief in return, would have a thousand excuses, or perhaps flatly refuse the needed service.

Habitual politeness is a valuable element of family intercourse. A coarse, rude speech is less excusable, addressed to a father, mother, brother, or sister, than if used to a stranger or a simple acquaintance; and yet how common it is! Of course the fault of this lies with the parents. Precept is of little use without example. Some parents think it beneath their dignity to prefix a request, "If you please,' Have the kindness," and then wonder why their children can not be "mannerly" like other people. We have known the sons of a poor widow, who on no account would have permitted themselves to sit down to table with their mother without first arranging their toilet in the best manner their circumstances would permit, and never suffered her, no matter what the temptation, to attend church or weekly prayer-meeting alone. This consideration extended to the minutest acts of their daily life, and was a most charming thing to see. The mother, it is hardly necessary to say, was a lady of birth and education, and had carefully practiced toward her children that respect for their feelings and thoughtfulness for their comfort which she afterward received from them.

TRUE PROSPERITY.

You talk of the prosperity of your city. I know but one true prosperity. Does the human soul grow and prosper here? Do not point me to your thronged streets. I ask who throng them?—Is it a low-minded, self-seeking, gold-worshipping man-despising crowd which I see rushing through them? Do I meet in them under the female form the gaily-decked prostitute, or the idle, wasteful, aimless woman of fashion? Do I meet the young man, showing off his pretty person as the perfection of nature's works, wasting his golden hours in dissipation and sloth, and bearing in his countenance the gaze of the profligate? Do I meet a grasping multitude, seeking to thrive by concealments and fraud? An anxious multitude, driven by fear of want to doubtful means of gain? An unfeeling multitude, caring nothing for others, if they may themselves prosper and enjoy? In the neighborhood of your comfortable and splendid dwellings are there abodes of squalid misery or reckless crime, of bestial intemperance or half famished children, of profaneness, dissoluteness, or temptations for thoughtless youth? And are these multiplying with your prosperity and outstripping and neutralizing the influences of truth and virtue? Then your prosperity is a vain show. Its true use is to make a better people. The glory and happiness of a city consist not in the number, but the character of its population. Of all the fine arts in a city, the grandest is the art of forming noble specimens of humanity. The costliest productions of our manufacturers are cheap compared with a wise and good human being. A city which should practically adopt the principle that a man is worth more than wealth or show, would place itself at the head of the cities. A city in which men should be trained worthy of the name would become the metropolis of the earth.—Dr. Channing.

"I wish," said a son of Erin, "I could find the place where men don't die, that I might go and end my days there."

How to Dress for a Photograph.

A lady or gentleman, having made up her or his mind to be photographed, naturally considers, in the first place, how to be dressed so as to show off to the best advantage. This is by no means such an important matter as many might imagine. Let me offer a few words of advice touching dress. Orange color, for certain optical reasons, is, photographically, black. Blue is white; other shades or tones of color are proportionately darker or lighter as they contain more or less of these colors.—The progressive scale of photographic color commences with the lightest. The order stands thus: white, and light blue, violet, pink and mauve, dark-blue, lemon, blue green, leather-brown, drab cerise magenta, yellow-green, dark-brown, purple, red, amber, maroon, orange, dead black. Complexion has to be much considered in connection with dress. Blondes can wear much lighter colors than brunettes; the latter always present better pictures in dark dresses, but neither look well in positive white. Violent contrasts of color should be especially guarded against. In photography brunettes possess a great advantage over their fairer sisters. The lovely golden tresses lose all their transparent brilliancy, and are represented black; while the "bonny blue e'ee" theme of rapture to the poet, is misery to the photographer, for it is put entirely out. The simplest and most effective way of removing the yellow color from the hair is to powder it nearly white; it is thus brought to about the same photographic tint as in nature. The same rule of course, applies to complexion. A freckle quite invisible at a short distance is, on account of its yellow color, rendered most painfully distinct when photographed. The puff box must be called in to the assistance of art. Here let me intrude one word of general advice. Blue as we have seen, is the most readily affected by light, and yellow the least; if, therefore, you would keep your complexion clear and free from tan and freckles while taking your delightful rambles at the sea side, discard by all means the blue veil, and substitute a dark green or yellow one in its stead. Blue tulle offers no more obstruction to the actinic rays of the sun than white. Half a yard of yellow net, though not very becoming, will be found very efficacious and considerably cheaper than a qt. of kalydor. The cause of freckles is simple enough. It is nothing more than a darkening of the salts of iron contained in the blood by the action of light. A freckled face is, therefore, an animated photograph.

What a Toad Did for a Soldier.

We have often written in behalf of toads, says the American Agriculturist; we are glad to see them hopping around our garden in large numbers, and have paid boys for bringing them in there in baskets, by the hundred, as insect destroyers. A friend connected with the United States Sanitary Commission relates for the Agriculturist, the following incident which he witnessed, that exhibits Mr. or Mrs. Toad in a new character:

A number of wounded from the battle of Petersburg were lying in a hospital tent, among whom was a negro whose leg had been taken off. He was on a mattress on the ground, and the weather being hot, the distressed stump of his leg was exposed, and a swarm of flies were settling upon it. Presently a large toad hopped into the tent, and taking his station near the edge of the bed began "gobbling" up the blue bottles in "double quick." The moment one alighted within six inches of the spot, he would square himself for the attack, his eyes twinkling with excitement, and then with a flash of his tongue and a smack of his mouth, the unlucky insect would disappear. The boy was asleep when this commenced, but soon awoke, and was at first frightened at the "ugly toad" so near him; but our friend bade him be quiet, and pointed out the service the creature was rendering, when the negro and all present voted him a member of the Commission, with many thanks, and he and his kindred were at once in high favor.

HOME COURTESIES.

In the family the law of pleasing ought to extend from the highest to the lowest. You are bound to please your children; and your children are bound to please each other; and you are bound to please your servants if you expect them to please you. Some men are pleasant in the household, and nowhere else. I have known such men. They were good fathers and kind husbands.—If you had seen them in their own house you would have thought that they were angels almost; but if you had seen them in the street, or in the store, or anywhere else outside the house, you would have thought them almost demoniac.—But the opposite is apt to be the case.—When we are among our neighbors, or among strangers, we hold ourselves with self respect and endeavor to act with propriety; but when we get home we say to ourselves, "I have played a part long enough, and I am now going to be natural." So we sit down, and are ugly, and snappish, and blunt, and disagreeable. We lay aside those thousand little courtesies that make the roughest floor smooth, that make the hardest thing like velvet, and that make life pleasant. We expend all our politeness in places where it will be profitable—where it will bring silver or gold.

HAVE CATTLE ANY RIGHT IN THE HIGHWAY?—A correspondent writes to the American Agriculturist: "When the subject of excluding stock from pasturing in the streets came up for discussion in our Farmers' Club, it was claimed by certain trespassers that the roadway belongs to the town or county, and that therefore all the inhabitants have a right to feed their cattle in them. But it was shrewdly replied to this, that if so, then the town or county must make half of the fences on the lines, and the people must be perpetually taxed for the purpose. At this the trespassers and their friends shrugged their shoulders.—Moreover, the Chairman, being well versed in the law, rose up and said, 'the common law of England, (which is also our law,) settles this matter very justly and plainly when it says: "The king himself has no right to the highway, except for purposes of travel and repairs, also, that the trees and stones, except such as are needed for repairs, with all other minerals, and the grass, belong to him through whose land the highway passes.' Here the matter ended for that evening. But still the nuisance of street cattle is not yet abated with us."

MARRYING FOR SHOW

IN the following we find displayed a volume of honest and wholesome good sense. "Put a pin Here," good swains and lovers.

"To the question often asked of young men why they do not marry, we sometimes hear the reply, 'I am not able to support a wife.' In one case in three, perhaps, this may be so; but, as a general thing, the true reply would be, 'I am not able to support the style in which I think my wife ought to live.'—In this again we see a false view of marriage, a looking to an appearance in the world, instead of a union with a loving woman for her own sake.

"There are very few men, of industrious habits, who can not maintain a wife, if they are willing to live economically, and without reference to the opinion of the world. The great evil is, they are not content to begin life humbly, to retire together into an obscure position, and together work their way in the world—he by industry in his calling, and she by dispensing with prudence the money that he earns. But they must stand out and attract the attention of others by fine houses and fine clothes."

MRS. GRUNDY SPOILS OUR GIRLS.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who, by the way, is a good teacher, gives some good advice about the girls and it is a pity his counsels could not be heeded. By and by there will be no girls and children, they will all be women from ten to twenty years old, Mr. Beecher says:

A girl is not allowed to be a girl after she is ten years old. If you treat her as though she were one, she will ask you what you mean. If she starts to run across the street, she is brought back to the nursery to listen to a lecture on the propriety of womanhood. Now it seems to me that a girl should be nothing but a girl until she is seventeen. Of course there are proprieties belonging to her sex which it is fitting for her to observe, but it seems to me that, aside from these, she ought to have the utmost latitude. She ought to be encouraged to do much out of doors, to run and exercise in all those ways which are calculated to develop the muscular frame. What is true of boys, in the matter of bodily health, is eminently so of girls. It is all important that woman should be healthy, well developed. Man votes, writes, does business, etc., but woman is the teacher and the mother of the world; and anything that deteriorates woman is a comprehensive plague on human life itself. Health among women is a thing that every man, who is wise and considerate for his race, should more earnestly seek and promote.

A QUAKER DECREES JUSTICE.—"Thee has no right to vote," said a good old Quaker Judge of election in Warren county, Ohio, to a would-be voter at the late election. 'What do you mean?' stormed the astonished devotee of 'Great Unready.' 'I mean thee is not a voter; thee is not a citizen of this State.' 'Why, you old fool, I was born in this county, and have lived here all my life, and there is nobody knows it better than you!' 'Thee is mistaken, my friend.—Thee was born here, it is true; I knew thy father before thee, and a good man he was: I little thought his son would do such a thing; but thee hasn't lived here all thy life. Thee slipped away about the time of the draft; thee went to Canada, and neither paid thy three hundred dollars, if thee was opposed to fighting, nor took thy musket if thee wasn't; but thee became a citizen of a foreign country; and thee can't vote here!'

The McClellanite raved, but the Quaker Judge was inflexible. The McClellanite declared there was no law for such a decision, and he would prosecute him; but the Quaker was calm. 'Thee may be right about the technical language of the law; I do not pretend to say; but thee went to Canada, and I am clear in my convictions. THEE CAN'T VOTE!' And he didn't. That Quaker was born for a law-maker.

How Men Should Treat Women.

A Persian poet gives the following instruction upon this important subject: 'When thou art married, seek to please thy wife; but listen not to all she says. From man's right side a rib was taken to form the woman, and never was there seen a rib quite straight. And wouldst thou straighten it? It breaks, but it bends not. Since then, 'tis plain that crooked is woman's temper, forgive her faults, and blame her not; nor let her anger thee, nor coercion use, as all is vain to straighten what is curved.

Precocious Piety.

A Michigan lawyer tells the following story: "Several years ago I was practicing law in one of the many beautiful towns of Wisconsin: One very warm day, while seated in my office at work, I was interrupted by the entrance of a boy, the son of one of my clients, who had walked into town, six miles, in a blazing sun, for the purpose of procuring a Bible. He had been told, he said, that there was a place where they gave them away to people who had no money, and said he was very anxious to get one of the books, and asked me to go with him to the place where they were kept. Anxious to encourage him in his early piety, I left the brief on which I was and went with him over to the stand of a Presbyterian deacon who had the much coveted books in charge. I introduced him to the deacon, telling him the circumstances. He praised the boy very highly; was delighted to see a young man so eagerly seeking after truth, and presented him with the best bound Bible in his collection. Bubby put it in his pocket, and was starting off, when the deacon said: "Now, my son, that you possess what you desired, and I suppose you feel happy?"

"Well, I do, old hoss; for between you and I, I know where I can trade it for a plaguey good fiddle!"

The President's Answer to the Habeas Corpus Writ.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—To-day was set apart for a return of the writs of habeas corpus upon the superintendent of the Old Capitol prison commanding him to produce the bodies of Christopher V. Hogan and John Dugan, with the date and cause of their arrest. They were formerly employed as detectives on the Metropolitan police force, and subsequently Hogan was a special detective of the Treasury Department. While so acting a robbery was committed in February last, the trunk of Major Malone, paymaster of the army, was robbed, of nearly $20,000. Some time after, Hogan and Dugan were arrested by Superintendent Wood on charge of being concerned in the robbery, and have since been held in custody. This morning Mr. Wood appeared to answer the writs and handed his return to the court.—Superintendent Wood answers: "The body of Hogan [or Dugan] is in my possession. He was arrested and imprisoned by authority of the President of the United States. I do not produce his body by reason of an order of the President indorsed upon said writ, to which reference is hereby respectfully made. The indorsement of the President on each writ is as follows:

"The within named Hogan [or Dugan] was arrested and imprisoned by my authority. This writ of habeas corpus is suspended, and the officer having Hogan [or Dugan] in custody, is directed not to produce his body, but to hold him in custody until further orders, giving this order in his return to the court.

Honeymoon in a Basket.

Chambers' Journal tells the following: For eight years after the Marquis of Northampton had laid the foundation stone of Leigh Woods abutment, workmen and the public in general were enabled to pass over the immense chasm by means of an iron bar seven hundred feet in length, which was hung across the river. On this bar was a 'cradle' basket, or car, and persons who wished to make the dangerous passage paid a fee which varied from one to five shillings. By this contrivance thousands of persons crossed the Avon. The basket ran by its own gravity down the incline to the centre of the bar, and was drawn up on the other side by means of a rope. On one occasion a Somersetshire wedding party went to see the fairy bridge; and the bridegroom, having had enough cider to make him adventurous, persuaded the not unwilling bride to make the flying passage.

The two got into the basket, but when they had reached the centre of the bar, high over the Avon, and the moment arrived when they were to be drawn up on the opposite side, it was found that the communicating rope had been broken; and as no provision had been made for such a contretemps, the enthusiastic husband and his newly wedded wife dangled in mid-air—to the astonishment of the rooks no doubt—for several hours, their extraordinary position being rendered none the more comfortable by their friends on the abutment shouting across to them that they would have to remain in the basket all night! That novel way of beginning the honeymoon was avoided, however; but the party were not rescued till they had passed several hours in the strange carriage.

HOW TO MANAGE A RUNNING OR BALKY HORSE.—In a lecture recently given in New York, by Rarey, the horse tamer, the following remarks were made on the management of a horse, who may either refuse to go or attempt to run:

"In the head the horse has immense power. No man can ever hold in a running horse by pulling evenly upon the bit; he might as well try to lift himself over a fence by pulling at his boot straps; it can't be did. When a horse's head is turned to one side he is compelled to so arrange his legs that they will probably balance him—he cannot run forward, therefore, my advice would be if a horse is running away, or refuses to go to pull tightly on the right rein and force the horse to describe a circle for an indefinite period of time, after which you may depend upon it he will not attempt the same trick.

Mr. Brooks and Ben Butler.

In the House of Representatives on Monday, in the course of the debate on the question of Fields' assault on Kelly, Mr. Brooks said that recently he had occasion to speak of a certain Major General as a gold robber, but in some of the prints he was represented as saying "bold robber." He had received a letter from a certain Major General, who supposed the remark particularly applicable to him, though at the time there was another Major General in New York.

At his desire the letter was read, as follows:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 1865.

James Brooks, Member of Congress, in House of Representatives:

I find in the Daily Globe of the 7th a report of your remarks in the House on the 6th, an extract from which, personal to me, is appended. I have the honor to inquire whether your remarks are correctly reported, except, perhaps in the misprint, bold for gold, and also whether there was any modification, explanation, or limitation made by you, other than appears in this report. The gentleman who hands you this will wait, or call for your answer at any time or place you may designate.

(signed) B. F. BUTLER.
Major General.

An extract from Mr. Brooks' speech was in substance as follows:

I am bound to say that an effort was made to control the city of New York during the autumn election. The Government sent there a gold robber in the person of a Major General of the United States. Robber as he was of the public treasury, and a Major General, he dared not exercise control over the actions of those whom that gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. Scofield, had called thieves and robbers.

A question of order was raised on introducing the letter. Mr. Brooks quoted from the constitution, that for any speech in either house no member should be questioned elsewhere.

Mr. Brooks felt that he would be justified in refusing to answer the letter.—He said he objected to the manner in which it was transmitted. The letter was brought to him by Butler's Adjutant in full uniform, instead of being sent through the post-office. He did not like to have military gentlemen coming into his house and calling for immediate answers or any answer. He expressed this to the aid, and that he should not give on immediate answer, but would take his own time. These remarks having been expressed on the floor of the House, Gen. Butler had no right to call him in question. He contended that the language of Butler's letter was that of a duellist.

The point of order being pressed, the Speaker decided the letter not an infringement of the privilege. The meaning of the language in the letter was open to doubt and it was not therefore a question for debate.

If We had Them

If we possessed the most valuable things in the world, and were about to will them away, the following would be our plan of distribution:

We would give to the whole world truth and friendship, which are scarce.

We would give an additional portion of truth to lawyers, traders and merchants.

We would give to physicians skill and learning.

To clergymen zeal and disinterested piety.

To government officers, honesty.

To old women, short tongues and legs.

To young women, common sense, large waists and natural feet.

To servants obedience and faithfulness.

To masters, humanity.

To farmers, punctuality and sobriety.

To old men preparation for death.

To young sprouts of dandies, good sense, little cash and hard work.

To old maids, good tempers, little talk and suitable husbands.

To old bachelors, a love of virtue, children and wives.

QUICK WORK—The Erie Dispatch is responsible for the following: A Conneautville, Crawford Co., correspondent writes us: We recently read a notice in your paper of the marriage, in Erie, of a man of eighty, and send you the following to match it in the matrimonial line. A resident of spring township, this county, buried his second wife on Tuesday Nov 1st, 1864, and on the 12th, eleven days after, married again. His first wife died about a year ago, and he was then five weeks in finding a second. But on the third he makes better time, having had experience, and suits himself in eleven days. Quick Work!

We know a case that occurred in Dryden N. Y., which beats the above 'all hollow.' A man named Shirter had the misfortune to lose his wife on Sunday; on Monday he married his servant girl; on Tuesday they attended the funeral of the deceased together, the new wife wearing the old one's clothes, and on Wednesday the bride gave birth to a daughter. This ended the programme for a time.

'Our correspondent may try again.'

As an old gentleman and his daughter, who started to go to Artemus Ward's lecture at Providence, R. I., the other night but by mistake went to Henry Ward Beecher's—and didn't know it—were going out of the hall, the old gent was overheard to say, 'I don't think he's worth a — — !

ALL KINDS OF CLIPPINGS.

There are three things which I have always loved without understanding anything about them—painting, music and pretty women.

A Cheshire auctioneer, while engaged in his vocation, thus exalted the merits of a carpet: "Gentlemen and ladies, some folks sell carpets for Brussels which are not Brussels, but I can most positively assure you that this article was made by Mr. Brussels himself."

The editor of a denominational paper at the West, says: "A man needs grace to edit a religious paper at any time, especially when he has the rheumatism.

Those who have resources within themselves, who can dare to live alone, want friends the least, but at the same time best know how to prize them.

A FARMER on being asked if his horses were matched said, 'Yes they are matched first rate, one of them is willing to do all the work, and the other is perfectly willing he should.

AN impudent wretch came near getting his ears boxed, at a wedding reception the other day, for wishing the beautiful young bride 'Many happy returns of the day.'

During the rapid pursuit of Early, after the victory of Fisher's Hill, the following note from the rebel rear guard was found pinned to a tree: 'Mr. Yank—for God's sake stop and let your horses graze, and allow us poor starved devils to get away, and we'll treat the next time we meet at Strasburg.

Carlyle says: "A million blockheads looking into a man of genius or sense will make nothing but nonsense of him, if they look till the end of time.

A negro soldier was lately arrested in our city for stealing a fine rooster, and when interrogated by the Provost Marshal on the subject, replied that he did not steal the bird.

'Why,' said the Provost, 'you were caught in the act of carrying the rooster off. Don't you call that stealing?'

'No sir, I didn't steal dat roostah!—You see I was gwan' along, and I seed dat roostah settin' on de fence, an' he looked bery much like a secesh chicken. I axed him to crow for de Union, an' he wouldn't do it, so I confiscated him. Dat ain't stealin.' No sir, dat ain't stealin'!'—St. Jo. Herald.

His Excellency Governor Andrew, says Massachusetts paper, related at the dinner to the cadets the other evening, a 'little story,' which he credited to President Lincoln, and which we have not yet seen in print. The anecdote was first told on the night of the 8th of November, when, long after the success of the Union candidates was assured, the returns of heavy majorities still came in thick and jubilant. Then it was that the President was reminded of this little Illinois incident: A friend of his, passing along a village street, was painfully bitten by an ugly dog. A skillful blow of a heavy stick skillfully aimed, was sufficient to kill the animal instantly; but the enraged pedestrian still continued to pummel the corpse, till little vestige of the canine form remained. At length he was accosted with "What are you about? That dog has been dead this ten minutes." "I know it, was the reply, but I want to give the least a realizing sense that there is a punishment after death."

During the Mexican war, the veteran General Riley, since deceased, was ordered to lead the storming party at Cerro Gordo. During the war of 1812-1814, General Riley had been shot in the throat, and consequently had a peculiarly strange intonation. He was ordered to storm one of the batteries of Cerro Gordo, and when his command was mustered, was thus addressed by his second in command.

'General, I do not think we can take this work.

'Think! By ——you are not paid for thinking.'

'But sir,' said Colonel B, 'we can't take it.'

'Can't take it, you have got to take it.'

The old General put his hand in to his belt, and pulling out a paper, said: 'Here thir, ith General Scott's orders in black and white to take the thing.'

And they did take it.

CONSEQUENCES OF THE EARTH BEING STOPPED IN ITS ORBIT—If the earth should be stopped in its orbit it would begin to fall straight towards the sun. As it approached more nearly to that great source of heat it would soon reach a point where the temperature is as high as two hundred and twelve degrees, and then all the waters of the ocean would be evaporated. As it drew still nearer the rocks would be melted, and before it reached the sun this solid earth would be converted into a vast volume of red hot gas, which, when it fell into the fiery atmosphere of the sun, would merely produce blasts of wind from the point where it struck outward in all directions.—Scientific American.

A gentleman not long since in one of his rides in Southern Illinois, sought to make himself interesting to a goodlooking mother of a sweet baby occupying the next seat in the car. After duly praising the baby, he remarked to the mother. He is a real sucker, I suppose?' 'No sir,' said the lady, blushing, 'we had to raise him on a bottle.' The gentleman resumed his reading, and has not bragged on any strange baby since.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE RIVER.

The bill for the improvement of the Minnesota river has been signed by the Governor, and commissioners appointed. The names of two of them are E. P. Evans, of Garden City, and Capt. Jno. Webber, of Ottawa. We have not learned the name of the third. A better selection could not have been made.—The work will be commenced immediately.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Slavery has received its death blow. The joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution prohibiting Slavery on the American continent, has passed the House by more than a two-thirds vote. It will now go to the Senate, and if concurred in, and we presume it will be, thence to the Legislatures of the States, three-fourths of whom are necessary to make it a law of the land.

Let the nation rejoice, for the world does move.

THE PEACE MOVEMENT.

The nation has been lulled into apparent repose for the past two weeks by the delusive cry of peace. The President and Secretary Seward have been down to Fortress Monroe, and met a delegation of Commissioners from the Southern Confederacy, and had a four hours' talk on the subject. The rebel emissaries were Vice-President Stephens, R. M. T. Hunter, and Judge Campbell. From the distinguished character of the gentlemen and the importance attached to their mission which induced the President to meet them nearly midway between the two capitals, we were led to believe that propositions would be presented that would materially change our war status. But the conference was a failure. Nothing short of the independence and recognition of the Confederacy by the United States would satisfy the clamors of the rebel leaders. The Commissioners were not authorized to present any other terms, and those the President could not accept. He presented the subject to them in various forms, and suggested liberal modifications in such action of the United States as might be considered hostile and wounding to their pride, but they were unswerving in their demand for recognition. This was the condition which their Government had made indispensable to any negotiations for peace, and we are glad to note that our worthy magistrate met them with that consistent firmness of which he is characteristic. and informed them that recognition was totally out of the question. He said "that the United States could stop the war, and arrest even temporarily, the movement of its armies, only on the condition precedent that the authority of the national government should be recognized and obeyed over the whole territory of the United States. This point conceded, he assured them that upon every other matter of difference they would be treated with the utmost liberality, but without that recognition war must and would go on."

That is the kind of talk we like. We are opposed to any compromise to rebels in arms, but the one which contains the provision of implicit obedience to the constituted authority of the United States. Peace has vanished from off our land, and will only be restored by the flaming sword and the leaden bullets. The country must arouse itself, and buckle on its armor afresh. The integrity of the Union must be preserved. Greater sacrifices and more vigorous efforts must be made to fill up our armies. We have got to fight it out, and the quicker it is done the better it will be. There must be no more falterings and haltings; no more useless clamors for peace; but let every citizen step forward in the ranks and fight for the Union.

FARMERS, BRING IN YOUR WHEAT.

But little wheat is being brought to town, except for milling purposes. Farmers are evidently holding back their grain until Spring for better prices. But they are working against their own interests by so doing. The recent action of the Legislature in passing a bill appropriating money for the improvement of navigation on the river, so as to facilitate the transportation of grain, has stimulated grain buyers, and inspired them with confidence, and we understand they will soon commence buying at good figures.

The bill has become a law, and the Governor has appointed three commissioners to superintend the work, whose well-known energy, enterprise, and go-ahead-a-tiveness is a sure guaranty that the work will be immediately commenced, and vigorously carried forward. There has never been a better prospect before us during the past eleven years. Up to the spring of 1863, we have always had a sufficient stage of water to enable shippers to ship all the wheat that was stored here, and this too, without any improvement in the river. The exceedingly dry weather of the past two years has not been confined to this section alone, but has extended all over the country. For this cause a large amount of grain has accumulated at this and other points on the river, awaiting transportation. There is now a fair prospect of having a good stage of water in the spring. A large body of snow has fallen in the upper countries bordering not only on the Minnesota, but on tributary streams, and when that is melted by the spring suns, and comes rushing down, with the clearing out of the river we shall be able to rid ourselves of all the surplus grain which will then be in store.

Farmers should not overlook the fact that at such a time their grain should be where it can be easily handled, without much cost. There will be no better time than the present month affords for bringing it to market. The American Agriculturist says that farmers should improve the present month in marketing their grain, when their time is comparatively worthless. In the spring they will be busy preparing for work, and when the grain is most needed for transportation, they will not be able to spare the time necessary to bring it to the river, and prices will not be as good as now. The cost for storage, handling and shipping is only seven cents per bushel, and the difference in the price of labor in the spring, and what it is worth to the farmer now, will not compensate him for waiting, and indulging in delusive dreams of high prices. It will be better for all concerned. Business will be lively, competition will spring up among wheat buyers, and the price will go up. There is warehouse room here sufficient to store 75,000 bushels, and we repeat what we said at the commencement of this article, Farmers, bring in your wheat.

"NIGGER ON THE BRAIN."

We perceive by the doings in the lower House of our State Legislature, on the subject of allowing negroes to vote, that our learned legislators are very much troubled with "nigger on the brain." On Wednesday last, by a vote 31 ayes to eight nays the House passed an amendment to our State constitution, striking out the word "white" as a qualification to exercise the right of the elective franchise. We are in favor of allowing every intelligent man of lawful age, whether black or white, to vote; but we are not in favor of allowing a man who is not intelligent, to exercise this voting privilege. We cordially endorse most of the speech of Mr. Gilman, who made by far the ablest one on the subject. He favored restriction, instead of extending the elective franchise, making education the standard of a man's qualification to vote. No doubt an ignorant negro is just as well qualified to become a citizen of Minnesota as an ignorant Irishman, but no more nor no less. And because an error has been committed in our present State constitution allowing a man to vote simply because he is white, no matter how ignorant, is no reason why we should commit another error by allowing ignorant negroes to stand on an equality with our ignorant whites. We should be glad to see our Legislature turning its attention towards making an amendment to our constitution allowing none to exercise the rights of the ~~Legislative~~ Elective franchise who are not sufficiently intelligent to read our State constitution. If the present "black bill" passes the Senate, we hope the people when they come to vote on the amendment will effectually kill it.

THE REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Senator Porter has favored us with a copy of Attorney General Cole's Annual report, also his opinions in response to the request of the Senate on the bill incorporating the Lake Superior Railroad Company. In the former we find some criminal statistics of this county which may be of interest. The number of cases of murder in the first degree was one, in which the party was acquited. This was the case of Levi Mathews arrested last spring for shooting a Mr. Gill while in the act of stealing timber from his land. The cost of the examination was $19,80, which was paid by the county.

For assault and battery there were thirteen cases. Ten of these were convicted, two acquitted, and one discontinued. The total costs were $27,95, which were paid by the parties. The amount assessed and collected is $245,00.

In regard to the Winnebago trust lands the Attorney General says:

The controversy between the State and the Department of the Interior as to the right of the State to school sections upon the Winnebago Reservation, has been determined by the Department adversely to the claims of the State.

Believing the question to be one of considerable importance, and that strong legal argument can be urged in support of the position of the State, it is my purpose, with the approbation of your Excellency and the Legislature, to institute an action for the purpose of testing the question.

With this view, I have addressed a communication to the County Attorney of Waseca, desiring the description of such tract as he shall deem most convenient for raising the question, and to which the United States have transfered, or attempted to transfer, the title to a purchaser under the recent sale of those lands, but am not yet in possession of the requisite information.

Letter from Sterling.

MR. EDITOR.—I have a time or two, through your columns, tried to provoke some brother subscriber in other towns to tell us what they are doing. And for that purpose have boasted a little of our movements, but not with much success. Still, I feel inclined to try again, though in sober truth, we are not doing anything that can give us a right to boast. Yet as we are trying to do a little better in the future than in the past it may stimulate others to go and do likewise; and for that purpose I would just say that we have two day schools taught in our town this winter, and one Sabbath school, each well attended. To persons who have never lived out on the prairie in a thinly settled community this may appear a very small matter. But those who have resided any length of time in such neighborhoods know that it is not easy to convince the people generally that schools can be maintained in the winter season, where the children all have to travel from a half mile to two miles to reach the school house.

Now to all who have thought so, we beg to say that two years experience under very disadvantageous circumstances has convinced us that we can have schools and good ones too, in winter if we only try. We have thus far also maintained a weekly singing school to the manifest advantage of the pupils. Our boys and girls having nothing of the coon and bear in their natures, don't want to sleep away the cold weather.

On the 2d instant we met to organize a Union Association, and we had a full house. We aim through this society to get our citizens to take a greater interest in public affairs. By our rules anything that concerns the welfare of town, county, state or United states, may be brought before the meeting by lectures discussions &c. We intend it more especially for the benefit of the young though persons of all ages are invited to take part. We believe that every man who aspires to the dignity of an American citizen ought to study the theory of our government and keep himself posted in all matters and questions of a public nature. The time will come we hope when a respectable man will be ashamed to say as some do now with evident self complacence, "I am no politician." Just as creditable would it be for a man living on a farm to say "I get my living such as it is, from the land, but then I am no farmer," or another to say "I am a practicing physician, but I am no doctor. No doubt there are men who might make such confessions and not very seriously violate the truth either. But then they would not expect people to praise them for their ignorance or their baseness. Then why should a man who boasts of being a citizen of this great republic, glory in his ignorance of the science of good government. Oh, he leaves that to his party leaders. Content as the reformer in feudal times to fight under the banner of some Lord or Squire and ask no questions as to the right or wrong of the quarrel. Too many I fear are doing but little better in our midst. And then they are unconsciously aiding to build up and perpetuate a political aristocracy, which like every other aristocracy, whatever pretentions they may make, only despise the common people and use them as lady riders do the horse-block, only to help them to mount. All our offices as far as they are concerned are only matters of bargain and sale among themselves, and I should despair of our country if there was no remedy for this state of things. But thank God our popular system of government admits of a cure for this and all other political evils. The remedy is with the people, happily not as in many other countrys only by taking up arms against our oppressors, but by constitutional means. The people must take their own affairs into their own hands. To aid in preparing our youth and young men to do this intelligently and from honest patriotic motives is the great end of our Sterling Union Association. It has no party aims, is not intended to promote mere local interest or to place one portion of the county in array against any other part, but to seek the common good of the people. We want to do as they do in New England, raise men and women, not boors and butterflys. We want to establish institutions that shall train our young people for husbands, wives, fathers, and mothers, and upright patriotic citizens.

SIDNEY.

A correspondent, who assumes to know how boys ought to be trained, writes as follows: "Oh, mothers, hunt out the soft, tender, genial side of your boy's nature."—Exchange.

Yes, we have a faint recollection of how our mother used to "hunt out the soft, tender side of our nature" with a corset board. It wasn't very genial!

Most men are determined to have a living if they die for it.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

Description of the Capitol—Rogers' Bronze Door—The Amendment to the Constitution—Inauguration of Old Abe.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 26th, '65

Just one year ago I first set foot in the metropolis of the nation, and it occurs to me in taking a hasty glance at the past, that some of your numerous readers might not regard it as time lost entirely, to spend a few moments of the long winter evening while I communicate some of my thoughts and impressions of things and doings of Washington City.

Among the numerous objects of attraction of a public character is the Capitol. This grand specimen of architecture is admired by all who see it, and by a large majority, if not by all, it is considered the most magnificent structure in the world. A person who has never seen an edifice of such vast dimensions can scarcely form an idea approximating the reality. It covers an area of three acres and 27,000 square feet. The length in front is 881 feet. The finest view is obtained from what is known as Capitol Hill on the east side—it is grand. The figure representing the "Goddess of Liberty" at an elevation of 300 feet as viewing the landscape o'er and proclaiming to the world "that all men are created equal, and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.—At this important juncture of the affairs of our nation these memorable words seem to ring out more thrillingly eloquent, and addressing themselves with greater power to the hearts of the loyal people and prompting sublimer aspirations than at any former period of our history since the memorable occasion when they were first hailed as the "battle cry of freedom," and the watchword that nerved the arms and encouraged the hearts of our forefathers.

As you traverse the interior conducted by one of the numerous obliging and gentlemanly police, through the magnificent apartments, along the almost interminable halls, you step out into a large space containing numerous massive pillars of solid marble bearing one of the greatest wonders of the age, the rotunda. To give an adequate idea of this almost superhuman structure would require more space than could be spared in a newspaper.

Another object of attraction is the renowned painting by 'Lutze' 'Westward the course of empire takes its way,' decorating the wall as you ascend the marble stairway leading to the gentlemens' gallery of the House of Representatives. You almost involuntarily stop when it first strikes your view. No pen sketch of mine could give an adequate conception of the beauty of this picture. It must be seen and studied to be appreciated. Its general design, however, is to show the march of progress to the West. I may at a future time endeavor to describe this work of art more minutely.

THE CELEBRATED ROGERS' BRONZE DOOR

This magnificent door opens out of the old Hall of the House of Representatives upon the corridor leading into the new Hall. It is nothing less than a grand illuminated page of the history of Columbus and the discovery of America. It is of solid bronze and weighs twenty thousand pounds. Its whole height is seventeen feet and its width nine feet.—It is believed to be the only work of the kind thus constructed in the world.—The design was by Randolph Rogers, an American artist, and modelled by him in Rome, in 1858. It was cast in bronze by F. Von Muller, at Munich and finished by him in 1861. The cost was about thirty thousand dollars in gold. This great specimen of human art and ingenuity like the picture above referred to, would require much study and examination to be appreciated.

The two Houses of Congress since the return of the members from their holiday visits are busily engaged in their legitimate duties as the Legislators of the nation. The prominent measure, and the one which seems to elicit the warmest and greatest amount of discussion is the amendment to the Constitution, forever prohibiting slavery in the nation. It is confidently expected by some of the friends of the measure that it will pass the present Congress, but should it fail in this, it will be certain to pass the next. The defunct Democracy cling with great tenacity to their favorite institution, but it is thought enough will be constrained by the force of the logic of the 8th of last November, to vote on the side of humanity and christianity, to give it the constitutional majority.

Already the notes of preparation for the second inauguration of Old Abe, are sounding in all directions and it is expected the 4th of March, 1865, will witness the largest concourse of people ever assembled in Washington at one time since the foundation of the Government.

NEWS ITEMS IN BRIEF.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3, 1864.

James Devlin was shot to day on Governor's Island, for desertion.

Gen. Hays having received a command in the Army of the Potomac, Gen. Hinks is now Provost Marshal here. General Wessels takes the latter's late command at Hart Island.

A whole family named Bishop, six in number, were suffocated by gas in Washington street, Brooklyn, last night. One or two children are dead, and the others rescued nearly exhausted and conveyed to the hospital.

A letter from the Army of the James, dated Friday night, says it is reported that the rebel fleet started down the river early this morning, but after proceeding a short distance, turned back and anchored in their old position. It is thought they were appehensive of not getting back as safely as they did last week, if they had attempted to go far as they did on that occasion.

The Commercial's Washington special says it is confidently asserted that the President will issue a proclamation setting forth the result of the peace negotiations, and calling upon the people to fill up the ranks of the armies, and assist in closing the war by overwhelming military operations.

The Post's special says Secretary Fessenden in his instruction to Paymaster Cooke says, that he intends to rely wholly hereafter upon taxes and the sale of seven-thirty bonds to pay the expenses of the war.

It is understood that Mr. Fessenden's retirement from the Treasury Department will take place within a few days, and it is confidently predicted that his successor will be from the city of New York.

Jeff Davis has appointed the 10th of March next as a day of fasting, humiliation, prayer and thanksgiving. The prayers of the unrighteous have thus far done the rebellion no good.

The Post's Washington special says the new Tax bill reported to the House this morning, imposes an income tax on all amounts exceeding $3,000 per year.

All the steamers at Cairo were impressed into government service on Monday, by order of the commandment of the post, and left for the Tennessee River.

Southern News.

NEW YORK. Feb. 4.—By late Southern papers it appears that the rebels, now that all their able bodied men have been forced into the army by conscription, are rather singularly calling for volunteers, and a bill has been introduced into their Senate urging all except those already in the army and deserters, to form military companies to serve during the war—the members to be premitted to select their own officers.

Mr. J. L. Pugh, member of the military committee in their House of Representatives, in a letter which he has written, gives the outlines of a bill for the conscription of all males between 18 and 55 years, for the placing in the army of all men between these ages now exempted, under detailment for other services, and for reduction to the ranks of officers without commands.

The report that Gen. Breckenridge has been appointed rebel Secretary of War has been confirmed.

The bill for the employment of negros in the armies passed the rebel House.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota,

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 31st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D.C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

LARGE TAX.—A distiller in Winona County, in the First Collection District, aid to the Collector of Internal Revenue, over four thousand dollars, last onth as tax on distilled spirits which sold or received for sale. A few h taxes as that monthly, and the Sec District will be as much behind in enue collections for the general government as she is in population. By erence to the Collectors books we also tice that the Transit Rail-road Company paid as tax on the receipts for the onth of November, the sum of six undred and thirty dollars and forty-even cents. How will this compare ith the tax paid by the St. Paul and acific road. Don't be afraid to show ur figures.

A RUNAWAY.—We were wondering ednesday afternoon what we should for "local items" for this week's issue, and were hardly through thinking f the matter when Messrs. Tompkins & Quinn's fine horse came along and very quickly smashed up a cutter in front of our office to our infinite satisfaction and delight. Capt. Clark and S. E. Finch were in the cutter and when in front of Marks' store, the horse commenced kicking, and kicked off one of the runners, and then started to run. Mr. Finch thought it was time to alight, and so letting go of the reins, he alighted.—The cutter struck against the sidewalk in front of the Express office, and smashed it, (the cutter, not the sidewalk) into kindling wood. Capt. Clark being desirous of getting out, was carefully rolled out. The horse proceeded up town, and stopped at Harmon Tyner's saloon to get a drink.

A PICTORIAL DOUBLE NUMBER.—The Phrenological Journal and Life Illustrated, for January, appears with 32 quarto pages, and a beautiful illustrated cover. It contains Portraits of Tennyson, Silliman, Sheridan, Cobb, Phillips, Susannah Wesley—mother of John—an Indian Chief, Franz Muller, Miss Muggins, Miss Fury, the Princess of Wales—Florence Nightingale, A Group of Warriors—Hannibal, Julius Cæsar, Pizarro, Cromwell, Charles XII, Frederick the Great, Scott, Wellington and Napoleon, with Ethnology, Phrenology, Physiognomy, Physiology, and Psychology. No. 1. Vol. 41st. Published at 20 cents a Number, or $2,00 a year, by Messrs. Fowler & Welles, 389 Broadway, New York.

IN MEMORIAM.—We take pleasure this week in announcing the death of one of our delinquent "patrons," who recently "shuffled off this mortal evil," and left this sublunary sphere without so much as leaving us a lock of his hair. He has been in town fifty times in the last three months, and every time called upon us, and soothed our heart achings by saying he would soon bring in some wood, or potatoes, or squash, or pumpkins, that he couldn't use, and "straighten up that old score." He was in town last week, and called, as usual, and upon leaving our office shook hands with us with a great deal of tenderness and love, and said that if he "lived till Wednesday we should surely have our pay." Well, Wednesdays's sun rose in majestic splendor, and we were happy in the thought that our wood pile would soon be larger, or that our cellar would soon be filled with pumpkins. But the setting sun stood still, as it were, upon the verge of the western horizon, waiting for him to come—but he came not.—We are, therefore, compelled to believe that he is dead. While we make this announcement with pleasure, yet, we are sorry to lose him, because it was such a pleasure for us to give him our exchanges, and loan him our magazines to read, and because we are out of pumpkins, and can have no more pumpkin pie. But he is gone. He will lie deep in the cold, cold ground, and his loss will be as deeply felt. The chilling blasts of winter will sweep over his grave little thinking or caring how much we have lost by his demise.—Though we grow hungry and cold, and lose flesh in the bitterness of our sorrows, still he will be "straightened" out, and that "little score" will not be paid. We have charged it up to profit and loss, and sent the bill to his friends that it may be planted amid the thorns that will always grow over the grave of every delinquent subscriber, who proposes to pay in pumpkins that "he can't use." Imprimatur.

OUR QUOTA.—We have not received the quota of this town or county yet. But there is a good prospect that the quota of this sub-district will be filled, and also that of the county. After we are credited with all our excess we shall have about twenty three men to raise.—Fifteen enlisted men have already been credited to our town, and a sufficient number to make up the twenty-three, have enlisted, and said they would be placed to our credit. Arrangements have been made so that the Chairman of the Town Board will issue bonds of $300 00 each to twenty-five men.

GOOD SLEIGHING.—The weather has been very fine the past week, with just snow enough to make good sleighing in town. Our livery friends are reaping their harvest, and everybody that could possibly get a horse and cutter have been out making the best of the sleighing. Those who wish to get a good rig we advise them to call on our friends B. D. Pay, opposite the post office, who has some very fine cutters and harness to match. Tompkins & Quane, at the Mankato House barn, and C. Kron, on Front street.

AT a meeting of the members of the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening last the Rev. Mr. Marshall, late of New York was nominated as their future Pastor. The Society will vote on his election in a couple of weeks in accordance with their church regulations. The occasion was made a very pleasant one, by the ladies of the Society presenting to Rev. Mr. Roliffson a silver pitcher and goblet in appreciation of his worth, and his labors in building up a church, and by the passage of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Presbyterian church and congregation at Mankato, Minn., present their grateful acknowledgements to their friends in St. Paul, for their liberal donation of Five Hundred Dollars to aid them in erecting a house of worship. They also express the hope that God may bestow his richest gifts upon those who so freely minister to the temporal wants of His kingdom.

Resolved, That we return our most hearty thanks to Messrs. J. H. Johnson & Co., of New York City, for the beautiful service of plate for Communion, which they have been pleased to donate. For such a token of Christian sympathy the church will ever hold the donors in grateful remembrance.

Resolved. That our thanks are due and are hereby tendered to the Madison Square Presbyterian Church and Congregation in New York City for their munificent present of One Thousand Dollars to aid us in the completion of our house of worship. Such a token of Christian sympathy and kindness merits our sincere gratitude. May the Lord minister to them spiritually as they have to us temporarily.

Resolved; That the Presbyterian Church and Congregation in Mankato, Minn., herewith express their gratitude to Rev. A. G. Ruliffson General Agent from the Home Missionary Commission for this State, for the interest he has manifested in our behalf. The ability and energy which he has displayed in soliciting and securing the funds necessary to erect our house of worship commands our admiration. His untiring efforts in advancing our individual welfare both temporally and spiritually, have gained for him our sympathy and love. By the blessing of God, his efforts to many of us, are of priceless value. We heartily commend him and his work to our Heavenly Father's care and blessing as he visits other fields requiridg his labor.

METHODIST CHURCH.—We understand that Wm. P. Boardman, architect of this place, will soon commence drawing a plan of a church building to be erected by the above Society. It will be forty by seventy feet. We shall lay before our readers the specifications of the drawings as soon as completed. Mr. Boardman is a skillful architect of many years experience, and no one can do a job of that kind better than he. His plan of the Clifton House, which he drew up sometime since, did him great credit. Those intending to erect new buildings and who wish plans of them, cannot do better than to patronize Mr. Boardman.

WE are greatly in need of a few more good houses to rent, There is not a vacant house in the town. Every room, however small, has been searched out, and rented at good prices. We have heard of several families who would come here to reside could they but get tenements to live in. The erection of a number of good tenements for rental purposes would be a paying investment for some of our capitalists.

WE have received the third number of the "Woodland Lighthouse" a semi-monthly manuscript paper, edited by an association of young ladies belonging to Elder Thompson's school. It contains many articles of real worth. The originality of thought, and style of composition which are discernible in them go to show that the pupils in Mr. Thompson's Seminary are making rapid and lasting improvement.

OUR Sterling correspondent just meets our views in the article which he sends us this week. We would be glad if the people of every town in the county, had less of coon and bear in their composition, and evince a greater interest in public affairs. An association similar to the one organized in Sterling ought to be started in every town, for mutual improvement.

WINNEBAGO TRUST LANDS.—Another batch of these very valuable lands are offered for sale in this paper. See advertisement elsewhere.

THE inhabitants in the town of Linden, Brown county, are circulating a petition to the Postmaster General for a weekly mail to that place, and for a post office to be called "Linden." It is very much needed, and will be a great convenience to the settlers in that section.

NOTICE.—Some of our friends up country who are indebted to this office for subscription, would oblige us very much if they will remit that "little amount" by mail, as it will save us wearing out horse flesh and paying big livery bills.

CITY HALL.—Our lease of City Hall expired yesterday. Parties who wish to rent it hereafter, will apply to the new proprietor, Mr. Meagher, the hardware man, who deals in stoves and kettles, rod iron and nails, tin ware of all kinds, agricultural implements (for winter use,) and etcetera and so forth. John gives good bargains, so call and patronize him.

THE letters that were robbed last summer, and found in a barn at the Agency, are in the hands of the Postmaster at St. Paul. Parties whose names were in the list we published can probably get their letters by addressing the Post master at that place. Those of importance will be forwarded, and the remainder sent to the dead letter office.

REVIVALS.—The interest is still kept up in the various religious meetings in progress in this town, and much good is being done. Rev. Mr. Richardson, of St. Peter, is assisting Mr. Day in his labors, in the Methodist Society.

ENLISTED MEN FOR THE FORT.—Thirty odd men recruited in this and Faribault counties, for company F. heavy artillery, by Captain Collins, passed, through town Wednesday on their way to Fort Snelling, where they will be mustered into the service.

THE donation given to the Rev. Mr. Chubbuck, by his friends in Garden City, some time since, netted him the handsome sum of sixty-five dollars. Garden City contains many generous souls.

SKATING.—The "pond" has been in splendid condition, the past week, for skating. The young and old, grave and gay have sought its smooth surface for pleasure and exercise.

No: 2 of Gazlay's Pacific Monthly is upon our table. It is a new magazine, recently started, the same size as Harper's, and ranks among the best. Terms $5.00 per annum. See prospectus next week.

GOING EAST.—White & Marks offer good bargains to their customers for the next thirty days, as they wish to close out their stock to make room for their Spring goods.

VALENTINES.—Lewis & Frisbie have received a large lot of these lovely missives, which are gotten up in various styles to please.

NEW GROCERIES.—A. T. Williams has received a fresh lot of groceries, to which he in [illegible] attention of his friends. Give him a call.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Traesury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

AFFORD EVERY FACILITY TO SUBSCRIBERS.

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

-The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. BRADDON, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, JOSH BILLINGS, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by MISS M. E. BRADON, written expressly for the NEW YORK MERCURY.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage. Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State, Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

The Professor Marrying a Cook.

Some years since, when I was in college, we had amongst our faculty a curious personage, whom every one regarded with considerable respect, and, yet, as a character, sui generis. He had lived many years without a wife, and expected to live so always. Indeed, as he was the professor of mathematics, the abstraction of his science forbade his indulging in the idea of getting married. To the female sex, therefore, he showed no other regard than common politeness required. His character was purely negative. Of course he was not popular with the ladies, and they kept themselves at a distance from him. But circumstances that often bring about a match in other cases placed him in a peculiar dilemma. It seemed a whim that a necessity was laid upon him to get married. He was one of the faculty of the college—all the other professors were married, and were obliged to entertain the distinguished visitors of the institution. He had always boarded. Of course it wasn't expected of him that he should ever give a party or a dinner. But it began to be regarded as rather mean in him to shirk off this matter from year to year, and, "well off" as he was pecuniarily to throw upon other members of the faculty the trouble and cost of entertaining the special friends and patrons of the college. The question was therefore frequently asked: "Why doesn't the old miser entertain some of the distinguished friends that visit us?"

Now, our professor wasn't a miser at all, and it often troubled him to think he was situated so that he couldn't bear his part of the burden. And yet, what could he do? He had no special regard for any one in the vicinity of the college, and no one had any special regard for him. In his younger days he had seen at school a young lady in the city of New York, in whom he had felt a peculiar interest. But of her he hadn't heard for years. Doubtless, before this time she was married, or in her grave. Possibly, however, still living and waiting for him! Glorious thought! He was quite relieved at it. indeed, there might be no foundation for his relief. Nevertheless, he could make due inquiry. Nor could he long delay, for commencement day was at hand—only a few weeks off. It was his turn—or rather would be if he was married—to give the great dinner to the distinguished personages who would be present on the occasion. There would be the Governor of the State and his lady, the trustees of the institution and their friends, and others of equal repute. But who should be the master of ceremonies? And who should grace the table? He could square the circle, perhaps, but such a circle as this, what could he do with it? If he were only married, what a helpmate would his wife be at such a time. And yet, his wife must be a good-looking, intelligent, and accomplished lady; otherwise the blank would be a blot.

Now there was a young lady in the neighborhood that the professor thought might answer. He had seen her at his boarding house, and spoken to her once or twice.

"But she may say no, and if she did, where in creation," thought he, "could I hide my head? And then, what would become of the dining? The governor must have a dinner, and he must have a wife." And hence he lay awake about it all night. At last, as the morning broke, he cried out to himself, "Contempt! she will say no, will she? What then? Other men have lived through it, and I shall. If not, I shall have a clear conscience about the dinner, and a clear conscience is the main thing, after all! I will write a note to Miss A., any way. It may be she will regard it favorably." So the professor sat down and wrote a note to Miss A. "Stay a minute," said he to himself, "what will the governor think of the lady? She is handsome and polite, but can she converse?—can she entertain company? Doubtful," said he to himself, "very doubtful." And so he tore up the note. Alas! for a man on the verge of matrimony. In an hour or two, however, the professor called on the president, and said—

"I should like to be absent a few days."

'Ah,' said the president, 'just at this time?'

'Yes, sir; I have my class in readiness for the examination, and I wish to go to New York.'

'Has any death occurred in the family?' said the president.

'No, sir,' said the professor; 'but I have a little matter of business that requires my immediate attention, and I thought it best to go.'

'You have my best wishes,' said the president; "and may you return safely, and not alone.'

The professor almost smiled, but blushed rather than smiled, and left the president, and hastened to New York.

'Why,' said the respondent, 'the family has been reduced, and she is a cook. Perhaps you don't know it, sir?'

'A cook,' said he, 'that is just what I want.'

"Oh!" said the lady; 'we thought you wanted something else, possibly.'

'No; I have been half starved to death since I left New York, and I want some one to cook decently.'

'Well,' she can do that, for she scarcely [illegible] 'Ah, she is a cook par excellence.' [illegible]

professor; 'but is she intelligent?—I speak confidentially.'

'Intelligent! She is, indeed—she can converse like an angel!'

'And as to manners—is she accomplished?'

'As graceful as an actress.'

'When can I see her?'

'At eight o'clock this evening."

'Couldn't I see her before that hour?'

'I think that would be the most convenient time for her to call and see you. She will be engaged in her duties till then.'

'I will wait, then. Please to tell her that Professor Mack, of Virginia, wishes to see her—an old acquaintance of hers.'

'Shall I tell her that you wish to engage a cook?'

'You may tell her I wish to see her,' said the professor.

'What name did you say?'

Professor Mack of Virginia, if you please, madam.'

'An everlasting long time was before him, and he had nothing to do; not a problem to solve, except the one in hand, and that was one of a doubtful solution.

Eight o'clock at last came, and the professor called again to see the young lady.

'A cook, indeed! said the professor to himself; 'she is a splendid woman, fit to grace any parlor in the world.' But how in creation should he make known his business? Poets, they say, begin in the middle of their story; but professors of mathematics, where do they begin? Finally, said the suitor:

'Miss G., how would you like to go to Virginia?'

'To Virginia!' said she, as if surprised. 'Are you not mistaken in the person whom you wish to see?'

'No, no,' said he; 'don't you remember when we both attended school in Franklin Street?'

'Oh,' said she, 'it is George Mack. I remember you well. Why I didn't know that you were alive.'

'And I have never forgotten you.'

'Ah, indeed! you are very kind to remember me so long. I thought every one had forgotten me in my calamities.'

'People often think they are overlooked when trials overtake them; but it is for you to say that your present trials are at an end.'

'Professor Mack!—what do you mean? Why, I am a mere'—

'If you have had reverses I have had success, and I have the means of making you comfortable in life.'

'But you do not know my circumstances now for I would not deceive you George.'

'It does not concern me what you are now, but you are willing to be.'

'But I have an aged mother professor.'

'And I wish to have one; she can go, too.'

Matters were soon arranged as to the time, place, and ceremony; and this being over, the party were off for Virginia—the professor pleased that he had solved the matrimonial problem so easily, and the lady that she was no longer at the world's bidding.

In the State of Virginia great ado was made for the married couple. Of course much was expected in the case of the professor. But some 'bird in the air' carried the story in advance that Professor Mack had married a cook! What lady would then call upon her? What society could the F. F. V.'s of Virginia have with a cook? But the president advised his wife to call upon her, out of decency, at least. If the professor had married a cook, why, he didn't know any better. All that he knew was how to solve problems in mathematics. Besides, he might not have married a cook; or if he had he was well off in one respect—he would have a good table.

Pshaw!' said the president's lady, 'what does a person care about a dinner in comparison to caste in society.'

'Caste in society will do well enough,' he replied, 'but since we must eat to live, a well roasted turkey is better than a fried chicken, and a short biscuit than ash cake. And what does an epicure care for ceremony? A cup of coffee is better.'

'You are no Virginian, husband, otherwise you would never say that, for anybody knows that nobility in a log cabin is better than a cook in a palace.'

'Well, call on the lady and see—theories are often good for nothing, whilst practice is the sum of perfection.'

The presidentess called and was amazed—the cook was much her superior—and she felt it.

The officers' ladies, having heard that the president's wife called on Mrs. Mack, were obliged, according to custom, to follow suit. They, too, were disappointed, for the New York lady hadn't lived in the city in vain. In mind, in manner, in accomplishment, she outranked them all. Besides, in respect to the family, she was not at all inferior—her father having had fortune once, and lost it.

Commencement day was now near at hand, and the great dinner was to come off at the professor's. Nor was Mrs. Mack at all disconcerted about it. She had seen a thing or two before, and was fully confident in her own ability to meet the exigency.

When time arrived all eyes were fixed on Mrs. Mack. How could she appear in the presence of the governor of Virginia? How in the presence of the professors and the president? And what sort of a table would she set, and how would she grace it? Could she go through with it with dignity? Of course, all this was enough, 'to try [illegible] and in the formalities of the occasion, she showed herself equal to the duties devolving upon her, and evidently interested the governor very much by her power of conversation.

'What a charming lady,' said the governor to his wife, 'is Mrs. Mack! and what a table she sets! how well she graces it.'

'My dear husband,' said she, 'do you know she is a New York cook? Why, she has been a mere servant for many years!'

'I know nothing about that,' said he; 'but if she was, I wish every other lady was a servant and a New Yorker, too. We should have something to eat, then, my dear, besides fried chickens and ash-cake.'

'All men are not epicures, like you, governor.'

'No—if they were they would imitate the mathematical professor, and go to New York and get a wife. A man wouldn't be compelled then to go to a saloon to get a decent dinner. He could find one at home—now a great rarity.'

MY CHILDHOOD HOME.

BY S. C. WELLCOME.

Away down East, among the granite rocks and rushing torrents of happy New England, my eyes first saw the blue light of Heaven. and growing with my growth and cherished with my very being, has been my passionate love for the grandeur of my childhood home. There did I spend my boyhood days in peace and happiness. Though accustomed to toil upon unfruitful soil, (compared with the Western prairies) among the rocks and stumps of a newly cleared timbered farm, from the time that I was first able to handle the implements of husbandry. Yet there was pleasure in living among those romantic hills, where their swelling forms were clothed with the evergreen, hemlock and spruce, and the lovely rivulets run murmuring down from their rocky summits to the vales below, to feed the ever-flowing mill streams that carried the mills and machineries so useful to the toiling farmer, to grind their grain saw their lumber, to card wool and weave cloth for the wool-growers, throughout that then sparsely populated country. How often my mind reverts back to my school-boy days, to my school mates, and the old red school house by the alder brook, where our teacher, with stern discipline, and with ferule in hand, was "monarch of all he surveyed. His right there was none to dispute." Methinks I see him now, as in majesty he paced to and fro in front of the old stone fire place, with the ever present goose quill stuck over his ear, while his keen eye glanced around over his ofttimes mischievous subjects, to see that all was right, while he assisted some studious pupil in his sums.

I think, too, of our pleasant pastimes around that old school house, when in winter, during recess, the mock battle often raged among the children, while they would be drawn up in line of battle, and at the word the snowballs would fly thick and fast, until one party or the other would at last yield their ground, when loud cheers went up from the victorious little army. Then there was the steep hill which we coasted on our little sleds, the hills being long and the snow deep by the side of the road, our sleds would often jump the track, and one after the other we would be buried in the deep snow to the infinite amusement and satisfaction of the lookers on.

And again I think of the many pleasant summer hours I have spent in rambling, when a very little boy, by the side of the rippling brook and through the lovely groves of beach, birch, and maple, while the birds sung their sweet songs in the waving branches and the nimble squirrel hopped merrily from tree to tree, and oft have I sat upon some large rock on the hill near the old farm house, and watched the summer sun as it sank behind old Mt. Abram, (which reared its head in lofty grandeur in the west) and as it hid itself from view, it would throw back its last lingering rays upon Mounts Bigelow and Blue to the north, as though bidding the world good night from its western hiding place. Then the evening star would come forth and look mildly down on the sunset scene, and anon the little stars would peep forth timidly upon the world, and the northern lights begin to shine forth in brilliancy as if to add new beauty to the scene. Then as the sable curtain of night was hung out o'er the earth, the whipperwill would commence his nightly song as if to cheer the weary laborer as he returned to his lonely cottage from his daily toil.

Such were some of the scenes of my early childhood, and although many years have passed away and I have wandered far from my native home, for a while upon the troubled billows of the Atlantic, and have traveled through several States of our Union, and for several years have been a dweller on the Western prairies, yet my eye has never seen the spot so dear to my heart as my own childhood home. Yes, fresh in my memory are those dear old mountains, the hills and the valleys, the woodland and the dell, the lone cottage on the hill where my mother tenderly watched over me, and taught me the first lessons of truth. Oh, how sweet were the associations of childhood; they have passed away, but not forgotten. Many of the friends of my youth now sleep beneath the sod of the valley, and others are scattered to the four corners of the earth, but the memory of early days and associations will, like the low mystic music of a dream, ever hover around me as a charm to the soul; and methinks I could ask no greater earthly boon, than to be carried back a few years, and among my native hills, revisit the scenes of my own, my much loved childhood home.

Farewell, farewell to the scenes I love,
To the mountains and forests, and shadowy dells;
No more shall I visit thy shady groves,
But to all thy scenes I must say farewell.

Indiana Divorces before a New York Court.

We have already given the principal facts in the case of Millspaugh vs. Adams. The defendant robbed the plaintiff of his wife, having obtained a divorce in Indiana on false representations. The plaintiff then made application to have the decree of divorce stricken out, which has been granted, as before stated in our columns, with damages. Judge Leonard, of the Supreme Court of New York, thus charged the jury:

In regard to this decree of divorce which has been introduced, it is not valid as a bar to the plaintiff's right to recover; you can give it some weight in considering the subject of damages, how far (if you come to the conclusion that the defendant did not have criminal connection with her previous to their marriage) he acted in good faith, supposing that an honest bona fide, fair divorce had been obtained. In that event you will be justified in taking it into consideration in mitigation of damages. But if you come to the conclusion that he had seduced her prior to the decree of divorce, no such consideration will obtain; or if you come to the conclusion that, as a part of his scheme to accomplish her seduction or to withdraw and alienate the services of Mrs. Millspaugh from her husband, he induced her to take the course she did, of procuring a divorce in Indiana, then again I consider him chargeable with the offense of seduction, and that the plaintiff has made out his case technically. But if you shall come to the conclusion that he never seduced her prior to the granting of the decree of divorce, and had no part in inducing her to take that step, but that she voluntarily did it, and induced him to be her copartner in that act, why, then, the divorce, if he married her afterward, ought to mitigate, to some extent, the damages which you shall visit upon him; because he married her then under the belief that she had a separation which the law granted from any marital right she had before entered into with her former husband. If he believed that in good faith, and had used no improper influence to to bring it about, and has been in no improper way connected with it, the divorce ought to go in mitigation of damages. Then it will remain for you to determine which position he ought to occupy; whether he ought to be considered as having seduced her on the first or second journey to Indiana, or at any time prior to their marriage. But the decree of divorce is to be considered invalid, because the Court in Indiana had no jurisdiction over the person of the defendant in that suit. A contract had been entered into of a solemn nature between Mr. and Mrs. Millspaugh, which is recognized in law as the marriage rite. It is an institution as well divine as human, and is protected by laws both human and divine. It is not likely to be dissolved. The laws of this State will not permit a dissolution of the marriage contract for any consideration except that of adultery by one of the parties. A divorce is allowable for other causes—as for cruelty or abandonment—but such divorce does not allow either party to contract another marriage; and in case of a divorce granted for the cause of adultery, the guilty party is prohibited by the decree from marrying during the lifetime of the other party.

These parties were married in this State, and Mrs. Millspaugh went to Indiana to procure a divorce which would permit her to be married again, in violation of the contract which she had entered into under the laws of New York. It was a divorce which could not have been obtained here. That was her reason for going to Indiana for the purpose. There Mrs. Millspaugh obtained a divorce which she could not have obtained here—not a limited divorce from bed and board, but a divorce from the bonds of matrimony. Now for the purpose of breaking up the contract which had been solemnly entered into in this State, it was necessary that Andrew J. Millspaugh should either have been personally served with process, or have personally appeared in the cause. It appears by the decree that none of these events happened. He neither appeared in the action nor was he served with the process. The only appearance was a mere technical one, obtained under the form of law, by publishing a notice in a newspaper of that State. The decree does not profess to have made any other service. By the laws of this State the courts do not obtain jurisdiction of a person, or obtain power to dissolve the marriage relation on such a service.

Now, there is another feature in this decree of divorce to which I will call your attention, and which prevents it from being a valid decree. It is that the laws of the State of Indiana require that any party applying in that State for a divorce, shall have been a bona fide resident of the State for one year. It is not pretended, by any testimony presented here, that Mrs Millspaugh ever resided in the State of Indiana more than a day or two. The suit was instituted on the 6th of August; she left Chicago on the 2d of August, and prior to that time we have never heard that she or her husband were in that State. So it is perfectly apparent that she had not resided in the State of Indiana one year at the time she made the application. Therefore, by the State laws of Indiana, if that fact had been brought to the attention of the judge, we must assume the court would have refused to grant this decree. The fact does not appear, from reading the decree itself, to have been presented to the court, except by the statement made on the face of the petition. The petition states that she has resided there one year. That is not true. Therefore, for these two reasons, I declare to you that the decree of divorce obtained in Indiana is invalid as a bar to this action. It is not a bar: it should be taken into consideration for no other purpose than to mitigate damages or to aggravate them, as you should consider whether the defendant took any improper part in procuring the divorce or not.

MEMENTOES.

From the Woodland Lighthouse.

Who has not many little mementoes of loved ones lost, or absent ones, whom it would be vain, ever to hope to meet again, in this world. A miniature perhaps, or a broken ring, or a lock of hair. These and many other little tokens of friendship and love, given to you by dear friends, that have long since been numbered with those that were, appear valueless to others but are of princeless value to you, and are treasured as precious mementoes of happiness long past. You love to turn from the world's coldness to these, and ponder over those days, when the future looked so bright before you—when friends, true and loving friends, with ready hands, and willing hearts, encircled your path; and your life promised to be one of peace, and happiness. Everything was bright to your untried life, then. But when the friends you loved so well, were taken from you, and you were left to struggle alone in a world cold and selfish, then everything which before had seemed so bright, suddenly turned to unutterable darkness. But through this vail of darkness, which surrounds you like a pall, comes the blessed light of Christianity, lighting up the gloom and speaking hope and comfort to the weary heart, and you remember the Savior's promise if you perform your work, while here below, faithfully to God and man, we shall meet again where there is no parting, and the weary are at rest. All these things you will think of while gazing at those precious mementoes, of loved ones lost. And you will rise more cheerful, and with renewed energies turn again to the duties of life, strengthened by the blessed hope "we shall meet again."

FLEDA.

GONE TO THE WAR.

From the Woodland Lighthouse.

"Gone to the war." How often we hear this sentence. When we are absent from home, and inquire about our friends we are told that such and such an one "has gone to war." What a great meaning this sentence conveys. It pictures desolate homes, deserted firesides, and lonely friends. And often, alas! it pictures to our imagination, a lonely grave in the "sunny South," where some loved one sleeps, far away from home and friends, and all that his heart held dear. Those who went out from their homes, brave and hopeful, with the hope of earning renown in the field, and with the fire of patriotism burning in their breasts, have fought their last battle. They have laid their arms aside—they have been promoted to the ranks above—they have procured their discharge, and are ordered home, to be ordered out no more. It also brings before us the scene of a battle field with its carnage and blood. See the ruin, war has wrought in our land! Before war, stern, and grim-visaged, entered and spread desolation in our land, we were happy. The household group was not broken. But now, many that we love have gone to the war.

MY RING.

From the Woodland Lighthouse.

I prize my ring as highly, as if it were diamond or gold, though it is only buffalo horn. A soldier brother found and polished it, thinking, all the while, perhaps, of his sister—far away. He beguiled many tedious hours of camp life in making little mementoes for absent friends. Now, that we have ceased to look for his return we prize them, not for their value, but, for his sake.—Often as I look at my ring, I think of my brother in camp. I see in imagination the many strange faces around him. I, too, see his own familiar countenance. Beyond all these interesting, but painful thoughts, I imagine my ring in its original state, as worn by the buffalo.—What a happy life it must have led then—sweeping over the vast prairies, or roaming through the forest, in company with hundreds of others, sometimes resting beside beautiful lakes, or grassy valleys, and sometimes fleeing before the flames—wild fire—or the hunter's arrow. Oh! what grandeur and beauty, in the wild, free life it led. But at last, the foolish leader led the whole herd near an encampment of soldiers, when one of their guns brought low the poor buffalo, from which was taken my ring.

A Model Charge to a Jury.

It seems to us that the following is worthy of the defunct but never forgotten Wouter Van Twiller:

"If the jury believe from the evidence, that the plaintiff and defendant were partners in the grocery, and that the plaintiff bought out the defendant and gave his note for the interest, and the defendant paid for the note by delivering to the plaintiff a cow which he warranted not breachy, and the warrantee was broken by reason of the breachiness of the cow, and he drove the cow back and tendered her to the defendant, but the defendant refused to receive her, and the plaintiff took her home again, and put a heavy yoke or poke upon her to prevent her from jumping the fence, and by reason of the yoke or poke she broke her neck and died; and if the jury further believe that the defendant's interest in grocery was worth anything, the plaintiff's note was worthless and the cow good for nothing, either for milk or beef, then the jury must find out for themselves how they will decide the case, for the court, if she understand herself—and she thinks she do—don't know how such a case should be decided."

CONSULTED A LAWYER.—Col. Tom Stakpole was appointed Captain General of the White House grounds by ex-President Pierce, which position he still holds. He was recently met by Major Benj. F. French, the Superintendent of Public Buildings, who cautiously informed him that certain politicians were after his situation, and were about to report him a secessionist, and advised the Colonel to be on the lookout.

A few days after, these worthy sons of New Hampshire again met, when Ben inquired of the Colonel whether he had thought of the matter.

'Yes,' replied Tom, 'I've thought of it, and concluded not to trouble myself about it all.

'Why don't you?' asked the Major, 'they'll have you out.'

'Oh,' said Tom, 'I've consulted a lawyer, and he told me not to have any fears about it; they can't start me.'

'Consulted a lawyer?' returned Ben; 'well, who was it that gave you such advice as that?'

'Well,' said Tom, 'it's one of the smartest lawyers in the city. He came from Illinois, and his name is—Lincoln. He says I needn't be afraid—they can't hurt me.'

Mr. French now thinks that the Col. will not be removed.

ABSTRACTED GENT.—"Old Bumblebee" was the cognomen of Mr. T——, of Newburyport. He gained the title from the fact of his catching a humble bee, one day as he was shingling his barn, and in attempting to destroy the insect with the hatchet, cut off the ends of his thumb and forefinger, letting the insect go unharmed. Other mishaps happened to the old codger on the same barn. In one of his abstractions, he shingled over his spare hatchet; and cutting a small aperture in the building to let a little daylight in, this man actually set in a wooden pane, as being economical and not likely to be broken! Uncle T——, in one of his oblivious freaks, nailed his left arm so firmly betwixt two boards of a fence he was putting up, that he had to call for help to get extricated from his self-imprisonment. He once put a button on the gate instead of the post.—But the rarest freak of all was when he ran through the streets with his hands about three feet asunder, held before him, begging the passers by not to disturb him as he had got the measure of a doorway with him!

A KNOWING PADDY.—An Irish journeyman weaver took his employer a piece of cloth he had just finished. Upon examination two holes but half an inch apart were found, for which a fine of two shillings was demanded. 'Do you charge the same for small as for big holes?' asked the workman. 'Yes,' replied the master, 'a shilling for every hole, big or little.' Whereupon the workman immediately tore the two holes into one, exclaiming. 'That'll save a shillin' anyhow.' His employer remitted the whole fine at once.

A lad of fifteen years old recently captured a shoplifter at Lewiston Maine.—Seeing a man steal a cap and walk off the boy followed him and presenting an unloaded pistol threatened to shoot him if he did not return the article. He led the thief back to the store, and made him pay a double price for the cap.

"I wonder where these clouds are going?" sighed Flore, pensively, as she pointed with her thin delicate finger to the heavy funeral masses that floated lazily in the sky. "I think they are going to thunder," said her little brother.

If you love others, they will love you. If you speak kindly to them, they will speak kindly to you. Love is repaid with love, and hatred with hatred.—Would you hear a sweet and pleasant echo, speak sweetly and pleasantly yourself.

Very touching and beautiful were the words of the old schoolmaster, as life passed away: 'It is growing dark—the school may be dismissed.' Down to the unseen world he carried his love and regard for the children whom he had trained.

Eve, according to Milton, kept silence in Eden to hear her husband talk.—There have been no Eves since.

THE VOTING PRIVILEGE EXTENDED TO NEGROES.

Our brief editorial last week, on the subject of "Nigger on the Brain," has already had the effect of causing much discusson in our community on the proposed amendment to our State constitution, striking out the word "white" as one of the pre-requisites for exercising the privilege of the elective franchise. Elsewhere, in this paper, will be found two communications from correspondents who attack our position in that article, from different stand-points; one because we go too far, and the other because we do not go far enough. We will briefly review them.

The position that "K" takes is, first, that either the negro should be allowed to vote; or second, relieved from all taxation; or third, ignorant Irishmen should be disfranchised. Grant that either the first condition should be allowed, or that the third should become operative, and we have no issue with 'K' on this point. Were it possible to exclude ignorant Irishmen, ignorant Americans, in fact all ignorant men from voting, we would say amen. We regard the privilege of casting a ballot at our elections as to high and sacred an honor to be given to any man who has not sufficient intelligence at least to read the names on the ticket he would deposit in the ballot box. Its sacredness has been outraged too much already, and the privilege has been extended too far, but how do we better the matter by allowing another class of ignorant men to exercise this sacred right. "K" fails to meet the point in our article that two wrongs don't make one right. We do a further wrong now and then undo it at a later day, as we predict it will most surely be done. In politics, as in everything else, this is, we think, a very poor rule of action. If "K" will consider a moment he will see that there is no soundness in the second alternative which he proposes, in connection with the first. Men are not taxed because they vote, but because they have property, and because being citizens or residents of a community they owe some debt for the protection they enjoy from the Government under which they live.

Aliens, idiots, madmen, and minors are taxed as well as negroes, especially if they have property, and we hardly think "K" would be in favor of extending his theory to them so that they "should be allowed to vote, or else relieved from all taxation."

Now, a word with "C. A. S." whom we did not suppose was "that kind of a man." We shall not retract or qualify a single statement we have made. It matters not to us whether a man's complexion is white or yellow, or brown, or copper-colored, or simon pure black, he is a man for all that. And the man whose complexion is black, if equally intelligent with our fairer-faced Anglo-saxon brother, should stand on an equality with him, in the eyes of the law, so far as exercising the privileges of a voter.

Make a standard of education, and require all, black or white, to come up to it before they can vote. That is our creed. To exclude a man from voting simply on account of his color, or alleged national inferiority is only carrying out the bitter prejudice which excludes in the South the testimony of a negro in a court of justice. "C. A. S." claims to have lived in the South, and has a knowlege of negro character. Well, so have we, and we know that the negro has an inestimable longing not only to be free, but desires to educate himself so as to assert his claim to exercise the rights of a free man. He does not expect it without this qualification. Our correspondent in citing the old Mosaic law, which applied to the people of that day and generation, forgot to state that the white race for a period of four hundred and thirty years were the slaves of a black race. If slavery stamps inferiority upon the enslaved, why was not that white race intellectually inferior, and if inferior, how will you account for their superiority in the present day, Simply because education has developed the intellect. If the negro is so inferior, as you claim, that you have to go back to the days of Canaan to prove it, why be so afraid of his becoming the equal of the white man, that you will not give him any chance to develop himself? If he is ignorant exclude him from voting, but if he proves his intellectual manhood, give him the voting privilege.

Intellect and manhood are not confined to any color. Tousson, the black chieftain of St, Domingo, was as true a hero, as intelligent a man, as sagacious a military leader as the most of the few white leaders, of mankind. To day, in the French scientific schools, black students show themselves equally proficient and intelligent as the thinner-skinned white students who sit by their side; and in the Institutes, where the French savons engage in scientific discussions, the black man reads his essay and makes his speech amid the plaudits of his white brethren.

We mention this simply to shew that our American views about a particular "color" being a passport to all the good things in this, and in the next world, is a mere prejudice. We do not think it will die out with this generation, though we wish it would. But it will eventually die out, for though "the mills of God grind slow, they grind sure."

"C. A. S." errs if he thinks that because we allow a black man to vote he is, in all respects, as good as a white man. We do not regard every white man who votes the equal in every respect with the whole white voting race. The opium eating Chinaman, who votes in California, has, perhaps, a supreme contempt for his Anglo-Saxon brother who eschews opium. The son of the Emerald Isle, inwardly feels his superiority over any other white man not fresh from the 'bog;' and, in turn, perhaps, 'C. A. S.' don't regard them as his own equal, though they are not black men.

His fears about miscegenation are, we think, without any foundation. Does a white man lean any more towards matrimonial alliances with some of our copper colored squaws or half-breeds, because Indians who wear the dress, and assume the customs of the white race are allowed to vote? Does any 'native' of our soil any the more easily contract an alliance with some Chinese beauty because Chinamen are allowed to vote? We do not think so. Because we do an act of justice to the black man, throw aside a narrow prejudice and honestly admit that every man, no matter what his color or religion, or birth, is a man worthy of being entitled to a voting interest in our institutions, if he shows himself sufficiently intelligent to properly exercise this privilege, we have no fears that our white race will discard their prejudice of color so far that they will marry the black Dinah's of our country, instead of our fairer white women. If any one has, and knows his failings, we advise him by all means to continue his prejudice and stigmatize them as an inferior race, and declare that they are not entitled to exercise the elective franchise privilege. It does not necessarily follow that because one advocates the right of the intelligent negro to vote, he must socially embrace the shady beauties. There is no civil law in this State prohibiting it, but social laws are stronger than civil enactments, and will control in these matters. As for ourselves, if any one can so overcome his prejudices that he world, in the classic language of "C. A. S.,' prefer the 'social embrace of one of Afric's shady clouds,' that is his business. We can stand it if he can.

SUBLIMELY IMPUDENT.

When a person does us a favor it affords us a great deal of pleasure to consider ourself under obligations, and reciprocate at the first opportunity. But when that person stabs us in the dark and deliberately sets to work to injure our best interests, and smites us on one cheek, we don't feel like turning to him the other also. Hardly has he succeeded in accomplishing his object, before he sees in the future some lucrative position to which he aspires, and then seeks favor and countenance of the one whom he has most severely injured.

These reflections are prompted by having been requested to sign a petition favoring the appointment of Hon. Cyrus Aldrich, as U. S. Marshal for Minnesota, in the place of the present worthy incumbent. The petition was sent here by Mr. Aldrich, and at his request has been circulated to some extent by a gentleman who is personally obligated to him for past favors. Some of those who had signed it, and there were only fifteen or twenty, after understanding the hostility the Colonel evinced towards this section some weeks ago, desired to withdraw their signatures, and expressed their willingness to sign a remonstrance.

The Colonel has always been a personal friend of ours, and other circumstances we should be glad to aid him in whatever way we could. But we do not forget how he had it in his power in the late Senatorial contest to have materially advanced the interests of every citizen of Southern Minnesota, and deliberately refused to do it. We have no desire to see him acting as U. S. Marshal for this State. There is no need of a change. The present incumbent is a worthy and efficient man, discharges his duties well. and has served only part of a term. But the cool, brazen, bare-faced impudence of the Colonel in seeking aid from this section to boost him into place and power, is amusing; in fact, it's the height of sublime impudence. It is not long since he was a candidate for U. S. Senator, now he condescends to aspire to the Marshalship, only. "Verily 'tis but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous." No, Colonel, you can remain in your seclusion. We don't want you now. At a more convenient season we may call for you. If, for any crime we may ever commit against the peace and dignity of the United States to be arrested shall be our fate, we pray that it may be by some U. S. Marshal other than Cyrus Aldrich.

METHODIST NEWS.

The Knoxville Whig, published by W. G. Brownlow, says, that "Bishop Clark, of the M. E. Church, informed us that he would hold a Conference in Knoxville for the purpose of re-organizing the scattered forces of the Methodist Church between the middle and last of May. Due notice of the time will be given, however, by the Bishop, through our paper, and those who wish to unite with the loyal wing of the Church can be on hand. Our loyal people will rejoice at the prospect of being severed from that 'body of death,' known as the Methodist Church, South. Its leading men went into this rebellion, and are little better now than other guerrillas, bushwhackers, and demoralized drinkers of mean corn whisky."

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD.

The citizens of East Tennessee, met in convention at Nashville a short time ago, and proposed several amendments to the Constitution of that State, which will be submitted to the people for their ratification or rejection, on Wednesday next, the 22d inst: The following is the first article in the schedule:

Sec. 1. That slavery and involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, are hereby forever abolished and prohibited throughout the State.

Sec. 2. The Legislature shall make no law recognizing the right of property in man.

Section one of the schedule abrogates that clause in the constitution which declares that the "General Assembly shall have power to pass laws for the emancipation of slaves without the consent of their owner or owners."

The second section declares that the agreement entered into by the Commissioners of the State, and the Commissioners of the Confederacy in May 1861, was an act of treason, unconstitutional. and is null and void.

On the day of election every person who desires to vote will be required to subscribe to the following oath. The name of each voter must be written on the back of his ticket, and it is made the duty of the judges to file them with the county clerk:

"I solemnly swear that I will henceforth support the Constitution of the United States, and defend it against the assaults of all its enemies; that I am an active friend of the government of the United States, and the enemy of the so called Confederate States; that I ardently desire the suppression of the present rebellion against the Government of the United States; that I sincerely rejoice in the triumph of the armies and navies of the United States, and in the defeat and overthrow of the armies, navies, and of all armed combinations in the so-called Confederate States; that I will cordially oppose all armistices, or negotiations for peace with rebels in arms, until the Constitution of the United and all laws and proclamations made in pursuance of the laws thereof, shall be established over all the people of every State and Territory embraced within the National Union; and that I will heartily aid and assist the loyal people in whatever measures may be adopted for the attainment of these ends; and further, that I take this oath freely and voluntarily, and without mental reservation. So help me God."

PARSON BROWNLOW NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF TENNESSEE.

W. G. Brownlow, editor of the Knoxville Whig, has been nominated for Governor of Tennessee, and upon being asked if he would accept, he was called to the stand, and made the following speech. It will be a sorry day for the rebs and guerrillas in that region when Brownlow gets hold of the State reins.

Gentlemen:—I propose to settle any friendly controversy you may have sprung upon the probabilities of my acceptance of this nomination, by assuring you that I do accept. A nomination coming from 521 delegates, representing all the counties in the State, and conferred upon me with such absolute unanimity—no other name being mentioned for the office, and the nomination being by acclamation, and followed by such rousing cheers, I could not do otherwise than accept. I cannot be expected to do more and certainly I ought not to do less, than tender to you as a Convention my sincere thanks for the honor and distinction you have conferred upon me by this nomination.

I will not inflict upon you, gentlemen, a speech on this the sixth day of an arduous session, but one characterized with so much of harmony, patriotism and talents. If the people should ratify your nomination, gentlemen, allow me to assure you that what I may lack in saying I will make up in doing, in acts and deeds. And God being my helper, if you will send up to Nashville, on the first Monday in April, a Legislature that will re-organize the State Militia, and enact other necessary laws, I will put an end to this infernal system of guerrilla warfare and private and public robbery, if we have to shoot and hang all concerned, in East, Middle and West Tennessee! [Loud and continued applause.] I have no fears but that the Federal authorities will furnish us with arms and ammunition, sufficient to enable us to perfect an organization for every county.

Thanking you again, gentlemen, and hoping soon to see better days in this good old Commonwealth, I take my seat.

At an amateur performance of Hamlet at Pike's, Opera House, Cincinnati, on the night of the 6th, for the benefit of soldiers' widows, some $7,000 were realized. Hamlet was performed by Lieut. Gov. Anderson. It was a grand affair.

Proposed Donations to Agricultural Societies.

The State Board of Agriculture, which held its session in St. Paul a few days since, passed the following resolutions. which, if the Legislature grants the request therein contained, will somewhat benefit the Blue Earth Co. Agricultural Society as well as others, in a pecuniary point of view.

Resolved, That Messrs. Guitean, Hill and Smith be appointed a Committee to present the wishes of this Society in the directions named, to the Legislature.

Resolved, That a memorial be presented, through the committee, asking that body to grant to the State Agricultural Society the sum of $500, and to each County Agricultural Society, the sum of $50, upon condition that such Societies shall furnish proof of their interest in the subject, by the holding of Annual Fairs and the collection of facts and statistics in their several localities.

Resolved. That a committee of three be appointed, to consist of the President, Secretary and Treasurer, with directions to select the names of such persons in different parts of the State, as may be suitable to communicate with, on subjects connected with the view to obtaining such results of their experience as would, by its publication, increase the common stock of knowledge.

FROM THE NINTH REGIMENT.

We are permitted to copy the following extract from a private letter, written to a lady in town, by her brother, who is a member of company D. of the 9th Minnesota. He has been in the service now nearly three years, and participated in all the battles and marches in which the brave Ninth has been engaged, and has come off without a scratch thus far,

"I am still alive, and enjoying very good health, having passed through the two days' battle at Nashville without receiving a scratch, with the exception of my haversack, which was pierced by a grape-shot on the second day. That was a terrible day, both for ourselves and the enemy, and many a family circle mourns the loss of dear friends. Our brave Captain was killed on that day, and we deeply mourn his loss. He was a gentleman in every sense of the word, and, as an officer and soldier, there was not his equal in our regiment. I think he had a presentiment in the morning, that he was going to be killed, for he acted very strange. My right and left hand comrades were shot down at the same instant. John Burke, of Winnebago City was on my left. He was wounded, but has since died. John Burquink, of St. Peter, was on my right. He was killed instantly. In crossing a cornfield in front of the rebel works, we were subjected to a galling fire from the enemy, which made wide gaps in our ranks. The distance was about three hundred yards, and the mud was ankle deep. I was among the first that scaled the works, and when I got there I was so tired I could hardly catch my breath. When we put the Johnnies to flight every man seemed to take new life, and commenced a rapid pursuit.

"We are now in camp at this place (Eastport, Mississippi). Most of the men have built log shanties to live in, for it is too cold to live in tents. Seven of us, Wm. T. Maxson, D. T Terhune, Wm. Swearengen, F. Clark, Ben. Rogers, P. H. Latimer and myself, have built one, and now mess together. We have had very poor rations since we came here. Have drawn only half rations most of the time, and now have nothing but coffee, meat and shelled corn, which we have no way of cooking so that it is not fit to eat. Pretty hard fare you will say, for men who have suffered and fought to maintain the honor of the old flag as we gave for the last seven months."

Warning to Boys.—A boy six years of age, at LaCrosse, the other day, jumped on to a pair of bob-sleds that was passing along the street, when he slipped, fell between the sleds and was killed. We saw a little six year old in this village, a few days ago, escape, almost as if by miracle, from being crushed between a stick of timber, on which he jumped to get a ride, and a stump by the roadside, When will children learn not to jump on to passing sleighs.—Mantorville Express.

The town of Maine Prairie in this county, last year levied a tax of six mills on the dollar, to aid in the destruction of ground squirrels. "NIGGER ON THE BRAIN."

Mr. Editor:—An article appeared in your last weeks paper, under the above heading, which, with your permission, I will make a few criticisms.

The whole spirit of the article appears to me to be behind the times. The heading has long been used as an opprobrious term, applied by the slave oligarchy of the South to those who opposed our great national sin, and as they have shown themselves unworthy of being remembered, but in connection with their crimes, the adoption of such expressions seems to me to be highly out of place, and tending to give them "aid and comfort."

With the main idea that intelligence should be the qualification of a voter I fully agree, but as "ignorant Irishmen" are allowed to vote, in justice to the negro one of three things should take place, and the sooner the better, Either the negro should be allowed to vote, or relieved from all taxation, or "ignorant Irishmen" should be disfranchised. Taxation without representation caused the founders of this nation to, throw off the British yoke, and that which was an injustice then, is an injustice yet. Now, as the Legislature has given the people the opportunity to do justice to the negro, by giving him a right to vote, I say right, while it has not given us the opportunity to deprive the "ignorant Irishman" of his vote, let us give that race which has long been oppressed, North and South, a proof that as a State we have wronged them, and now repent of that wrong, and are willing to bring forth fruits worthy of repentance. Doing this will not prevent us making intelligence the test at a future day. The spirit which would withhold a vote from an intelligent negro because we would have to give it to the ignorant negro while the "ignorant Irishman" has it, is decidedly bad. Should the 'black bill' be vetoed by the people, a result which I fear, it will give no little 'aid and comfort' to our enemies, while it will show that Minnesota has not yet suffered enough in the war. Until our repentance as a nation becomes genuine and practical, we cannot expect a just and merciful God to roll back the dark clouds that now hang over us.

K

THE VOTING PRIVILEGE EXTENDED TO NEGROES.

Mr. Editor:—In your last issue I notice an article headed "Nigger on the brain," in which you discuss the course of the present Legislature in dealing out the right of negroes, so as to give them equal rights with the whites in everything pertaining to citizenship. The Legislature will disgrace itself if it passes its present bill or any other, allowing negroes to vote. Before closing this article, I will endeavor to prove what I say. In your article the following language occurs:

> "We are in favor of allowing every intelligent man of lawful age, whether black or white, to vote; but we are not in favor of allowing a man who is not intelligent, to exercise this voting privilege. We cordially endorse most of the speech of Mr Gilman, who made by far the ablest one on the subject. He favored restriction, instead of extending the elective franchise, making education the standard of a man's qualification to vote. No doubt an ignorant negro is just as well qualified to become a citizen of Minnesota, as an ignorant Irishman, but no more nor no less"

By this language it will be seen that intelligence is your standard—not color. And that an ignorant negro is as good as an ignorant Irishman. Then by fair conclusion an intelligent negro is as good as an intelligent Irishman, and we all agree that an intelligent Irishman is just as good as any man in the world if he behaves himself. Again, see another point in your article:

> "And because an error has been committed in our present State constitution allowing a man to vote, simply because he is white, no matter how ignorant, is no reason why we should commit another error by allowing ignorant negroes to stand on an equality with our ignorant whites."

By this we see that "ignorant negroes" and "ignorant whites" stand exactly on a level in your mind in regard to elective franchise, Then surely, by this a negro is as good as a white man. Are you prepared to stand by this doctrine? Think a little harder Mr, Editor, before you decide. Now as to the law and to the testimony, No man denies that the negro is the descendant of Canaan, who was certainly inferior to his brethren. Noah had three sons and they were not all equal in their day; could not be. And of the three Ham was the runt of society. Read his history and you will see it. The curse pronounced on Canaan shows that all his descendants should be inferior, as a race, to his brethren. We do not believe that the curse made them all slaves to their brethren, but that it stamped inferiority on them, and they feel it to the present day, either in civilization or heathenism.

Look at the effects of this citizeniziz ing negroes. There is scarcely one step between this and miscegenation. A woman has a right under our laws to marry a foreigner if white. Now shall she not marry a citizen of the United States though black, if the terms white and black are to become obsolete in our laws? And may not a man marry a spruce belle, the daughter of a wealthy citizen of the United States, if he chooses, white or black. There is no difference. Now God deliver me from the social embrace of Affric's shady clouds. I never will surrender to it.

But again, look at the curses following miscegenation. According to our medical reports, it would not take many generations to kill out our healthy race, as the blood of the negro and whites do not agree, but produces scrofula and all its concomitant diseases. You may say that you do not believe in mixing races. Well, if you citizenize them you will be obliged, before long, to go the rest. Do not shudder! Stand up to it like a man. I am a colonization abolitionist. Nothing less, nothing more. A Clay whig of the red, white and blue stripe, and if our people are so foolish as to pass such a law, I want to bid my friends here good bye—that is, what few don't go with me. and go somewhere else, where pure society can be obtained. And thousands of us will go.

This 'nigger on the brain' is becoming fearfully prevalent and even many who think they are not diseased

Are chuck full—
Of nigger and wool
Upon the brain,
And are insane.

The negroes do not want these priviliges. I was raised where I gained a practical knowledge of negro character, both slave and free, They want to live separate, and the living mass to-day, would vote to be a separate people. Why should we force them to other and obnoxious relations, both to them and the whites. May God help us a nation, and as a State to be wise, and arrest ruin. Let us first settle our national difficulties and after that talk about negroes voting. I am ashamed for my countrymen. Big Injin has played out and I hope that big nigger will play out, and that all negroes and Indians may be kept a separate people from the whites forever. God has designed it, why then shall we follow the dictations of the devil? May reason take the place of madness, and soundness that of rottenness in our legislative assemblies.

Yours respectfully, C. A. S.

MR. STINE'S VINDICATION.

Mankato, Feb. 14*th*, 1865.

Mr. Editor: Please grant a place in your columns, that I may notice some false representations concerning myself, published editorially in last week's Homestead. I shall give a plain statement of facts, for "truth is mighty and must prevail."

First. In regard to Mr. Raymond, I I know that he received his exemption papers without any expense, except the surgeon's fee of five dollars, for a private examination.

Second. I know Mr. Harmon paid six dollars only, for his exemption fees, and also, the facts are these. In no case of pthisic or deafness, or asthma, or fits, or any like complaints, did Dr. Mayo issue certificates of exemption, except affidavits were made by responsible citizens (knowing the case) and these certified to by the Town Board, or at least its Chairman, and these papers were filed away by Dr. Mayo, for his security in issuing such certificate.

This Mr. Harmon came under this class, and Mr. Kimball, his uncle, came to me and desired me to assist him to get Harmon's exemption. as he said that Harmon was utterly unfit for service.—I explained the whole matter to him and told him that it would cost him five dollars to secure the services of the Doctor, and I would not go and get up affidavits in the case, and bother with it, for less than five dollars, (and the law allows this fee). He, with this understanding, told me to go on and do it, as he was anxious to have it done, and would pay for it. I got up the affidavit and papers necessary to secure the result—spent several hours in the case, and got him his papers. Harmon then refused to pay but six dollars to get his papers with, and that was all he would pay. Thus taking out five dollars for Dr.'s fee, agreed upon, I had one dollar for several hours labor and stationery, and, as usual, boarded myself. Judge ye the honest man. The Homestead should have stated that I drew up affidavits for Mr. Straight and Nicols, for nothing, as known by Messrs. Mason, Maxon and Woodruff, of Faribault county, and that I charged Mr. Raymond nothing and that I assisted others from Faribault county, for nothing. and that for half a days labor, for said county, I just received the one dollar. And that in the town of Mankato, I charged not a cent to any man, although I made out many affidavits, and might have made several hundred dollars, had I desired, as I enrolled three of our towns here, and had many good offers to make money out of this matter which I positively refused. If the Editor of the Homestead would come to Mankato and learn the facts in regard to my course, he might be inclined to take back some thing, said in his last issue in regard to me.

As the style of his article, I cannot stoop to discuss, I will say that I am ready for an investigation into my course—either by State, or Church, as I have no ex's prefixed to my name, but always answer to my plain unvarnished cognomen. If the Homestead man expects cripples, like myself—made such by fighting for our beloved homes in Minnesota, to do all the writing for the upper country, gratis, may God increase his liberality and give him a better mind.

The above facts are sufficient to convince any gentleman of the honesty of my course—others I will not try to convince, as I believe the article referred to, to be the dictation of malice, and would say, may God forgive their sins and teach them to love the truth, ere they realize a part of Rev., 21st, and 8th.

Recapitulation.

Harmon's papers cost him not a cent—the town paid it. Raymond, Straight and Nicols, nothing. There are others I assisted from these, but averaging these, I received twenty-five cents a case—wrote some dozen separate affidavits, &c. These would be eight cents a piece, without other labor. Surely this was extraordinary—An honest community can judge. I have learned to appreciate Matt. 7th, and 6th.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
C. A. S.

For the Mankato Union.

Died:—In Danville, Jan. 29th ult., MAGGIE, eldest daughter of James and Elizabeth McBroom, aged three years, one month and two days.

Maggie was a child of much promise, and tenderly entwined herself about the heart of her parents, and those who were acquainted in the family. Her precocity of intellect developed itself, not only in her ability to learn, but also in the sympathetic nature of her soul. She had learned the alphabet perfectly, and could read and pronounce simple monsyllables. But what is more worthy of remark, was her attention to the duties of religion, as they were performed in the family. For months, she had been attentive and apparently devout at family worship. She would get the family Bible and take it to her father after breakfast, and when a portion of Scripture had been read, she would kneel down at her little chair, and if there was any delay, she would say, "Papa kneel down and pray." A week or two before the child's decease, a circle of friends met at Mr. McBroom's and passed the evening in singing, Little Maggie went around in her winning way, and asked each one in turn to take her. She would sit with one but a short time till she would go to another. Was not this her earthly farewell? At the funeral, the house was filled with friends who had come to condole with her parents on the loss of so bright an earthly treasure; or shall I rather say to rejoice with them that their late earthly attraction had become a heavenly one. That hymn sung by so many thousands of children.—

"I want to be an angel, &c.," was a favorite one of her's, and the parents requested that it be sung at the funeral. They also selected another,—

'Sister, thou wast mild and lovely, &c"

What I have thus related of little Maggie, was told me by the parents and others; for those little marble lips were sealed in the coffin ere I viewed them. We do not claim. in her case, anything more than a mind somewhat in advance of her years, tenderly and religiously instructed. Both in nature and in grace circumstances account for facts. Half a year ago, Maggie was taken a little ill. The father said to me that he, at the time, had a presentiment that the child would not live long. He went out to his labor, but the child rested upon his mind. He went to a little willow grove and poured out his soul to God that the child might be spared him. He there, on the occasion, felt that twice a day, morning and evening were not enough for him to pray; hence he made a vow that at noon also the incense of prayer should go up. The child was lent to them a little longer. But the Savior had need of this gem in his crown in heaven. A few short months more was all that he could spare her.

I have seen children wring their hands in agony, and refuse to be comforted when their parents have died; and I have seen parents overwhelmed with grief when their children have been snatched away by death; but in this case while the parents could mourn, and the fountain of their tears was broken up, still there was light above.

Never does a child of God appear so lovely as when under trials, and yet submissive. When, on taking leave of the corpse, as it seemed to me, the parents had lingered around the coffin long enough, bathed in a flood of tears as they were, I said to them, "Dear parents, this is but the tenement, the tenant is in heaven, shall we close down the lid?" So sweet a smile, that savored so much of heaven, I never witnessed, and for the first time in my life I wished that I were "Irish." If with them, looking up, the depths of sorrow can be turned into the transports of joy, then I crave to be an Irishman. But little Maggie was in heaven, and "where the treasure is, there the heart is also."

☞ There is an effort being made to amend the Constitution of this State so as to allow Negroes to vote. This is right, as there is no reason why a Negro should not vote as well as a white man. If we had the amending of our Constitution, we would however make it, so that no person should be allowed to vote who could not read. If the Legislature would submit such a proposition to the people we believe it would be adopted by a large majority. Let intelligence instead of color be the passport to voting priviliges; What say you gentlemen of the Legislature? Give us a chance at it—Homestead.

Henry Fowler,

Mr. Craven has been laboring in our community for nearly a year past, in the cause of religion, and endeavoring to advance the interests of the Baptist Society in this place. He is loved and respected by our citizens, and is worthy and deserving of the tribute his friends propose to pay him. We hope this visit will be well attended, and that those who go will remember that the "Lord loveth a cheerful giver," and give not sparingly.

BOUNTY.—The citizens of Sterling met on the 7th inst., and voted a bounty of $300, to each volunteer from that town. The following resolutions were also passed, which we were requested to publish.

WHEREAS, This is a meeting of the voters of the town of Sterling, legally convened for the purpose of transacting business connected with the enrollment, we deem it a suitable time to express our opinion with reference to the proceedings of certain parties in Mankato during the recent session of the examining board in that place, and

WHEREAS, Many of the men who went from this and other towns to be examined, were treated with gross injustice by the board, or their assistants, in being kept for hours standing in the street in the cold because they were too poor or too conscientious to bribe lawyers or others to get them admitted; while those who complied with the demand of these parties were admitted without delay, and

WHEREAS, Many persons paid large sums to either doctors or lawyers, or both, upon their express promise to get the said parties declared by the Board unfit for the service, though some of these persons were notoriously unsound, and would have gone before the Board without feeing of any one if they could have been sure of justice at their hands. Others had been already pronounced sound by the Board, but upon paying a good fee to some outsider obtained a re-hearing and were declared unsound.

Resolved, Therefore, that all the parties, directly or indirectly, concerned in thus defrauding poor men are morally if not legally in liable for conspiring to obtain money under false pretences. And we do hereby indict them before the GRAND JURY of the people, believing that their verdict will be that each and every one concerned has committed a great moral wrong, and are utterly unfit to hold any office or to be put in any place of trust or honor for the future.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be forwarded to the Mankato papers with a request that it be inserted.

WM RUSSELL, Clerk J. J. LEWIS, Chairman

"WHERE THE CARCASS IS," &c.—Our gentle and moral friend Brown of the Faribault Republican, dishes up a long article to his readers on the above subject, in which he strikes right and left at the 'sharks,' as he styles them, who infested that city during the recent session of the Board there. But, dear brother, were those all the 'sharks' that were there? Did you ever hear of a man's plucking the 'beam out of his own eye, before taking the mote out of his brother's?' Isn't printing paper very high in your town? Do prices fluctuate 'slightly?' What christian virtue induced you to charge $2 50 for fifty exemption bills, and the next morning $6 00 for just half the number? Was your family starving? Was it a 'military necessity?' How could you?—Oh Brown! dear Brown! we pray for you, beloved brother that you may be delivered. We fear there is a 'shark' in your 'rookery.' Did you do it?—Oh. Brown! how could you? O—h!

NOT SO.—We understand, that it has been asserted upcountry that we, in connection with our cotemporary up street, had been bought up by the exemption sharks' and dare not expose them. The assertion is false in every particular.—We failed to see any rascality going on, while the Board was here. There was none on the part of the Board. We kept silent because the excitement was high. Many rumors were afloat, and the matter was undergoing investigation, and we did not wish to pre-judge any one, or make an assertion that we would have to take back. There is time enough to convict a man after he has had his trial.

THE RURAL ANNUAL AND HORTICULTURAL DIRECTORY.—Such is the title of a neat little work of 120 pages, issued each year from the office of the Genesee Farmer, Rochester, N. Y. The volume for 1862 is just out. It contains a large amount of information for the farmer, fruit-grower, and every one interested in the cultivation of the soil. Among the principal topics discussed are: The Pear Tree Blight; Raising Clover Seed; Charring Old Sods; New Method of Training Pear Trees; Pruning; Chiccory as a Substitute for Coffee; The golden Age of Fruit Culture; Poultry as Egg-Producers; Experiments in Feeding Hogs with different Foods; Fattening Cattle in Winter; Grafting Old Orchards; Artificial Manures; with many other articles of great interest. The price of the Rural Annual is only twenty-five cents. It will be sent pre-paid by mail on receipt of price. Address Joseph Harris, Publisher Genesee Farmer, Rochester, N. Y.

LOCALS.—Items are scarcer than hen's teeth. There is nothing going on, and nobody to do it with. We wish our friends in neighboring towns would send us some items. We don't care what they are—send them along, anything and everything that will interest the community—accidents, fires, marriages, elopements, mammoth hogs, fat babies, enormous quantity of children at one birth, and violations of law. If you can get anybody into a "scrape," do so, and send us the item.

NEW GROCERY STORE.—Messrs. Boardman & Wampler, are engaged fitting up the old Duke's building next to Meagher's store, which when completed, will be occupied as a grocery store by Theodore Scattergood, Esq., recently from Plymouth, Mich. Mr. S's stock of goods will arrive in a week or two, and we bespeak for him a liberal share of town and county patronage.

FARMERS DEPARTMENT'—On the fourth page of this paper will be found two columns of reading matter pertaining to the farm and garden. It is our intention to devote that space every week, hereafter to such matters as will interest our country readers, and would be glad if they would consider it their special department, and keep it filled up with original articles. Try it, friends, you can make it very interesting if you will. Any items pertaining to the management of your farm, care of your cattle, horses, sheep or hogs, will interest your neighbors, and repay you for your trouble. Besides, it will make your county paper more interesting, and you certainly should take pride in keeping that up.

GONE TO WAR.—Our friend, J. L. Christie, publisher of the Homestead, has lain aside the "rule" and "shooting stick" pertaining to his profession and taken up those pertaining to War.—Success to you, and may you never be shot in the back.

MUSICAL CONVENTION AT OWATONNA.—W. E Hawley advertises a musical convention at Owatonna on the 20th inst., and continue for three days.—Friends from abroad, favorable to the cause are invited to attend.

LIVERY.—Ben. Pay desires us to say that the sleighing is good, and that he has got splendid cutters, fast horses, new buffalo robes, musical bells, and prices cheap, and he knows of lots of pretty girls who are anxious to have a sleigh-ride. Whoa!

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Frank Tompkins has sold his house and lot on Second street to J. G. Simpson, the gentlemanly Express Agent for $900. Now that Johnny has bought a cage, we expect he will have "expressed" to him, in a few days, a "bird" to put into it. Right, Johnny, right.

The Board of Examination has been ordered to meet at Faribault to-day and to-morrow to re-examine persons for exemption from military duty, whose exemption papers were annulled by reason of alleged irregularities.

Company F, Heavy Artillery has been organized, and the officers elected. Hugh J. Owens is Captain, F. A. Squires, senior 1st Lieutenant; Geo. J Stannard, junior Lieutenant; Peter A. Lentz, senior 2nd Lieut., and A. M. Collins, junior 2nd Lieut. The company started for Nashville yesterday.

DESERVED PROMOTION.—Lieut. C. W. Keysor, of this place, has been promoted to be Captain of Company E, 9th Regiment, vice Dane resigned. This is a well deserved promotion.

CONFECTIONERY.—Lewis & Frisbie have just received a choice lot of fresh candies of all kinds. They were made at Winona, and are equal to any brought from the East.

THE BAKERS.—We notice by our exchanges that the celebrated Baker Family are on a tour in the northern part of the State. They will probably favor our citizens with a concert before they leave the State.

WE publish on our outside several articles from the "Lighthouse," published by the ladies in Mr. Thompson's school.

SCHOOL BOOKS.—Jason F. Wickersham has just received another supply of school books of all grades, which will be sold at St. Paul prices.

Commissioner Evans is now engaged in clearing the river from snags. He has about fifty men employed, and the work is progressing finely.

If clearly genuine, no matter how torn or decayed they may be, provided one-twentieth part thereof be not missing.—Such notes and currency received as are unfit for re-issue should be kept separate and distinct, and returned, as occasion requires, to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, in sums not less than three dollarr, to be exchanged for new.

The street railway corporations of Chicago have been taking that city some what by surprise. It appears that in 1858 they got an ordinance from the Common Council, investing them with the right to operate through the streets of the city for the term of twenty-five years, and after the expiration of that time the city could elect either to purchase the tracks or extend the privileges of the companies. In 1859, the Legislature passed an act to carry into effect the ordinance, without interfering with the rights of the parties therein defined. The companies have now obtained another act from the Legislature, passed in great haste and with great unanimity, making them a body corporate and politic for the term of 99 years, and granting such privileges as would annul the terms of the city ordinance, and consequently deprive the people of the right to resume the franchise and purchase the tracks at the expiration of twenty-five years from 1858. The bill only wants the Governor's signature to become a law, and an effort is being made by the people of Chicago to so represent the facts to Gov. Oglesby, as will induce him to veto the bill. It is claimed that not a single citizen of Chicago not interested in the railways, would vote for that ninety-nine years lease.

CAIRO, February 9.

The immense fleet that several days ago went up the Tennessee River has arrived here loaded with troops and army material. It numbers fifty-six steamers. Gen. A. J. Smith's forces, from Gen. Thomas' army, on board, bound down the Mississippi, and probably going to Mobile—though this is merely conjecture.

The troops of the command feel greatly disappointed and aggrieved that they have not received their pay for several months. Having no money, and seeing the 'fat of the land' about our streets, those of the 'boys' who got into the town made a regular raid upon the stores of Cairo, taking whatever they could lay their hands on and causing intense excitement among the merchants and dealers, all of whom immediately 'closed up shop' in short order—not, however, before the soldiers had helped themselves freely to goods, and eatables. Many of the stores suffered heavily, some losing thousands of dollars worth of property. A strong guard patrolled the city all last night, and quiet was restored.

FROM THE SOUTH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Richmond Sentinel of the 10th says the Union forces were making raids in Florida, and at last accounts were advancing on Rice's Bluff in unknown force.

CHARLESTON, Feb. 8.—A dispatch from Gen. Wheeler dated Holmes' Bridge, Feb. 7, 8:20 P. M., says the pickets near Black Hills this morning were charged by three brigades of cavalry, who drove them beyond the village.—Debrill's Tennessee brigade being in the vicinity, met the enemy and charged them driving them back into the village.

A dispatch from Gen. Wheeler, dated February 8, 3 P. M., says a large column of the enemy's infantry struck the railroad at Grahams and Blackville.—Kilpatrick is at Branchville with three brigades.

PETERSBURG, Feb. 8—There was no fighting to-day, and quiet was once more resumed. The enemy still holds his position on Hatch's run. His lines have been extended, but not advanced.

Gen. Serrill was wounded in the lungs but his wound is not considered mortal.

Col. Hoffman of Va., was killed in the fight Monday.

Our loss will not reach 500. The enemy's is estimated to be treble that number. The dead have all been buried, and the wounded all brought from the field. The enemy are erecting observatories on our right.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.

The Herald's dispatch from Sheridan's headquarters show that though everything remains comparitively quiet in the Shenandoah Valley, the strictest vigilance is still exercised by the national forces there, and the country is frequently patroled by scouting and reconnoitering parties. The regular rebel troops are stationed at different points in the upper part of the Valley, but the guerrillas are prowling around, in some of the counties between the Blue ridge and Alleghany mountains.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota,

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 31st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

Farmers' Department.

Give your Horses Light and Air.

Under this head a correspondent of the Farmer and Gardener gives some advice on the the ventilation of stables, which every owner of a horse should read and profit by. We have never seen the subject more forcibly presented:

"History informs us that a certain Emperor loved a favorite horse so much that he had a golden manger made for him. This extravagance appears unpardonable in the estimation of many, now-a-days, and yet it is more pardonable than the opposite extreme—meanness in the treatment of the horse. In looking at the construction of a very large portion of our horse stables, I am sometimes led to think that the object of builder must have been to see how widely he could depart from every principle of humanity and expediency—humanity in compelling a patient and faithful animal to remain penned up in a close, dark and filthy apartment-expediency in thus sacrificing not only the comfort, but the health, and consequently the usefulness and value of the animal.

"Light is indispensable to the plant and to the man; is it less so to the horse? If it is why? When the tyrants of the old countries sought to inflict their most fearful punishments, next to death confinement in a dark cell was considered the most severe. Is it reasonable that the horse, whose native home is the desert and wilderness, where there is nothing to obstruct the free light of heaven, is it reasonable, I ask, that he should not suffer from confinement generally in our dark and gloomy stables? Is it not a shame, in a land like ours, where glass enough for a moderate-sized window can be had for fifty cents, that a valuable horse should be shut up in a dark stall or stable? let every horse owner's heart, if he has one, answer!

"Is foul air wholesome for plants? Certainly not. Is it wholesome for man? Most emphatically, no! If not wholesome for plants or men, can it be for horses? The answer is as emphatically, no!

"Why, then, are the majority of our stables constructed, without the slightest regard to that most important feature, ventilation? In a thousand of cases, an animal, than which none others love the fresh air better, is doomed to confinement for days and nights at a time, in a stable, the atmosphere of which is so foul that a man would die in it. How many of the diseases to which our horses are subject, may be traced to this unpardonable error. I say unpardonable, for no man possessed of either common sense or humanity, would thus punish one of his best and most faithful friends—the horse.

"A word in conclusion. Farmers! if you would have healthy, lively, serviceable horses give them plenty of light. God will supply it, if you will only furnish the means whereby it can be made to reach your stables.

"Look to the ventilation of your stables, if you would not have prematurely old and worn-out horses. depend upon it, plenty of light, and plenty of fresh air in your stables will save you many a dollar in the course of a lifetime."

Wooden Knobs on Horns.

L. Edwards Todd, author of the Young Farmers' Manual, says that when he was a farmer the horns of all his cows and oxen were knobbed with wooden knobs as large as a man's fist. By this means his cattle would feed at the racks close together without fighting. He gives the following directions for making the knobs and putting them on. They will be useful to many readers of the Rural Annual.

"Procure a few billets of hard tough wood, and have them turned in the shape of an egg, with the small end cut off square. Almost any turner will turn out a lot of them for half a cent each.—They should not be less than three inches in diameter. I always made them four inches in diameter for my cattle. Apple wood or yellow locust will make good ones, by selecting such pieces as will not split easily. Now bore a half-inch hole through each one, lengthways of the wood; and then bore out the small end a little with a borer, that may be obtained at the hardware store. which will make a tapering hole to fit the end of the horns. Bore another hole with a nail-bit or gimlet. through the knobs in a traverse direction, for the purpose of fastening them to the horns. Now put them in some vessel containing linseed oil, and let them become well saturated with oil. This will prevent their checking in the sun, and keep them from shrinking and getting loose. My practice was to make a lot of them at one time, so that they would always be ready for use.

"The way to Put them on the Horns.—If an animal will not stand still without tying, fasten his head firmly to a low post or to a piece of timber, which is fastened in a horizontal direction to two posts, which will be much more convenient than a post.

"Fit the knobs to the horns by whittling, with a sharp knife, either the knobs or both of them. When the knob fits well, thrust in a nail gimlet, and mark the horn on both sides. Then bore the hole both ways, and draw bore the holes a little.

"For fastening on the knobs pieces of wire are much better than nails. Procure some wire of the size of the gimlet, and cut off pieces not quite long enough to reach through the knobs. Grind or file one end to a point so that it will follow the hole well. Put on a knob just as it was marked, and let one man hold a heavy piece of iron or stone on one side of the knob while the wire-pin is driven in. Let the pins be driven in by striking smart blows; instead of little raps, as pounding on the horns is very much like pounding on the forehead, and some cattle are very sensitive about blows about the head. But by holding a heavy weight opposite the hammer, they will feel very little of the concussion.

"In the horns of young animals the [illegible] pith, extends to within [illegible] or so of the tips. Therefore [illegible] holes must be bored very near the small ends, or the gimlet will enter the quick. In the horns of older animals pin holes may be bored two or more inches, if necessary, from the tips without touching the quick."

Garden Seeds—Look Out for Them Now.

Every good gardner should now be looking after the seed that he is to sow next spring. Of the imported varieties, the supply will probably be much less than the demand, and even of home-grown seeds the stock frequently gives out by planting time, as was the case with onion seed last year. It is scarcely necessary to insist upon the importance of good seeds—good not only as being of a good sort or strain, but good as to their germinating power. Old seeds are often a source of great loss and disappointment, and many are sold each year which are only fit to be thrown into the fire. It is especially difficult to procure at a distance from seedsmen of reputation, seeds on which one can rely with confidence. Seedsmen put up their boxes of seeds with a flaming printed label, "Warranted Fresh.' All very true and fair for the first year; but when these boxes of seeds are brought out year after year for many years, it is neither true nor fair. Many kinds of seeds will not vegetate after the first or second year. The only honest way is for the dealer to label his boxes with the year in which they were put up, leaving it to the purchaser to decide for himself whether or no they are "fresh" enough for his use. Test by sprouting a few of each lot.

Harrowing.—The very liberal use of the harrow is one of the principal requisites of successful farming. No other single tool does so much to pulverize the soil as the harrow. A full crop can only be raised on a fine mellow soil.—Seeds planted in soil left coarse and uneven, will vegetate unevenly, grow unequally, ripen at different times, and produce unequal quantities. Many farmers insist that it is a mere notion, without reason, to harrow land four or five times, and roll it once or twice. Not one in five hundred believes in the full utility of such a thorough working of the soil. Coarse lumpy soils expose the seeds and roots of young plants to drouth and to too strong action of the atmosphere.

Harrow sandy and soil land whenever you please. If you work any other soil when very wet, it will not recover from the effects of it during the whole season. Harrow land the first time the same way it was plowed.

The form of a harrow is of no importance, except avoiding the butterfly drag, that seldom works well. The square harrow with thirty teeth is usually preferred Every farmer should have a V drag also.

Corn, potatoes, peas, and other crops that are planted in straight rows, should be harrowed just after coming up, with a V drag, drawn by two horses. The front teeth should be taken out, that the row may pass between the teeth as well as between the horses.

Such a cultivation will do more good than any other single subsequent one. It stirs the whole surface, pulverizing the soil, keeps it mellow and moist, and destroys the weeds, and all at the best possible time for the benefit of the crop. No other form of cultivation is so good for a young crop Try two acres, one in the usual way, and the other by harrowing, as we recommend, when it first comes up, and you will never after neglect harrowing all your hoed crops.—Walden.

How to Hang a Scythe.—A man cannot mow easily, nor mow well, unless his scythe is in good order and properly hung. The first thing in hanging a scythe correctly is to put the nibs or tholes in the right place on the snath.—The right hand nib should be fixed at the highest point in the bow of the snath, and the left hand nib should be about one foot from the other. For boys, ten inches will be about the correct distance.

Now fasten on the scythe, as if the bow of the snath inclines too much forward towards the scythe, it must be adjusted by shaving the snath at the heel until the bow of the snath will stand just right when the scythe and snath are lying on the ground. The nibs should not stand too far forward nor too far back, or too erect. If the left nib stands too far forward, a mower will not be likely to point out good when mowing, and if it stands back too far, he will not point in well. Let the nibs be adjusted until they stand just right.

The edge of the scythe should stand so that a straight line from the snath between the nibs will just touch the cutting edge and the back of the scythe on the wider side A man will mow much easier when the edge stands on a line with the snath between nibs than he will if it hangs either above or below that point. And another thing is, if the edge hangs too low, a scythe is very much more liable to be dulled than if stood higher. If the edge hangs too low, when the grass is heavy, much more strength will be required to mow.—S. Edwards Todd in Country Gentleman.

Disposition of the Soil.—The Valley Farmer well observes that soil has a constant tendency to mellow and improve itself. Winter aids in this respect; so does the heat of summer The particles are the more finely divided by the aid of these two. Water has also an effect. Mechanically and chemically it helps the soil. But the cultivator and plow help more to divide the soil than any other source, or all the sources combined. The plow, the harrow, the cultivator, as well as the spade and the hoe, are the grand implements to divide and mellow your soil—in other words, dissolve it.

Hornless Cattle.—It is the practice of some farmers, to cut off the horns of heifer calves, and sear the wound with a hot iron, to make them fitter companions for sheep. The result is, that the horns either do not grow at all, or but very slightly and irregularly. We are informed also, that cows thus made hornless have repeatedly borne calves upon which no horns ever grew.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent. gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent. per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhoop, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townseud, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:

OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Bradon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. LOVE IN A COTTAGE.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

They may talk of love in a cottage
And bower of the trellised vine—
Of nature bewitchingly simple,
And milk-maids half divine;
They may talk of the pleasure of sleeping
In the shade of a spreading tree,
And a walk in the fields at morning,
By the side of a footstep free!

But give me a sly flirtation,
By the light of a chandelier,
With music to play in the pauses,
And nobody very near;
Or a seat on a silken sofa,
With a glass of pure old wine,
And Mamma too blind to discover
The small white hand in mine!

Your love in a cottage is hungry,
Your vine is a nest of flies—
Your milkmaid shocks the Graces,
And simplicity talks of pies;
You lie down to your shady slumber,
And wake with a bug in your ear;
And your damsel who walks in the morning
Is shod like a mountaineer.

True love is at home on a carpet,
And mightily likes his ease;
And true love has an eye for his dinner,
And starves beneath shady trees;
His wing is the fan of a lady,
His foot's an invisible thing,
And his arrow is tipped with a jewel,
And shot from a silver string.

Select Miscellany.

A GIGANTIC SWINDLE.

The Way Quotas are Filled---Astonishing Revelations.

Col. Baker, the War Department detective, has been in New York for some time, unearthing the stupendous frauds practiced upon the Government by substitute brokers in enlisting men for the army and navy. He has succeeded in bringing to light a system of gigantic fraud and robbery hardly paralleled. The New York Herald gives the following account of the developments:

'Col. Baker has discovered the following mode of procedure on the part of the brokers:

One of the parties who has been arrested, and whose name will presently appear, would go to the chief clerk of the naval rendezvous and procure from him the names of all the men recruited on the preceeding day. Taking the names of these men, who were already on board the receiving ship, the parties engaged in the work would forge duplicate enlistment papers, descriptive rolls, &c., making out a full set of papers, to which would be affixed the signature and seal of office of John Devlin, notary public, making all appear straight and correct. These papers thus prepared were presented on board the North Carolina, showing the men enlisted, a receipt would be given by the officer in charge, which, presented at the rendezvous, called for and was good for $650. Again, there are always to be found in this city numbers of men from other towns looking after substitutes to fill their quota. The brokers employ runners to find these men out, who are waited on and told they can fill their quota, asking how many men they require, and how much their town pays? On being informed, a bargain is struck, and the happy man is informed the men to save their city from a draft shall be forthcoming in the morning. The brokers go to their office, forge the necessary number of enlistment papers complete—each list representing a man—and having attached to it the seal of office and the signature of the notary public, who is represented as having sworn them in—this notary in all cases being John Devlin. Everything, so far as the papers go—looks fair, the broker representing that the recruit has been sent on board ship or on the island. The man pays his thousands of dollars and goes home, congratulating himself upon the quota of his town being filled, the broker pockets the money, and the government receives "nary" a soldier, although the papers carried off by the men who have paid their money, and which are in the hands of the provosts of the different towns, show their quota is filled, and they receive credit for the same.

This is a part of the system of fraud and forgery perpetrated by the brokers in this city and Brooklyn, which Colonel Baker has been able to trace up, procure the proofs, and arrest the scoundrels. To do this he has had an infinite deal of trouble; but with his efficient corps of detectives, he has been able to go to the bottom of the whole matter. The first arrests made was through representing himself as a man from an inland town wishing to raise a large number of men to fill his quota. James Devlin, living at 128 Hudson avenue, Brooklyn, brother of John Devlin, and James Cahill, both substitute brokers, operating through John Devlin called upon Colonel Baker at the Astor House, and inquired if he was the man who had some inland town quota to fill. He said he was, and would give five hundred dollars apiece for the men to fill it. At that time he purchased from them four sets of papers, for which he paid them two thousand dollars in greenbacks. He then told them he wanted one hundred and twenty-six sets more, and if they would furnish the men he would pay five hundred and twenty-five dollars apiece for them. They promised to do so, and would have them the next day.

The next day they came again, but said they had been able to get but ninety-two, yet would procure the remainder in a day. Col. Baker took the papers and gave them a check on the Hanover Bank for sixteen of them, amounting to over $7,000, saying he would go with them to the bank and get the money for the rest. A receipt for the money paid was asked for by Col. Baker, which was signed by the two men—one as Jas. Cole, the other as Jas. Higgins. Immediately upon seeing the signature of Jas. Higgins, which appeared in one of the four sets previously bought as a recruit, enlisted and sworn in by John Devlin, as a notary, as a soldier, Colonel Baker knew he had the right men. He then told them who he was; that he had been after them, and that their game was up, and at once arrested them. As soon as they found they were trapped, they owned up the whole affair, told who were their accomplices, how the work was done, and gave such information as led to the arrest of twenty-seven of the principal actors in the most stupendous fraud ever attempted. They confessed the papers were forgeries in every case.

From this beginning Col. Baker went on and found out that the practice of bounty jumping was carried on to an alarming extent, almost passing belief, and that these brokers had a regularly organized plan by which they would enlist the "jumper," help him to "jump," enlist him against, pocketing the city and county bounty in all cases, carrying the same process on until the man had been put through twenty-seven times.

His own detectives have in several instances allowed themselves to be enlisted by the brokers for the purpose of discovering them and getting proofs against them and once Col. Baker went through the mill himself, was detailed as clerk, and quietly walked away.

Arthur Carron, living at 85 White street, a French Cannadian, and a deserter from the army, has been in the substitute business eighteen months, has amassed a large fortune, but has made the most of it by getting men out of the service after they had enlisted and gone to Governor's Island. Through the connivance of Sergeant Malherne, of the Twentieth New York battery, who is in charge of the rendezvous on the island, and who has power to give passes to the men to visit the city, Carron has been able to get several hundred men out of the service by his own confession. Sergeant Malherne received $50 for every man he passed out, as also did Sergeant Brown. All three of these men have been arrested and are now at the Old Capitol Prison. The proofs of Carron's rascality were procured by two of the detectives enlisting. Col. Baker agreeing to buy them off. They enlisted one day, were sent to the island, and the next day Col. Baker gave Carron $200 to get them off, and by four o'clock in the afternoon they were in New York. As soon as they landed the detectives arrested him and brought him to the Astor House, where he made a confession implicating others.

To show to what extent these forgeries have been committed and bounty jumping practiced, it is only necessary to show the difference between the number of these forged papers and enlistments, and the number that have actually gone into the army and proceeded to the front. Sergeant Malherne calculates that but one in ten reaches the front, while Col. Baker thinks that one in six would be a fair estimate. He is making all efforts to arrive at the exact number, having a system working at present which would not be politic to disclose.

The following items will give a very good idea of the extent of these crimes: John Fay a substitute broker, corner of Hudson avenue and York street, Brooklyn, was at one time a hack-driver in this city, and eight months, ago had not a dollar in the world, and was an ignorant, illiterate Irishman. He went into the substitute business, and when arrested he had a large drinking saloon in operation, and owned over $250,000 worth of real estate in Brooklyn, purchased from the sale of these forged enlistment papers. He had so completely got control of the naval rendezvous, that it was a common remark around there that he run the institution. Policemen were stationed at the entrance, and nobody but Fay or Delvin could get in. Captain Young, an old, crippled officer, was in charge of the office, but it does not appear that he was connizant of the frauds perpetrated under his nose, all his business being conducted in a small back room and consisted of signing the descriptive lists and certificates for the recruit who had no existence except on paper. His chief clerk, whose name is witheld by Col. Baker, received fifty dollars for every name he furnished the brokers, and has made a large sum by his villainy. He is a married man, and feels the greatest anguish for the part he took; says the money was a curse to him, and that he ner had a moment's peace of mind since he took the first dollar. The Assistant Chief Clerk, William Tunier, is also implicated, and was arrested in company with John Devlin, the notary public who prostituted his position and oath of office to such base use.

James Lee, a Tammany Hall substitute broker, was arrested, But a short time ago he was a poor boatman; he now has over forty thousand dollars deposited in the Broadway Bank to his credit. He was once before arrested on the same charge by General Dix, but escaped to Canada, where he remained by the advice of his friends until the affair blew over, when he returned and entered into business again,

A. Dalton and Michael Manahan, two other large brokers, where also arrested. After Arthur Carron's arrest he boasted that, in connivance with the officers on on Governor's Island, he had put Tom Patterson, a notorious rough about the city, through seven times."

Shall Negroes Vote.

A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature proposing to amend the constitution by striking out the word "white" in the clause which limits the right of suffrage to white persons only.

By this measure it is intended to bring unconditionally a class of beings, whose former vassalage has rendered their minds oblivious to any proper sense of the duties of free men and voting citizens, to an exact level, and eventually, perhaps, in direct opposition to the best intellect of the State.

The leading Republican organs seem possessed with the notion that to admit negroes to a social or political equality with the whites is the natural concomitant or sequence of the great principle of liberty of which that party is the the acknowledged standard bearer, and therefore they march wildly into the advocacy of any policy, the opposing of which would seem inconsistent with anti-slavery sentiment.

If the mission of the Republican party is, or has been anything more than the vindication of the right of personal liberty to every human race white or black, we have certainly cast a good many ballots misunderstandingly, and much less would we advocate a war of bullets to elevate or depress certain classes in order to bring all upon an equal social footing. We say social footing because there are but two classes of right, the one absolute he other relative. One's absolute rights are those pertaining to his personal security and personal liberty. With these nature and nature's God had endowed him, but man's encroachments upon his weaker neighbor put at defiance these inate rights. To restore these fundamental rights and for nothing more, save the Union, is the war now prosecuted, No one would lend countenance to a war waged merely for the purpose of allowing negroes to vote, this being a right only recognized by social organizations.

Relative or social rights are such as arise in the organization of bodies politic or corporate, and may, by a majority of such organization be amended or varied without infringing absolute rights. The distinction then, is that the Republican party are only contending for the absolute right of negroes to liberty. This accomplished, and their social demands give rise only to questions of expediency? Surely they are not entitled to demand than the foreigner who seeks to become a member of our body politic. According to the laws of the State and nation he must serve a term of probation and even then cannot attain to the highest position in the gift of the people because, restrained by constitutional enactment. If these restrictions are necessary in regard to our foreign white population, what wonder if it should be deemed policy to exclude entirely a race of men who having no knowledge of self government, are totally unfitted to indicate the policies of a nation. It may be urged that "taxation without representation" is wrong; but we hear of no complaint from thousands of Englishmen who own property in Enland, or Americans who possess property in England, or from persons living in one State and owning property in another that they are not allowed to vote where their property lies. In fact, of the two, the reverse of the proposition, to wit, representation without taxation, we should consider the most objectionable, and this brings us to the question of imposing conditions upon the exercise of the elective franchise.

To amend the constitution by striking out the word "white" gives the negro, without condition, no matter how debased his mental faculties, the same voice in the management of the Government as that exercised by the wisest statesman. It also works an intermingling of the races, and thwarts the policy of colonization. The nearer the black race are brought into social position with the whites, in that ratio are the prospects of separating the races, and it may yet be the design of the Government, If so let the question of negro status remain in statu quo until further development points out more plainly our duty. It is safer to move large bodies slowly; let us not therefore precipitate the State into a position from which it cannot be easily extricated. The unconditional erasure of the word "white" we deem totally inexpedient, and it is doubtful if satisfactory conditions could at present be suggested.—Valley Herald.

Interesting Calculation.

The following from the Christian Observer, is commended to the reader who chews tobacco:

"Allow that a young man who is a confirmed tobacco chewer may live 25 years. In each day there will issue from his mouth half a pint of fluid too nauseatingly disgusting to describe. In twenty-five years this will amount to five hundred and fifty gallons, or more than eight hogsheads of this detestable mass. In the same time, allowing him only two ounces a day, he will roll as a sweet morsel under his tongue half a tun of the hateful weed, which will sicken a dog or kill a horse, forming a heap the size of a hay-stack. Then his rejected quids would form a still larger pile. Now, if such a young man could see eight hogsheads full of abominable filth, destined to pass through his mouth, a wagon load of tobacco, and ten wheelbarrows heaped up with quids, designed for an equally intimate association with his lips, how would the prospect effect him."

Mr. Million Dollars.

The following from the address of Henry Ward Beecher at the recent meeting of the Tract Society in Boston, is characteristic and pertinent:

A man may make a million dollars and be—a man. For a man who has got a million dollars, you know, is a man—in New York, and I suppose, in Boston. Everybody takes his hat off to Mr. Million Dollars. He is conciliated, he is respected: and if there is any prospect that the dew will be shaken off his branches he is invited everywhere. If a man has a million dollars he is a man; but he dies, and his million dollars is cut into four quarters, and four persons carry it off their several ways. Mr. Million Dollars, after an appropriate funeral, is buried, and there he lies; and in a few years nobody talks about him, nobody thinks about him, nobody hears about him. In fifty years the shrewdest man might go and read his gravestone and find "Mr. Million Dollars.' 'Who was he and where is his money?' And it would puzzle an antiquary to tell what those four heirs did with it. I puzzled them after a few years to tell where it had gone to. He made his money; it gave him influence; he distributed it among his heirs, yes, he distributed it, and they squandered it; he died, and went to dust, and that was the last of him, so far as this world is concerned; I don't know what became of him beyond.

But suppose that instead of that he had made himself his own executor, and had put fifty thousand dollars behind a printing press and said, 'As long as interest lasts on that fifty thousand dollars, work, press, work!' Suppose he had taken some treatise written for liberty, based upon the Bible, and carrying out the vital power of the gospel, and had taken another fifty thousand dollars and put it into the hands of the Tract Society, saying, 'I consecrate to the printing of that book this fifty thousand dollars; work with that money as long as it can bear interest.' Suppose he had taken five hundred thousand dollars and appointed them his sentinel—stationing fifty thousand dollars there, and there, and there—they would go on working until the last trump sounds; and when a hundred years had passed over his grave his name, through that society, would still be fresh, and his influence potent for good. Every tract would bear his name upon its imprint, and a million tombstones could not make it so illustrious.

How to Prevent a Divorce.

When the senior Jonathan Trumbull was Governor of Connecticut, a gentleman called at his house requesting to see his Excellency in private. Accordingly he was shown into his sanctum sanctorum; and the Governor came forward to meet Squire W., saying, 'Good morning, sir; I am glad to see you.' Squire W. returned the salutation, adding as he did so, 'I have called upon a very unpleasant errand, sir, and want your advice. My wife and I do not live happily together, and I am thinking of getting a divorce. What do you advise, sir?"

The Governor sat a few moments in deep thought, then turning to Squire W., said: 'How did you treat Mrs. W when you were courting her? and how did you feel towards her at the time of your marriage?' Squire W. replied, 'I treated her as kindly as I could, for I loved her dearly at that time.' 'Well, sir,' said the Governor, "go home and court her now just as you did then, and love her as when you married her. Do this in the fear of God for one year, and then tell me the result." The Governor then said, 'Let us pray.' They bowed in prayer and separated, When a year had passed away, Squire W. called agoin to see the Governor, and grasping his hand, said: 'I have called, sir to thank you for the good advice you gave me, and to tell you that my wife and I are as happy as when first we were married. I cannot be grateful enough for your good counsel.' 'I am glad to hear it, Mr. W., and hope that you will continue to court your wife as long as you live.' The result was that Squire W. and his wife lived happily together to the end of life. Let those who are thinking of separation in these days go and do likewise.

"Little acts of kindness,
Little deeds of love,
Make this world an Eden,
Like to that above."

FRIENDSHIP FOR LOCAL PAPERS.—The following good thing we copy from the Yonkers, (N. Y.) Gazette, read 'Many persons profess an anxiety to support their county paper in these high price times. It can be done in this way, as expressed by a cotemporary: Subscribe and pay for it. Send your printing to this office. Help to make your paper interesting by sending items of local interest to the reader. Do not expect the editor to notice your business for nothing. Come forward promptly and pay the bills due this office. If any of our readers consider these suggestions personal, we advise them to ease their conscience at once.'

AFFLICTION.—Though a Christian may haae pass through all other departments in the school of probation for Heaven, yet if he has not been exercised in the department of affliction, his education can scarcely be considered as complete training for the society of those above, 'who have come out of great tribulation.'

'Mister, I say, I suppose you don't know of nobody who dont want to hire nobody to do nothing, don't you?' The answer was, 'Yes, I don't-'

Tom Smith and his Western Friends.

All the landlords of Boston remember Tom Smith for he was a genius, and was never known to pay a hotel bill, if it was possible to avoid it, and the reason which he gave for declining to pay his board bill was a good one—he had no money.

One morning Tom was seated in the bar room of a hotel, wondering how he was to obtain a dinner, and thinking what excuse he should offer the landlord. Then he glanced at his clothes. His coat had been renovated by the scourer, his hat had been ironed by a good natured hatter, his dickey was passable, and no gentleman would think of examining the extremities of his covering or pry into the shifts he had been put to for a shirt.

Near Tom was a Western man, who looked rich, good natured and vulnerable. So Tom approached him in a very bland and friendly manner, and remarked:

'Excuse me sir, but you look so like an old friend of mine, Charlie Scott, who resided for years in Chicago, that I can't help addressing you.'

'I am from Chicago, sir,' answered the stranger courteously, 'but not the person you speak of; I know him, however, and am glad to encounter a friend of his.'

'That's it,' said Tom to himself, 'got him just as easy as rolling off a log.'

An animated conversation ensued, which ended by Tom being asked to dine, and when the gong proclaimed the table spread, in walked Tom and the stranger, arm in arm. He called the waiters with an air of ease, passed the stranger's wine with friendly freedom, laughed musically, jested with spirit, used his napkin with grace, and, in short, completely captivated the Western man.

At length the indignant landlord noticed Tom, and forthwith sent a servant in to order him from the table. Tom had come it' over him for so many odd dinners, without a shadow of prospect for pay, that he could stand it no longer The servant approached, whispered in his ear, and stepped aside to give him a chance to move. Tom clutched the wine bottle with the intention of hurling it at his head, but altered his purpose, and poured out a glass of wine, drank it and looked daggers at the servant, and in a moment more smiled upon his new friend.

'Would you believe,' Tom said to the Westerner, 'that while absent from the city for a few days, a rival shipping firm has whispered the possibility of our failure, and this rascally landlord, having heard of the calumny, has insulted me at the table by sending a servant to demand the trifling sum I owe him.

The gentleman from Chicago was highly indignant.

'Here,' he said, 'take my pocket-book, and make use of it.'

'You are very kind,' said Tom, 'I'll borrow this thousand dollar bill for a moment—I know the rascal can't change it.'

With an air of offended dignity, Tom approached the office of the hotel. The landlord frowning with anger, stood at the desk.

'I never dreamed of such an insult from you sir, at such a time too—just as my uncle in the West has expired—and his agent with me to deliver up the portion bequeathed to me—it is—it—sir, I cannot express in language my feelings. Take out of that the paltry sum I owe you'—throwing down the thousand dollar bill—'and henceforth I will never enter your door. Just at a time, too,' he further added, 'when I had intended to make your house my home, and endeavor to make some return for your forbearance. It is too much; my feelings are lacerated.'

Alas! for the landlord's sagacity.—He was made a dupe of, and with a dozen apologies begged Tom's pardon, refused to change the bill. Tom was mollified He made up with the landlord, returned the bill to the Western farmer, and continued to patronize the hotel for six months, at the end of which time he was kicked into the street, for the landlord found that he had been sold, and that Tom was as poor as ever.

Tom is still alive, and manages to pick up a dinner once in a while but he is growing seedy fast, and has left the first class hotels, much to the delight of the landlords.

"SETTLING" AN ACCOUNT.

To settle coffee with an egg is an easy matter; but it is not exactly so easy to settle an old account—a truth which will be found illustrated in the following conversation between an honest miner, named Riley, upon the north fork of the Salmon river, in California, and one Mike Donnelly, a trader, to whom, it seems, Riley was indebted some forty dollars for provisions. Said D. to R.—

'You ought to pay me this little bill, for you know I trusted you when no other trader on the river would. Come, now, I'll throw off half, if you'll pay the rest,'

'Well, Mike,' said Riley, 'I'll be hanged if I'll allow you to be more liberal than I am. If you throw off one half, I'll throw off the other!'

But this proof of liberality did not satisfy Mike, and he replied, as might be expected—

'But that don't settle my account.

'Then break an egg into it!' said Riley, and coolly walked off.

A lady who would please herself in marrying was warned that her intended, althoug a good sort of a man, was very singular. 'Well,' replied the lady, "if he is very much unlike other men he is much more likely to be a good husband.'

Cory O'Lanus on Family Affairs.

The Brooklyn Eagle has a correspondent who knows a thing or two. Hear him:

It is a good thing for a man to pay attention to his family.

Provided he has one.

Married men generally have. So have I.

It is a natural consequence of getting maaried.

Families, like everything else, are more expensive than they used to be.

Shoes and clothes cost a sight now a days, and children have mostly good appetites.

Mine have.

Boys will be boys. They can't help it. They were born so. It is their destiny to tear their trowsers and wear out two pairs of boots per month; keeping their blessed ma constantly employed like a besieged garrison, repairing breeches, and their unfortunate pa paying out currency, under strong conviction that there is nothing like leather—to wear out.

I tried copper toed boots on my heir. The copper wore well, and I have an idea copper boots would be a good idea, but I couldn't have a metalic shoemaker to carry it out.

Mrs. O'L, also became attached to copper, and thought it would be an improvement and save sewing if boy's pantaloons were like ships and tea kettles copper-bottomed. The suggestion was A No. 1, but we havn't tried it yet.

Copper so ran in my head at the time that O'Pake called me a copperhead.

This was the origin of the term.

Mrs. O'L is a managing woman.—She mends trousers for our son, Alexander Themistocles, out of mine, when I've done with them. He can get through three pair to my one, ordinarily, and I am obliged to wear out my clothes faster than I used to, in order to keep him supplied.

I once suggested that it might be within the resources of art and industry to make him a pair out of new material.

Mrs. O'L said positively that it could not be done. It would ruin us.

She concluded it was cheaper to cut up a pair I had paid twelve dollars for.

I subsequently found upon inquiry that new cloth for that purpose could have been bought for two dollars.

I ventured to tell Mrs. O'L, expecting a triumph of male foresight over female lack of judgment.

She gave me a look of scorn, as she wanted to know if I had asked the price of "trimmings."

Trimmings were too much for me.

I have been afraid of trimmings ever since.

Trimmings, I suppose means buttons and things.

In addition to clothes the scion of our house runs up other expenses.

But what is the expense compared with the joy a father feels, when after a day's laborious exercise at the office wrestling with a steel pen, he returns to his domestic retreat, and is met at the gate by a smiling cherubim, who, in tones that go to his fond parent's heart, and makes him forget his troubles, exclaimed, 'Hello, pa, give me a penny.'

Your hand instinctively goes to the seat of your affections, your pocket, and draws forth the coveted coin, which is promptly invested in molasses candy.

A Clincher.

Theodore Tilton in a recent lecture at St. Louis narrated the following anecdote:

It is not many miles from this place that my ancient friend Wendell Phillips, (whom I trust you may yet greet upon this platform) [applause] was riding in the cars, when there came on board the train a large man—a minister—one of those built after the model of a New York alderman; I don't know whether you have the same pattern of men among you or not; a man whom Rev. Dr. [illegible] describes as "carrying everything before him." He went to the conductor and said in a loud voice:

'I understand that Wendell Phillips, the great abolitionist is on this train.'

Yes,' was the reply, 'that's the gentleman, asleep there in the corner.'

Whereupon the pompous gentleman walked to Mr. Phillips, and laying his hand heavily upon his shoulder, said

'Sir, I understand you are Wendell Phillips?'

'Yes.'

'Well, I have been on the point of writing you a letter.'

'Should have been glad to receive it.'

'No you wouldn't; I meant to excoriate you.'

'Don't doubt I deserve it.'

'Will you tell me what is your object in life.'

'To oppose slavery.'

'Then why don't you go South where the slaves are.'

'Worth thinking about.' Then after a pause: 'I notice by your white cravat that you are a preacher. Will you tell me what is your object in life?'

'Sir, it is to save souls from hell.'

'Do you propose to go there to save them?'

We find in the Burlington Hawkeye the following toast, given at a Printer's re-union in that city, by J. F. Abrahams:

PRINTERS.—Of all the types of mankind, none have so many sorts among them as the printer.

Like an Irish gentleman, he is no where found without his stick.

Like an Esquimaux—he is partial to fat.

Like a pretty girl at a quilting, he is bound to take, and don't mind "setting up."

Like the Scotch (terrier) he is h—l on rats.

He forms his impressions with lightning dispatch, has dealings with the devil, and is a "big thing" just at this period.

The Copperhead Boston Courier complaining of national taxes, says poetically:

"They would, if they could, stick a stamp on your soul."

To which the Springfield Republican aptly replies:

'True, 'if we could,' but lack of space would cramp:
It isn't big enough to hold a stamp!"

TAX TITLES.

We published an item a few weeks ago that the Supreme Court had decided the tax law of 1859, unconstitutional. We now understand that they have made no such decision, and that the decision of the old Court sustaining the law is still good.

MINNESOTA IN THE CABINET.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent says :

The refusal of Gov. Morgan to accept the Treasury portfolio has caused much speculation here to-night as to who Mr. Fessenden's successor will be. Many of the New Yorkers are urging Mr. A. A. Low, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce, for the position. Public opinion, however, is generally concentrated on Mr. McCulloch, the present Comptroller of the currency, as the probable successful candidate, his superior fitness for the office being fully conceded. In case of his appointment Mr. Usher will necessarily retire from the Cabinet, and Senator Wilkinson, of Minnesota, will probably be assigned to the Interior Department.

The Press says the re-examination of exempted men at Faribault, showed that about one-third were improperly stricken from the rolls. We are informed that the reports of the officers making the examination, will soon be made public.

IN another column we publish the report of the new examining Board, appointed by Col. Averill. We have not time this week to express our views on this matter but shall do so soon.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

From the Saint Peter Tribune we learn that on Saturday the 18th inst., the quiet of our neighboring town Cleveland in LeSueur Co. was somewhat disturbed by a shooting affray, the particulars of which we learn to be about as follows : Mr. Stanly, a refugee Southerner, who, several months ago escaped to the North, had been making his home with his brother at Cleveland, where he became acquainted with Mrs. Chamberlain—a daughter of the Rev. M. Crandall—a lady in good standing, whose husband was in the army. It would seem, from what we can learn, that it was the design of this man to ruin Mrs. C. from the first. To make a long story short, it is sufficient to say that he persisted in his efforts until her humiliation and ruin had been accomplished. After hearing of the death of her husband in the late battle at Nashville, Mrs C., with a desire to dispose of herself in such a manner as would inflict the least possible grief upon her aged and highly respected parents, concluded to leave home, and perhaps effect some tragic end of her life. Accordingly she left the home of her parents a short time since, with the man who had already destroyed all her earthly prospects knowing that he alone knew, as yet, the ruin and disgrace that had been forced upon her.

With the intention of returning no more to her parental home she departed, leaving a note on the table to that effect. The criminal and the subject of his wicked devices, were soon pursued by the heart stricken father, overtaken at Henderson, and the daughter taken back to Cleveland. Stanley followed, and again made his presence obnoxious to Mrs. C., when, on Saturday morning, she shot him with a revolver, inflicting a severe though not dangerous wound upon the man who had so utterly destroyed the promised joys of earthly existence.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

Saturday, the 25th day of March next, is the day fixed by law for holding the annual School Meetings in the several school districts in this State. Upon this day more than five thousand men in the State of Minnesota, are to be elected to office. To these officers the interests of our Schools and school houses are to be entrusted upon which depends the intelligence of the rising generation. What an important trust ! what momentous duties ! what weighty responsibilities. Who are the men for the task ? Let the people meditate and answer. Perhaps no election was ever held in the State of more importance. Never has there been a time when the education of our children was as necessary as at the present ; and our future welfare declares that these elections must not be held without proper thought and suitable action. Citizens of Blue Earth county, our schools are creeping, they rise and attempt to walk, but like the tender infant they fall. Shall we aid them? Shall we nurse them and give them strength to walk or shall we let them creep on. These questions come with as much force as the question, shall I employ a physician and save the life of my child or shall I let it die.

The standard of our schools must be raised ; but one man can do but little in this direction without the co-operation of the people, and particularly the school district officers. The more efficient these officers are, the more effective will be the co operation. It is not difficult to find men who feel an interest in schools, but to find men whose feelings will prompt them to action, to work faithfully, diligently, continually and effectually, is a difficult thing. There are men, however, in every district in the county who, if entrusted with the responsibilities, will labor for the advancement of schools. These men should be selected to manage the affairs of our school districts for the coming year. A little reflection will make it evident to every one that very much depends upon the qualifications of the district officers. An earnest appeal is made to every voter to lay aside his business upon that day, and see that good men are elected.

The district clerks are required to give notice of these elections, to personally solicit attendance ; to return the number of voters present, with the names of the officers elected, to this office, and when the records are fully made let it show that the people at home are—like our soldiers in the field—at their posts.

A little effort on the part of each individual will soon place Blue Earth county at the head of the list of counties in educational interest. Then will cluster around us more fully the advantages of an educated community.

Sixty Thousand Persons Drowned in India.

Later advices reveal the full extent of the disaster inflicted by the terrible cyclone in India. A Calcutta letter to to the London Times, just received, says :

I see that the news of 12,000 persons having been lost in the cyclone was received with incredulity in England. The estimate was wide of the truth, but only because it vastly underrated the calamity. As every one who knows this country will readily conceive, there is no possibility of ascertaining precisely the loss of life, because hundreds might be swept away and leave no trace behind. But we are not without data for arriving at a conclusion, and it has now been calculated that there cannot be fewer than 60,000 persons drowned or otherwise killed by that fearful storm. In the island of Sangor alone, before the cyclone, there were 8,200 persons. There are now about 1,200—nor have any left it to go elsewhere. 7,000 were carried clean away by the storm wave.

All up the river the population has been swept off, if not in the same proportion, yet in very large numbers. As we all anticipated, disease is raging everywhere—cholera, fever and small pox. The epidemic fever, which I have mentioned in previous letters this year, is depopulating whole districts. A magistrate told me the other day that he had been riding through a village in which there was hardly a grown up person left. They had died without hope of assistance, without medicine, without food—for the crops are rotting on the ground in many parts, where the salt water rushed in. The Bengalese are in a deplorable plight, and the zemindars increase the general misery by turning the ryots out of their huts because they are behindhand with their rents.

The native feels himself ill, wraps himself in his blanket, says it is fate, and so perishes. In this enormous population—let it be remembered that here in in Bengal alone we have at least 45,000,000 of people—the few Europeans can only do good here and there, and yet it is sorely by Europeans that good is being done. The rich native will not help his countrymen. God gave him his money, and God intended him to keep it. That is pretty much his mode of reasoning.

Troubles of the Emperor Maxmilian.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.

Further details received by the last arrival from Vera Cruz, show that fighting between Jurarezists and Imperialists is actively carried on in the interior of the country.

The friends of former state that Gen Patteria has shot Francisco Voga, the head of Imperialist movement in that vicinity. The Jurarezists are approaching Elloral. Juarez guerrillas intend putting to death every French soldier they may catch, on the plea that every one fighting for or holding office under Maximilian, is a traitor to Mexican liberties. Many other movements in the interior are named which show inactivity of the national party. The campaign at Oaxaca, however, gives rise to undisguised anxiety. Oaxaca is now defended by Gen. Direz, while Gen. Razine in person is leading an expedition against it, but his vanguard had been defeated. It is said the deficit in the Treasury of the Imperial Government of Mexico is $20,000,000 annually. The Emperor has a personal allowance, of $200,000. The Pope's Encyclonical letter has not been circulated in Mexico, as the Government has not yet given its consent to such circulation. The new order of knighthood, the "Mexican Eagle," is to be established by Maximilian.

First Enrollment District.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF INVESTIGATION.

A LARGE NUMBER OF EXEMPTIONS DISAPPROVED.

Capt. Wm. H. Rossell and Surgeon Wheelock, who went to Faribault, pursuant to an order of Col. Averill, A. A. P. M. G. to investigate the late action of the Board of Enrollment of the First District, have submitted the following reports of the result of their investigation:

REPORT OF SURGEON WHEELOCK.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 20th, 1865.

Col. J. T. Averill, A, A P. M. General:

SIR—In compliance with your orders to proceed to Faribault on the 17th and 18th inst., to re-examine enrolled men holding certificates of exemption received from the Board of Enrollment convened at that place on a previous day, I very respectfully report that I have performed that duty, and of this class re-examined 153 men.

Adopting as my guide a strict construction of Par. 85. Revised Reg. 1864, Bureau Pro. Mar. Gen. Department, I disapprove of 48 exemptions included in that number, leaving 105 approved. Of the whole number disapproved there were about six cases of which, in my opinion, different surgeons might reasonably differ in the construction of the Regulations as applicable to their cases. For the remainder I cannot appreciate the allowance of a broader discretion as permitted under the regulations. Of those six cases which in my opinion might justify the exercise of a sound discretion, there were three exempted for "Loss of Teeth" two for "General Disability," one for "Varicose Veins."

In all these cases the causes of exemption given could not be justified by the latter of the regulations. But a discretion alone could be exercised as to their general physical fitness for the service.

In my opinion (with one exception) their general physical condition and capacity was fully up to the medium standard. The exceptional case was that of a clergyman, whose habits of life it would appear had been unfavorable to a proper development of the muscular powers and forces of the system.

Of the remaining 42 cases a small proportion of them were exempted for disease of the heart, under Sec. 9, Par. 85. They did not in any instance manifest a condition of "seriously impaired health" or to my comprehension any of the physical signs denoting organic disease of the heart.

Of those exempted for "loss of teeth" and which comprised a large class, none come within the scope of Sec. 20, authorizing exemptions. Quite a number in this class who possessed all their front entire, and none, with some three or four exceptions, but possessed the ability in good degree, to properly masticate their food. The general condition of the system showed no fault in this particular.

"Varicose Veins" constituted a numerous class of exemptions under Sec. 35. In all of these cases I was unable to discover in any one "chronic swellings or ulcerations" and in my opinion there was in no case a condition of the veins, which would render it probable they would ever end in "chronic swellings or ulcerations" in the ordinary service to which the soldier is subject.

Exemptions for "Varicocele" and made under Sec. 29, were but few in number and were all simple and unconnected with organic disease of other parts.

Of "Fistula in ano" under Sec. 24, there was but one exemption. A careful examination of this case did not reveal at this time the presence of a Fistula, and the condition of the parts did not indicate that any had existed, at least, of recent date.

A few exemptions were made for injuries to the limbs from former fractures (Sec. 32) In all a perfect unison had taken place, leaving no condition of the parts which would prevent the man from marching, or otherwise unfit him for military service.

"Tumor upon the wrist"—this was made a cause of exemption under section 31 in one case. This was a simple encysted tumor from one-half to three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and situated in the course of the extensor tendons of the hand, on the back of the wrist. In my opinion it could not in any manner seriously impair the use of the hand. This was not claimed by the man himself.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
J. D. WHEELOCK.
Assistant Surgeon 2d Dist. Minn.

REPORT OF CAPT. ROSSELL.

OFFICE OF U. S. MUST'G, AND DISBURSING OFFICE,
ST. PAUL, MINN. Feb. 20, 1865.

Acting Assistant Provost Marshal General, St. Paul, Minnesota :

COLONEL : I have the honor to report that in obedience to Special Order No. 6, from your office dated Feb. 15, 1865, I proceeded to Faribault, Rice county, Minnesota, accompanied by Surgeon J. D. Wheelock, to superintend the session of the Board of Enrollment ordered to assemble at that place on the 7th inst., by Special Order No. 5, from your office, dated February 11, 1865.

Upon consultation with Capt. Charles H. See, Provost Marshal 1st district of Minnesota, I was informed that from one hundred and fifty to one hundred and sixty exemptions had been given to parties residing in sub-Districts named in Special Order No. 5, from your office, at the former meeting of the Board at Faribault.

Herewith please find a list of names of the persons examined, who had been exempted by the Board when in session at Faribault about the first of the present month by which it will be seen that one hundred and fifty-six persons were examined, forty eight of whom were not exempted by Surgeon Wheelock.

A complete description of those not exempted is also herewith submitted.

The examinations made by Surgeon Wheelock were thorough in every respect, and so far as I am able to judge, every man not exempted by him was not entitled to exemption under a strict construction of the Revised Regulations for the government of the Bureau of Provost Marshal General of the United States, approved September 1st 1864.

The principal cause of the difference between the decisions of Surgeon Wheelock and those of the former Surgeon of the Board of Enrollment of the First District of Minnesota, Surgeon W. W. Mayo, appears to have been owing to the fact that Surgeon Mayo did not conform to the regulations above referred to, particularly as regards sections nine, twenty, twenty-nine and thirty-five of paragraph eighty-five, which refer respectively to "permanent physical disability," "loss of teeth," "varicocele," and "varicose veins.

"There were few cases presented where persons had been exempted by Surgeon Mayo for disease of the heart or lungs, that were not exempted by Surgeon Wheelock. Of these cases I am not able to form an opinion. A report will be made to you of these cases by Surgeon Wheelock.

There were also two cases of fracture, one of the arm, and one of the leg. These had also been exempted by Surgeon Mayo, but were not exempted by Surgeon Wheelock. In these cases perfect union had taken place between the bones, and did not appear to impair the usefulness of the limb. Also one case exempted by Surgeon Mayor for 'Fistula in Ano,' which Surgeon Wheelock failed to discover."

I found the idea prevailing among some of the citizens of Rice county, that Surgeon Mayo had received bribes from persons who had been exempted, either personally, or through physicians and others who had opened offices for the purpose of furnishing certificates of disability for persons seeking exemption from the draft. The statement that through their influence with the members of the Board exemption could be procured on their certificates seems to have been industriously circulated by this class of persons. Other citizens averred their belief in the perfect integrity of the Board.

In several instances, upon inquiry of persons examined, I learned that Surgeon Mayo had made private examinations of their cases, for which he charged the sum of five dollars each. I was also informed by these same persons, that before they obtained certificates of exemption they were examined in the presence of the Board. The acknowledgment of Surgeon Mayo on this point, and the evidence already procured by your special agents and deputies, seemed to render it unnecessary for me to procure any affidavits relating thereto. I made a full and free inquiry of the citizens of Rice county, whom I met, but could find nothing which in any way implicated the members of the Board in any improper transactions other than reception of fees for private examinations by Surgeon Mayo, as above mentioned.

In my opinion if Captain See is culpable, it is for neglecting to publicly warn the people of the impositions being practiced by the persons who were preying upon their credulity, and in failing to arrest or disperse the parties themselves. Captain See should also, as presiding officer of the Board, have overridden the decisions of Surgeon Mayo, in those cases where it was plainly visible that he had not complied with the instructions governing the Provost Marshal's Department.

I also herewith submit forty five of the forty eight certificates of exemption which had been issued by the Board of Enrollment, and which were not approved by Surgeon Wheelock. The remaining three I was unable to obtain, the parties holding them having left them at their homes. These certificates show no length of time for which the holder was exempted. They are in form of a certificate of exemption for a drafted person on account of disability, with alterations made to suit the purpose for which they were used.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,
(Signed) W. H. ROSSELL,
Captain U. S. A., Mustering and Disbursing Officer.

France Considering Mexican and American Affairs.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.

Foreign mails had the following :

The Nord says there was a meeting of the Privy Council on the 4th, in Paris, and we are informed that the affairs of America and the connection they may have with the Mexican Empire formed the principal object of the meeting. France is not without some uneasiness as to the attitude the United States may assume toward the Empire when the conclusion of the war has placed at the disposal of the Republic a large and tried army, with numerous and skilled officers, and a four years struggle has changed a State hitherto exclusively devoted to commercial and maritime interests into a military State, disposing of immense forces.

The recent resolution of the Washington Senate, must have assisted in increasing this uneasiness ; nevertheless, according to our correspondent, the discussion in which the Privy Council was engaged, ended in this resolution, that for the moment it would be wrong to give way to exaggerated fears, and that in the face of the pacific and conciliatory assurances, which American diplomacy continues to give, the best course to adopt is to prudently abstain from all movements without however indulging in a false security.

Information from the Army of the Potomac as late as the 20th reports all quiet. Deserters are constantly coming in and are more numerous than for a long time. They have arrived over 70 a day for the past week, among them several officers. The utmost despondency prevails through their ranks since the late fight, and they seem determined to keep the field no longer as they claim they can never gain their independence and see no reason why they should remain and be all killed.

They also say that desertion is so general to the rear of their own lines that Lee has issued an order to arrest every man found half a mile away from his camp or post. One man said his company was thirty strong a week ago but that fifteen had disapeared since, ten to the United States and five to their homes.

The rebels came in with flags of truce on Saturday, asking for the bodies of some rebel officers killed at the late battle of Hatcher's Run. Their request was finally granted and the bodies conveyed to their lines.

LATE WAR NEWS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.

The steamship Fulton, from Port Royal, 17th, and Charleston 18th, arrived this morning.

Charleston was evacuated by the enemy on the night of the 17th, leaving the several fortifications uninjured, besides 200 guns, which they spiked.

The evacuation was first discovered at Fort Moultrie in the morning at ten o'clock. Part of the troops stationed at James Island crossed over in boats and took possession of the city without opposition.

The upper part of the city is on fire.

Previous to the enemy evacuating, they fired the upper part of the city, by which six thousand bales of cotton were burned, and it is supposed that before the fire can be subdued, two-thirds of the city will be destroyed.

A fearful explosion occurred in the Wilmington depot—cause unknown—by which several hundred citizens lost their lives.

This morning Gen. Schemmelfanning landed his forces and occupied the city and its defenses. The formidable earth works on James Island are found abandoned and the guns spiked. At ten o'clock this morning a detachment was sent to take possession of Fort Sumpter and raise the flag which Gen. Anderson hauled down nearly four years ago. At three o'clock the flag was raised amidst deafening cheers.

The World prints the following rumors in circulation :

Telegrams from Washington to private parties in this city, state that Lee had sent 30,000 men to reinforce Beauregard, and enable him to check the advance of Sherman. That Grant is already aware of this fact, and that the Army of the Potomac is once more in motion, and that Gen. Sheridan is advancing in heavy force, with Gordonsville or Lynchburg as the objective points.

If it is true that Lee has moved troops south it is because he considers the possession of North and South Carolina of far more important than even the possession of Richmond and the evacuation of Virginia.

It was also positively asserted yesterday that Wilmington was in our possession, having been evacuated by the rebels.

New York, Feb 21.

The Richmond Examiner of the 18th says the little army under Beauregard is yet safe and may lead Sherman such advance as Greene did Cornwallis over the same rivers and swamps. If the Federal army cannot reach the Danville road, then it may as well have staid at Atlanta There is reason to believe Beauregard is acting by design, and that Sherman is near the end of his triumph.

Some one has taken the trouble to calculate what it costs to support all the dogs in the world, and has concluded that the expense amounts to about thirty million dollars annually.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN !

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul.

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

AFFORD EVERY FACILITY TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota,

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 31st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D.C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

Official Paper of the County

Tribute to Lieut. J. R. Roberts.—At a meeting of the officers of the 9th Minnesota Infantry, convened at their camp at Eastport, Tennessee, January 21st, 1865, for the purpose of expressing their feelings in regard to the death of their late brother officer, Lieut. John R. Roberts, of Co., E, Col. Marsh was appointed Chairman, and Lieut. Thomas Van Etten, Secretary.

On motion, Major H. B. Strait, Capt. B. P. Shuler, and Lieut. A. J. McMillan, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions.

The committee retired, and in due time, presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adoopted by the meeting:

Whereas, Intelligence has been received of the death of Lieut. John R. Roberts, of Company E., 9th Minn Infantry, who was severely wounded in the battle of the 16th Dec. 1864, near Nashville Tenn., and died in Cumberland Hospital at Nashville, January 4th, 1865.—therefore

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss of Lieut. Roberts. He was greatly esteemed for his moral worth, quiet demeanor, promptness and efficiency as an officer. He was ever faithful in the discharge of his duty and by his integrity and Christian deportment, commended himself to all. He was wounded while leading his company in the charge of the 16th ult. upon the enemy's works near Nashville. We trusted he would soon be able to join his Regiment, but an inscrutable Providence has otherwise ordered.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to his afflicted family and friends, our heartfelt sympathies. May the consolation of Divine Grace be granted to them in the day of their severe bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be forwarded to the family of the deceased and also for publication in the Mankato and St. Paul papers.

THOMAS VAN ETTEN,
1st Lt. 9th Minn. Inf't'y,
Secretary.

The Thaw.—The excellent sleighing we were favored with last week left us very suddenly. On Monday it commenced to rain, and continued until Tuesday morning. The weather cleared up then and what little snow was left, soon melted away. The sloughs on the prairies were filled with water, and all the small streams were overflowing. The Watonwan, at Garden City, raised three feet during Tuesday night, and on Wednesday the Blue Earth, at this place was impassable.

In town, the water settled in the low ground between Second and Third streets, and extended from Walnut down to Cherry streets. In many places it was from two to three feet deep, and several families were completely cut off from land. The Messrs. Boegens were obliged to stop sawing at their mill on account of the depth of water around it. We heard of several persons who went away from home in the morning, and returning at night found their dwellings surrounded, and were obliged to put up at a neighbor's.

The St. Paul stage arrived at the usual time but the Eastern stage for Tuesday did not get in until six o'clock Wednesday morning. The Blue Earth Stage left here Wednesday morning, but could not cross the river, and so returned. On Thursday, Mr. Mason placed a team between Garden City and LeHillier, and crossed the mail in a skiff, and so carried the mail through, losing only half a trip. He deserves credit for his energy in endeavoring to keep up mail communication. This is the first time he has lost even half a trip since he has owned the route.

The Minnesota has raised about two feet, preventing further work in removing the snags, but has since fallen.

Thieving.—Quite early on Thursday morning a boy attempted to break into Leech's stone building with a view to get into the room where the donation was held the night previous, and where the provisions and crockery was left. He succeeded in breaking the lock of the back door by pounding it with a stone, but two heavy spikes that were driven into the sill he could not remove. On being discovered, he said he had some things in the room he wished to get, but a moment after fled. Lodgings with Sheriff Middlebrook will do such chaps good.

Good Templars.—A lodge of Good Templars was organized at Garden City last Friday night. Thirty five members joined the first evening. J. M. Thompson, was elected W. C. T; Mrs. Torrey, W. V. T; S. C. Wellcome, W. S. Who the other officers were we did not learn, (send down the list, Mr. Secretary.)

Elder Hathaway, of Shelbyville, delivered a temperance lecture there a short time since, and is going to make a clean sweep of the valley, and organize a lodge in every town. Good. We are glad to hear it. We hope the elder will come down this way.

Robbery.—The barn of D. R Brooks was broken into last Friday night, and a silver-mounted single harness and a saddle stolen. Mr. Brooks traced the thief, by his footsteps, from the barn to the road, and saw that they went in the direction of St. Peter, but could distinguish them no farther. The harness and saddle were worth seventy-five dollars.

Protracted Meeting.—A lively interest is manifest in the meetings at Shelbyville, under the pastorship of Rev. Mr. Chubbuck. Last Thursday evening over twenty persons were forward for prayers, and quite a number have been soundly converted. May they long continue.

Blue Earth Co. Agricultural Society.—The officers of the above named Society are requested to meet at the office of Dr. W. W. Clark, in Mankato, on Monday the 6th day of March next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to make arrangements for the coming annual Fair.

The business is important and it is hoped all have interest enough in the society to be present.

J. M. THOMPSON, Sec'y.
Garden City, Feb. 22, 1865.

Signor Demaray's closing Soiree came off at City Hall last Friday evening, and was well attended. During the evening some evil disposed person sprinkled the floor with red pepper, which greatly annoyed the dancers. The day is not far distant when such lawlessness will be properly punished.

A Liberal Donation.—The citizens of Shelbyville recently gave a donation to Rev. S. A. Chubbuck, which amounted to over one hundred and thirty dollars. A liberal hearted people are they, and they appreciate the services of their minister.

The Donation.—The donation visit paid to Rev. Mr. Craven, last Wednesday evening, was very successful. Over one hundred persons were present, and the receipts we understand, will be over $100. Several speeches were made, and the vocal and instrumental music was very good.

Personal.—Maj. E. P. Evans, Commissioner, &c., &c., started yesterday morning for Washington. Rumor hath it that he is going to get some "posish," but we don't believe it, for he's not an ambitious man, and is already loaded down with titles.

Charlie Eaton, U. S. Marshal, has been stopping in town for a few days past, greatly to the wonderment of the curious minded. His advent has made some folks "shakey in the knees." We are a nervous people, Charles, and you hadn't ought to stay so.

What is a Receipt.—The commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that where the acknowledgment of a sum of money on a debt due is contained in a letter, such is a valid legal receipt for the money, and if the amount exceeds $20 it requires a stamp of two cents.

American Agriculturist.—The February number of this valuable agricultural journal is before us. It is filled as usual, with useful information and interesting matter, for all classes. We say that it is the best agricultural paper published in the United States.

Lectures on Spiritualism.—We understand that Mrs. Addie C. Bailou, of Wisconsin, will deliver a series of lectures on the above subject in this place in the course of a couple of weeks. She is said to be a lady of talent, is a pleasing speaker, and always draws a crowded house wherever she goes.

Patent Medicines.—Lewis & Frisbie, at City Drug Store, are agents for the sale of all standard patent medicines, including those manufactured by Drs. Ayers, Janes, Halloway, the Graffenberg Company, and in fact all others amounting to anything.

Glassware.—Our enterprising friend A. T. Williams, has just received a large lot of glassware, such as Kerosene lamps and chimneys, tumblers, molasses pitchers, and glass lanterns, etc., to which he invites the attention of his patrons.

Kerosene Oil.—Williams has received four barrels of kerosene oil, good quality, which he is selling at $1.70 per gallon.

Codfish and Mackerel.—If you want some extra codfish and mackerel, call at Williams and get it. He has just received a splendid article.

And Still they Go.—Anything in the way of Men's wear at reduced prices, at Randall's. Call and see.

Cloak Stolen.—Notwithstanding the sociability and general good feeling manifested by all present at the Donation on Wednesday evening last, some person yielded to the promptings of the evil spirit insomuch as to unlawfully appropriate a lady's Cloak. It was a heavy, black, circular. If the individual will return it to this office, she will be satisfactorily rewarded.

The glorious news of the evacuation of Charleston was the occasion of much rejoicing among our citizens. Flags, were unfurled, a salute of eleven guns fired from the brass cannon, bonfires blazing, and several buildings illuminated, among others, Elder Thompson's Seminary, which presented a very fine appearance in the distance.

These Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF

NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhoop, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contribusions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprighly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trumple; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Bradon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage.

☞Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's magazine.—Methodist Protestant

The most popular Monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Tribune's Guide to American Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier.

THE SICK BRIGADE.

Right along, right along,
Right along onward,
Crowded the Sick Brigade—
Nine or ten hundred,
"Exempt" was their only cry.
Though they had no reason why,
Theirs but to push and try;
Into the doctor's shop,
Surged the ten hundred

Skulkers in front of it,
Skulkers in rear of it,
Skulkers surrounded it,
Clamored and thundered;
Deaf to all sense of shame.
Great strapping fellows came Asking Exemption, all,
Nine or ten hundred.

Oh, what a crowd was there,
How their groans rent the air,
And every man did swear,
He was disabled;
Some had an ache or pain,
Some had a bruise or sprain,
Some couldn't stand the rain,
All were enfeebled.

Ruddy with health were they,
Limbs in full active play
Right at the door they drove
Every man numbered;
Crowding and struggling there,
Gasping for want of air,
How they did stamp and swear,
Gallant ten hundred.

Honor the Sick Brigade,
Honor the charge they made!
Charged on the doctor's shop,
Onward, right onward,
Long shall the tale be told,
Yea, when our babes are old—
How they strove onward.

The Household.

System and forethought are two es- ntials to good housekeeping. Have e work all arranged before hand and one in its proper order and at the right me. Never (except in cases of extreme mergency) allow Monday's washing to e put off till Tuesday; Tuesdays ironng till Wednesday, or Wednesday's "cleaning up" till Thursday. Leave Thursday for resting day and as a prepration for sweeping and dusting of Friay, and the baking and scrubbing of aturday.

Arrange work so as to save fuel as nuch as possible. Mix bread at night, o that it will be ready to bake with the first fire' which always makes the oven ot in the morning. Prepare fruit over ight, so that pies or other things can e quickly made and baked immediately after. Prepare hashes over night. Have he kitchen and dining room put in order before retiring to rest. Have kindlings end whatever is needed for building fires laid ready, and the fire in the kitchen raked down so that it can be built up in the shortest possible space of time. This is not only a saving in the morning, but will be found useful in case of illness in the night, when a fire is often required at a moment's notice.

Cream Cheese.—A quart of cream, fresh or sour, and a table spoonful each of salt and sugar; mix and put in a cloth with a net outside; hang it up, and change the cloth every other day for ten days, when it will be fit for use.

Pickled Eggs.—Boil the eggs until very hard; when cold shell them, and cut them in halves lengthwise. Lay them carefully in a large mouth jar and pour over them scalding vinegar, well seasoned with whole pepper alspice, a little ginger and some cloves or garlic. When cold tie up closely and let them stand a month. They are then fit for use. With cold meat they are a most delicious and delicate pickle.

Ought Ladies to Skate?

An exchange is very clearly of the opinion that ladies should not skate. The subject is fitted for the times, and we therefore copy the following as one side of the question:

'The practice of Skating by females cannot be denounced in too strong terms; their formation forbids such violent and peculiar motion. I should as soon think of permitting a daughter to play base ball for exercise. The evil consequences to young ladies, resulting from the practice of skating are beginning to be realized. We are informed that nearly every physician can bear testimony against the amusement as far as there are only occasional deaths by drowning; it is believed that where one life is lost in in this way, there are hundreds of females whose sickness and death could be traced to the effects of skating. The practice of putting skates upon children in our parlors, is equally injurious and therefore cruel. I cannot believe that any lady in our town would ever again put on skates, were she aware of the injury to which she is liable in consequence. As so many proofs can be given against this exercise by females, I hope the time is not far distant when this masculine amusement will be abandoned by our young ladies.

The New Orleans Picayune describes recent weather in the Cresent City as "soul subduing, spirit-sinking, body-dissolving, temper-trying, reeking, dripping dropping, soaking, wishy-washy, slippery-sloppy, dulent, dank, dark, muggy, moisty, lymphatic and rheumatic."

A young man being asked by the lady to whom he was paying his particular addresses,—

'What rules of housekeeping he mean to adopt,' replied, smiling upon his fair one:

'The rule of multiplication by small numbers.'

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5 20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF
NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhoop, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M, A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter. George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham. Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquettish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experience, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr J. Robinson entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Braddon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and the enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. Poetry.

THE PARSON'S COURTSHIP.

BY THEODORE TILTON.

I know a tale of olden time,
And this to fill an idle day,
I fashion into idle rhyme,
And all who care to read it, may.

The autumn leaves were all aflame,
And so, in autumn-time of life,
A parson's heart was tinged the same
With holy fire to wed a wife.

He girt the saddle on his mare,
To go the way his heart inclined,
But wore a sober look and air,
As one who had a troubled mind.

In riding past the graveyard gate
His eyes were overfill'ed with tears,
For there he saw the slab of slate,
Where lay his wife of other years.

She used to say it wronged the dead,
To wed again above the grave:
The word kept running in his head,
And much bewilderment they gave.

As through the ranks of golden rod
He wound his way up Prospect Hill,
He humbly asked Almighty God
To grant a token of his will.

The parson's vision cleansed by prayer,
His duty grew as clear as light;
And duty never looks so fair
As seen by prayer illumined sight.

Already had he fixed his choice,
For every Sunday in the choir
He heard the Widow Churchill's voice,
Until she grew his heart's desire.

A woman pure of soul was she,
By sorrow purified the more;
Whose wedded mate was lost at sea,
Now nearly twenty years before.

The parson's passions, unconfessed,
Like smouldering heat within him burned
Which never once the widow guessed,
Or haply it had been returned.

With hazel whip the mare was switched,
And cantering up the rocky road,
And underneath a tree was hitched,
At Captain Churchill's old abode.

The dame was busy sifting flour,
Nor heard the comer till he said,
"Be praise to that Almighty Power
Who giveth man his daily bread!"

The widow, caught by such a guest,
In just her linsey-woolsey gown,
Instead of in her Sunday best,
Dropped bashfully her eyelids down.

Then spake her suitor to her face,
"I have a solemn word to say,
Whereto is need of heavenly grace;
So, Widow Churchill let us pray!"

Devoutly did the couple kneel—
The parson at the rocking chair,
The widow at the spinning wheel—
And this the burden of the prayer:

He mourned for uncommitted sin,
Implored a pardon for mankind,
And craved that grace would enter in
And sweetly move the widow's mind.

Then rising from his prayerful knees,
'I yearn to take a wife," he said;
"But owing thee—if God shall please,
Nor thou refuse, we twain will wed?"

The widow started with surprise,
(For women old, are women still,)
But answered lifting not her eyes,
"I seek to know the heavenly will."

The heavenly will was plain indeed,
And pointed to the flowery yoke,
For love is not a human need
Of young alone, but aged folk.

While yet the asters were in bloom,
There came a throng from far and near,
To wish the joy of bride and groom,
And eat and drink the wedding cheer.

That night beside the bridal bed
Up spoke the bride in tender tone,
"I have a message from the dead,
And time has come to make it known.

"The years are twelve this very day,
Since she whose title now is mine,
The night before she passed away,
Bequeathed to me this written line;

To thee, O friend of all my life,
I vow, before my strength be spent,
That should he wed another wife,
If thou art she I rest content"

He gazed upon the well known hand,
Thought backward of the bygone years,
Thought forward of the heavenly land,
And answered not a word for tears.

A hallowed honeymoon they passed,
And younger grew in growing old,
Till, sweetly fading out at last,
They left the tale that I have told.

Select Miscellany.

THE SECOND WIFE.

CHAPTER I.

I was married. The final vows had been spoken and I was no longer Agnes Park, but Agnes Fleming. I was the wife of a widower of thirty-eight, and the step-mother of three children! Not the first chosen, first beloved bride of young and ardent lover, such as my girlish dreams had pictured! only a second wife!

The reflection was not sweet; nevertheless it was the thought with which I took my seat in the carriage which was to convey me to my new home. The short wedding tour was ended, and we were "homeward bound." A long ride was still before us, for the village in which Captain Fleming resided was twenty miles from the last railway station; but he had caused his own carriage to meet us there, so begun fully to realize that we were nearing home.

The road over which we journeyed was level and smooth and, for a long time, wound close by the bank of a broad river. Fields lay on one side, stretching far away, until they were skirted by low weeds and hills; here and there a white farm house stood, looking cheerful and almost gay in the afternoon sunshine. The whole prospect was rural and very beautiful.

My gloom began to pass away, soothed by the sweet influence of the summer landscape, and visions of future usefulness began already to float through my brain. I had ample opportunity to indulge in these day dreams, for Captain Fleming, tired with the long ride, was half asleep by the side of his new wife. I was weary of taking the lead in conversation, and concluded to leave him to his meditation, as he had left me to mine. After weaving for myself a very profitable future, I looked for a little upon the past.

Oh that past! Mine had been no gay and pampering childhood; but looking back I saw, on the contrary, years of loneliness, of weariness and sorrow. For four years I had watched a young, beautiful and gifted brother, as stricken with consumption, he had wasted gradually away. We two were orphans, the last of our race, and all in all to each other.

But at last, I saw him laid in the coffin, all my love and hope were long buried with him. Not that I became sad and misanthropic. No; life and duty were not dead; and looking forward I saw that there was yet much for me to do, perhaps suffer; so I planted sweet brier and violets on Harry's grave, and then went out to act and strive with the rest of the striving world.

About a year after my brother's death, I met Arthur Fleming. I had been so shut out from the world by Harry's sickness that I had no lovers and very few friends, and I hardly believed I could ever again feel an interest in any one; but Arthur Fleming's kind, genial manner and delicate attentions warmed my heart to a new life. Unconsciously my whole heart, all the more ardent for its loneliness, given to this new friend. It was with bitter disappointment that I learned he had already been once married, for I could not bear the thought of a rival living or dead; yet I loved him, and when he asked me to become a mother to his motherless children, I accepted his hand, feeling sure that I would win from him an affection as deep and steadfast as my own. His house was lonely, his children poorly protected, and he needed a wife. I had been recommended to him as one who would keep his house in order, and be a suitable companion for his children; after a brief acquaintance he had proposed in due form.

'Almost home!' exclaimed Captain Fleming, rousing himself to look out of the carriage window. The words sent a thrill through me and I looked eagerly out, through the twilight shadows, to the house we were approaching. It was large and stood at a distance from the village street, and it seemed to me in a rather desolate situation. Great trees swing their branches over the gateway, and, as we rode between them, the wind made a sighing sound among the leaves. But the lighted lower windows shone cheerfully in the darkness, seeming by their brightness to welcome me home.

Jane Fleming, my husband's sister, who had been housekeeper since his wife's death, came to the door to meet us. The moment her cold fingers touched mine, I felt that there would be no sympathy between us; and when we had entered the lighted parlor, and I had scrutinized her face, I was sure of it. Without a word she stood beside me, while I took off my bonnet and gloves; she carried them away, then as silently walked into the room again, leading the three children. I feel now the chill of her presence upon me.

The three then ran into their father's arms, embraced him affectionately, and as he caressed them in return, I perceived that there was a fountain of warmth in this heart, which could I reach it, would be enough to shield me from cold and darkness for ever. This show of passionate fondness made me glad, and, going to his side I tried to win the notice of the children to myself.

'It's your new mother,' said he. 'She has come to take care of you when I am gone to sea again. Ellen and May go to your mother.'

May, a pretty blue eyed girl of ten, came shyly towards me, and kissed my cheek; but Ellen the eldest, only gave me her hand. Ellen seemed to have imbibed something of her Aunt's icy manner for she sat aloof and watched me coldly. The little boy now lifted its head from its father's shoulder, seeing that they stood by me unharmed, ventured to approach me.

'Come to me Harry,' said Miss Fleming with a frown.

Was his name Harry? I caught him to my arms and held him closely, so he could not escape to his jealous Aunt; and I thought in my secret heart, that I would make him like the Harry I had lost. In an instant the feeling that was a stranger had vanished; my heart had warmed so toward the little one whose auburn head nestled in my own. My husband looked pleased and smiled, giving his sister a gratified look; and I observed the shadow of a smile on her lips but it faded again as she glanced at Ellen. When the clock struck nine, Miss Jane rose and led the children to their chambers. I bade them good night, as they went out, but I noticed that Ellen made no answer.

The next morning I made a business of going over the house and examining its conveniences. The first step upon the broad, gloomy staircase, I was almost discouraged. I sat down in the parlor again. Such a dreary discorded house I never saw. In every chamber the curtains hung over the windows like shrouds, and the air was cold and damp as a dungeon. There was dust on the walls, on the windows, and the furniture; there was gloom in every corner. The parlor, which might have been a delightful room, seemed like a sepulchre. The furniture, as well as the pictures, were covered with canvass. A locked book case stood in recess, and a locked piano was by the opposite wall. I asked little May, who had kept close by me all the morning, why this was so.

'Aunt Jane doesn't like music' she said; and she keeps the bookcase, locked, because she says we must not read books until we are older.'

'And why is the furniture all covered?'

'The parlor is scarcely ever opened,' answered May. 'Aunt Jane wants to keep it nice.'

'Well, May,' I said, 'go now and ask Aunt Jane for the key of the bookcase. I want to see the books.'

She ran, and quickly returned, followed by Miss Jane, who delivered up the keys to me with a dubious kind of grace.

'I hope you will lock the bookcase when you have examined the books, ma'am.' said she, 'I don't allow the children to spend their time in light reading.'

'What are they now reading.'

She disappeared, and I opened the bookcase which I found to contain a most excellent selection of books. The best poets- the best historians, the best novelists and biographers, were here, making a library small, but of rich value. It was the first really pleasant thing I had found in my new home, and I sat an hour or two, glancing over one volume, after another, and re-arranging them on the shelves.

Suddenly, Miss Jane looked in, and in a moment her face was pale with indignation, for there sat little May on the carpet buried in a charming old English annual. Miss Jane took two steps forward, and snatching the book out of the child's hand, threw it on the table, then led her by the shoulder out of the room. I was mute with amazement at this rough government at first; then I sprang up and would have followed her but the fear of an outbreak restrained me.

'Selfish creature!' I exclaimed, 'you are trying to make these children like yourself; ruining them for all good or happiness in life. In Ellen's sullenness and coldness I see the fruit of your labor. Was Arthur Fleming blind when he left his children in your keeping?'

I saw no more of the children until dinner, when, by questioning, I learned that they had been studying all the morning, with Miss Fleming. I informed her that I should sit with them in the afternoon, as I wished to see what progress they were making. The look with which she received this announcement plainly indicated that I should be an unwelcome listener to her lessons, and for a few moments my heart so failed me, perplexed by her contemptuous glances, that I half determined to have nothing to do with the children, but leave them to her, since she was so jealous of them. But my better spirit prevailed over me. 'They are mine now,' I thought 'for I am their father's wife, and all his are mine. Their interests must be mine.'

After dinner, Miss Jane and the children repaired immediately, to the chamber, which was used as school room. In a few minutes I followed them, and I quietly took a seat at the desk. She was drilling them in arithmetic sending one after another to the blackboard and talking all the time in a loud and petulant tone.

'Ellen, if you make such awkward figures—I'll put you back to the beginning of the book. May, will you stand straight, or be sent to bed? Decide now.'

I cannot understand this sum, Aunt Jane,' sighed May.

'Sit down, until you can.'

'Do you not explain what they cannot understand?' I asked.

'All that is necessary,' she replied. 'May could understand her sums if she attended to me.'

An hour passed, during which May silently hung her head over her slate, and played with her pencil, Miss Jane offering no explanation. Harry alternately counted, with his fingers, the buttons on his vest. Ellen, whose strong mind received knowledge almost intuitively, studied her lesson perfectly.

'Very well, Ellen, said Miss Jane. 'You may go into the garden and amuse yourself.'

'Do they not play together?' I inquired with astonishment, not pleased with the idea of solitary, mirthful exercise.

'Not unless they learn their lessons equally well,' she answered. 'Harry!' If I live the boy is going to sleep!' 'Stand on the corner, Harry, until you awake.'

Harry colored, and went to the corner, rubbing his eyes. I felt disgusted at the total lack of system order, and justice which prevailed in this mock school. I was growing frightened at the work before me, fearful that Jane Fleming had sown more tares than my weak hands could ever root out.

Seeing that Harry was crying, I went to him in his corner.

'Go away,' he sobbed, when I laid my hands on his head. 'Go away. You are not my mother!'

I made no reply to this, but asked him why he cried.

'Because I am tired,' he answered, and you and Aunt Jane won't let me sit down.'

'I and Aunt Jane, Harry?'

'Yes,' he sobbed, out. 'Aunt Jane says you are come here to live always, and will make me mind you.'

'It is not true, Harry,' I whispered. 'I love you, and want you to love me. Won't you love me, darling?'

But he only thrust out his little hand sullenly, and turned his face away from me. Jane now came forward, and I turned from the child with a sigh of disappointment.

'But I will be patient,' I said to myself. 'They have been taught to fear and dread me; I cannot at once make them love me.'

The next morning Capt. Fleming left for a six months' voyage in his new barque, the May Fleming. His parting with the children was most tender and affectionate, even tearful—with me it was kind. After he was gone, I stole up to my room, and spent the morning in better weeping and sadness. What would become of me, if I should fail in trying to make myself beloved by his children—if their hearts were irrevocably steeled against me? Would not his own grow colder, and colder toward me? Fearful prospect!

CHAPTER II.

I heard a soft tap at my door, and little May entered. She, too, had been crying, and when she saw traces of tears on my face, she came gently up to me, and crept into my lap.

'Do you love father too?' she asked, in her frank, simple manner.

'Yes, darling, I love him,' I answered, 'and I want to love you all, and be loved by you. Now he is gone, I am sad and lonely. Will you not love me, May?'

The child kissed me gravely; but did not reply to the question.

'Aunt Jane sent me to call you to dinner,' she said, slipping from my arms.

When we had finished this lonely meal, and the children and Jane had gone up stairs to the afternoon lessons, I visited one or two rooms which had attracted my observation the day before. One was the attic chamber, where I had noticed a heap of old packages which I wished to examine. In one corner stood a pile of old pictures, some soiled, some with broken frames, but which, on examination, I found worthy to be rubbed up and newly framed. One especially, won my admiration. It was a portrait of a young and beautiful woman. The soft auburn hair and hazel eyes were very lovely, and the features not expressive of any great energy or depth of character were faultless regular.

I heard some one passing in the hall, and opened the door to ask some questions about these pictures. It was Ellen.

'Are you busy, Ellen?' If not, I wish you would come here a moment.'

Ellen looked surprised, but followed me without any reply.

'I want to know something about these pictures. Some of them are very fine, and it seems to me strange that they should hang them out of sight."

'They got injured,' said Ellen, and Aunt Jane did not have time to get them mended.'

'Here's a beautiful landscape,' I said.

I knew by the quick dilating of Ellen's hazel eyes, as she looked at the picture, that she could appreciate its excellence, and I regretted that she had been so long debarred the privilege of cultivating her naturally artistic taste. I resolved to help her to make up the lost time.

'Now here is one in which I am still more interested,' I said, taking up the portraits. 'Who is this, Ellen?'

Ellen started, and then the color rushed to her cheeks; as she answered, in a low voice, 'It is my mother.'

I had suspected as much. The resemblance was striking between the pictured face and little Harry.

'Is that the way you preserve your mother's portrait?' I asked.

'Aunt Jane put it away before—'

'Before I came, Ellen?'

'Yes.' was the brief reply.

'Well, I shall take better care of it in future. I am not afraid to stand between you and your mother, Ellen. I wish you to love and honor her memory above all others. I shall try to make you wiser and happier than ever, instead of gloomy and sad.'

There was a slight quiver about Ellen's firm lip, as she turned and left the room. I begun to feel encouraged. That evening I had a fire made in the parlor, the piano was unlocked, and I took my music from my trunk. In the 'gloaming,' before there was any light in room, save that of the tremulous fire light, I sat down to play. They were all there, Jane at crotchet work in a corner and the children seated silently about the fire.

I found the piano an excellent instrument, and after playing a variation, which drew a sigh from the depths of Miss Jane's bosom, and a shout of delight from my little Harry I began to sing. It was an old plaintive, Scotch song that I chose; something to touch and move the heart.

May and Harry were standing, one on each side of me, when I ended, and their glowing faces expressed their delight.

'I like that,' said Harry, 'I wish Aunt Jane wouldn't keep the piano locked, so that nobody can touch it.'

A loud warning cough from his amiable Aunt made him shrink a little closer to me. 'Do sing another, please!' whispered May, and I sung Goethe's 'Miller and the Brook,' that wild merry old song,

What do I say of a murmur,
That can murmur be?
'Tis the water nymphs that are singing
Their rounde lays under me?

May was in ecstacies. 'Oh, will you teach me to play?' she asked. 'It would make me so happy.'

'May,' said Jane, sternly. But the little girl did not heed it; her faith in her aunt was fast decreasing.

'I will, certainly, if you wish it,' I replied. 'Both Ellen and you may take lessons as soon as you please to begin. I do not wish you to be confined wholly to arithmetic.'

I turned from the piano and sat by the fire, after having lighted the lamp. May and Harry were dancing about in the middle of the room, and even Ellen smiled at their playful rudeness. Jane seeing that they took no heed of her dreary coughs and sighs, rose and left the room. I took quick advantage of her absence.

Going to the book case I selected an interesting volume, and sat down with it near the lamp. 'You have heard of Joan of Arc, have you not, Ellen?' I asked.

'I do not remember that I have,' answered she; 'who was she?'

Her story was a very wonderful one. I will read it if you would like to hear it.' I answered.

'Is it true?' cried Harry, leaving his play.

'Yes, Harry, it happened many years ago in France. Shall I read it?'

'Harry and May were already eager to hear it, and Ellen looked interested, though she said nothing.

I took Harry in my lap and begun to read the strange, thrilling story. All listened with the deepest attention.

By and by Ellen interrupted me saying—

'If you are tired, let me read it awhile, dear mother.'

I was tired and gave it up to her gladly; she had called me mother.

At nine Aunt Jane came in and called them to bed.

'No, no, Aunty; we'll come as soon as we find out what became of poor Joan!' cried May. Shall we stay, mother?'

'Let them stay a litle longer,' I said to Miss Jane.

The door closed, and Ellen proceeded with the story.

'Sing to us one more little song,' said May, when the story was ended. I complied willingly, and sang 'Let us love one another.' When I had finished May sprang up and gave a good-night kiss, and Harry soon followed her example.

'I want one more,' I said, turning to Ellen, and with a grave smile she kissed me and bade me good-night.

That night my pillow was haunted with happy dreams.

Search for "An Over-Coort."

Mr. Griff is a quiet stay-at-home sort of a body, much in the house, gown, cap and slippers, and wishes everybody else would stay at home and mind their business, and not bother him by asking questions at his door.

An elderly pilgrim from Erin's isle summoned him to the door the other day, not by pulling the bell, but by two or three peremptory raps with a cudgel, a bit of blackthorn as severe looking as its bearer, whose authoritative look and impetuous manner were not at all pleasing to Mr. Griff, who judged at a glance by his style of dress and unmistakably Irish cast of face, that he had "just come over."

"Can ye tell me'v nover-coort?" was the sudden and unintelligible question of the bearer of the cudgel, with a scornful and fiery glance at the cross-looking Griff, rapping the steps with his stick, to denote he was in a hurry.

"What do you say?" said Griff, bending his head to hear more distinctly.

" 'V nover coor-r-t!" said Pat, louder, and with a scowl that showed that he did not like the looks of Griff at all, and was reedy to quarrel with him at short notice. "Can ye?"

"I don't understand you," replied Griff, impatiently. Speak plainer.

"Begorra! and isn't me that's spaking plain, so I am. Are you deaf?

"No—and you needn't speak quite so loud. Hearing and understanding are different things, and I don't understand what you would be at."

This cavalier speech exasperated the man still more, and did not have the effect of clearing his articulation.

'It's 'v nover-coort that I' be larnin'—ov nover coor-rrt! and be jabbers! if ye can't understhand that yer head must be tick as a pig.'

'An overcoat? Oh, now I see! You want me to give you an overcoat. But my dear man, I don't see that you stand in particular need of an overcoat this hot weather—nor an undercoat, neither. The coat you have on isn't exactly in rags, and is well enough for a poor man.'

'Howly Moses!' The devil take your sthupidity! It isn't ov over-coort, but ov an overcoo t that I'm axing.'

'Where's the difference?'

'I'm not axing ye to give me an over coort; but can ye tell me ov an over-coort?'

'Can I tell you of an overcoat?' said Griff, still perplexed, 'Why, of course, I can tell you of a great many overcoats. I have two myself, and I intend to keep them. Perhaps you have lost an overcoat, but I don't see why you should come to me. I haven't got it. Go to the police'

'To tunder wid the pa-lace, yer blunderin' omadhoun, yer! I've tould ye i'ts not a coort, for me back I'm afther, but an over-coo-oo-oorrt, a shmarl sthrait.

'Small street? Oho! Now I know. When you say 'an over-coort, you mean you want to find a place called Hanover court. Is that it?

'Jist! ye wise owl. Where is it?

'I don't know. The next street is Hanover street, and it is a very long one; you'il have a good many chances to find it there, and a good many more to miss it.

And Griff shut the door quickly, to escape the stick shied at him by the infuriated Irishman.

JUDGE NOT A MAN.

Judge not a man by the cut of his clothing,
Unheeding the life path that he may pursue
Or oft you'll admire a heart that needs loathing,
And fail to give honor where honor is due.
The palm may be hard and the fingers stiff-jointed,
The coat may be tattered, the cheek worn with tears,
But greater than kings are labor's anointed,
And you can't judge a man by the coat that he wears.

Give me the man as a friend and a neighbor,
Who toils at the loom—with the spade or the plow—
Who wins his diploma of manhood by labor,
And purchases wealth by the sweat of his brow.
Why should the broadcloth alone be respected,
And the man be despised who in fustian appears?
While the angels of heaven have their limbs unprotected,
You can't judge a man by the coat that he wears.

Judge a man by the work he is doing,
Speak of a man as his actions demand;
Watch well the path that each is pursuing,
And let the most worthy be chief o'er the land!
And the man shall be found 'mid the close ranks of labor,
Be known by the work that his industry rears,
And his chiefdom, when won, shall be dear to his neighbor,
And we'll honor the man, whatever he wears.

PHACTS AND PHANCIES.

Artemas Ward said the most absurd man of his acquaintance was the individual who attempted to eat soup out of a junk bottle with a string. He is a match for the individual who tried to feed a wild cat butter with a hot awl.

"This smacks of Heaven!" said the youth as he kissed the maiden's cheek. "Well, you have plenty of lip, I'm sure, replied the maiden. Yes, and youve plenty of cheek, responded the youth as he repeated the osculation.

Southey, in his 'Omnians,' relates the following:

'When I was at Lisbon, a nun made her escape from a nunnery. The first thing for which she inquired when she was to be secreted, was a looking-glass. She had entered the convent when only five years old, and from that time had never seen her own face.

A certain old lady, who had been famed for sour looks and not very sweet words, touching the incidents of life, was observed to become very amiable. 'What happy change has come over you? asked a neighbor. Why, said the transformed, to tell the truth, I have been all my life striving for a contented mind, and have finally concluded to sit down contented without it.

Two young ladies sit cozily by a comfortable fire. The married one says: 'Whenever I want nice snug fire all to myself, I tell George my mother is coming, and then I see nothing of him until one o'clock in the morning.'

Do Your Own Mopping.

Should a fashionable woman be asked to go into the kitchen with one of her best silk dresses, and dripping the skirt into the suds of the scrubbing pail, drag it over the floor for an hour or more, she put down her gaitered foot with a snap and bid you do your own mopping. Yet after the past week's rain, this beautiful Tuesday calls out a multitude of women—most of them sensible women, who keep their skirts out of the dirt—among them those who can be tracked from street to street's end by the dirty water Virginia-fence trail they leave behind. We walked many rods behind a silk dress that had been paid for in gold at one hundred and seventy, and at least three inches of it was mastily muddy, the edge fairly fringed by contact with the pavement, and at every crossing, and every depression in the flagging the silk drewpt up the mud like a dragging machine, and made a zizzag imprint on the stones.

Weigh Your Flour.—A friend of ours recently bought a barrel of flour for thirteen dollars and a half. On opening it and filling a firkin which he knew held forty pounds, he noticed that about a quarter of the barrel had been taken out. That induced him to weigh the whole, which he did carefully, and the result was 178 pounds, or eighteen pounds short of the legal weight! Then he measured the barrel and found it to measure far less cubic inches than a flour barrel to have. We believe it was the "Mills" brand. In these times of high prices it becomes purchasers to be on their guard against imposition and the only sure way is the scales. The tare of a flour barrel is twenty pounds. The whole weight should be 216 pounds.—Mass Ploughman.

Tan Bark for Potatoes.—A gardener at Troyes, "having observed that everybody living in the quarter of the town occupied by tanners escaped the cholera determined to try the virtue of tan when planting potatoes. For this purpose he placed a shovelful of tan in the trench under the seed in a part of the field, and planted the remainder in the ordinary way. On digging out the potatoes he found that those which were planted near the tan were perfectly sound, while the others were diseased. He found, further, that potatoes were preserved in the winter by spreading tan on the floor of the storehouse."

Facts About the 7-30's--The Advantages they Offer.

THEIR ABSOLUTE SECURITY.—Nearly all active credits are now based on Government securities, and banks hold them as the very best and strongest investment they can make. If it were possible to contemplate the financial failure of the Government, no bank would be any safer. If money is loaned on individual notes or bond and mortgage, it will be payable in the same currency as the Government pays with, and no better. The government never has failed to meet its engagements, and the national debt is a first mortgage upon the whole property of the country. While other stocks fluctuate from ten to fifty, or even a greater per cent., Government stocks are always comparatively firm. Their value is fixed and reliable, beyond all other securities; for while a thousand speculative bubbles rise and burst, as a rule they are never below par, and are often above.

ITS LIBERAL INTEREST.—The general rate of interest is six per cent. payable annually. This is seven and three tenths payable semi annually. If you lend on mortgage, there must be a searching of titles, lawyers' fees, stamp duties and delays, and you will finally have returned to you only the same kind of money you would receive from the Government, and less of it. If you invest in this loan, you have no trouble. Any bank or banker will obtain it for you without charge. To each note or bond are affixed five "coupons" or interest tickets, due at the expiration of each successive half-year. The holder of a note has simply to cut off one of these coupons, present it to the nearest bank or Government Agency, and receive his interest; the note itself need not be presented at all. Or a coupon thus payable will everywhere be equivalent, when due to money. If you wish to borrow ninety cents on the dollar upon the notes, you have the highest security in the market to do it with. If you wish to sell, it will bring within a fraction of cost and interest at any moment. It will be very handy to have in the house.

IT IS CONVERTIBLE into a six per cent. gold-bearing bond. At the expiration of three years a holder of the notes of the 7-30 loan has the option of accepting payment in full or of funding his notes in a six per cent. gold-interest bond, the principal payable in not less than five, nor more than twenty years from its date, as the Government may elect. These bonds are held at such a premium as to make this privilege now worth two or three per cent. per annum, and adds so much to the interest. Notes of the same class, issued three years ago, are now selling at a rate that fully proves the correctness of this statement.

ITS EXEMPTION FROM STATE OR MUNICIPAL TAXATION.—But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

IT IS A NATIONAL SAVINGS BANK.—While this loan presents great advantages to large capitalists, it offers special inducements to those who wish to make a safe and profitable investment of small savings. It is in every way the best Savings' Bank; for every institution of this kind must somehow invest its deposits profitably in order to pay interest and expenses. They will invest largely in this loan, as the best investment. But from the gross interest which they receive, they must deduct largely for the expenses of the Bank. Their usual rate of interest allowed to depositors is 5 per cent. upon sums over $500. The person who invests directly with Government will receive almost 50 per cent. more. Thus the man who deposits $1,000 in a private Savings' Bank receives $50 a year interest; if he deposits the same sum in this National Savings' Bank he receives 73 dollars. For those who wish to find a safe, convenient and profitable means of investing the surplus earnings which they have reserved for their old age or for the benefit of their children, there is nothing which presents so many advantages as this National Loan.

THE HIGHEST MOTIVE.—The war is evidently drawing to a close, but while it lasts the Treasury must have money to meet its cost, and every motive that patriotism can inspire should induce the people to supply its wants without delay. The Government can buy cheap for cash in hand than on credit. Let us see that its wants are promptly and liberally satisfied.

DISMISSED.—An order has been received from the Department, by Col. Averill dismissing Dr. Mayo from the service, for receiving five dollars fee for making private examinations. No one who is acquainted with Dr. Mayo will for a moment question his honesty and good intentions. He supposed from the reading of the law that he had a perfect right to give a private examination, and charge a fee of five dollars. The authorities at Washington construed the law differently, and his official head has paid the forfeit.

EXEMPTIONS ANNULLED.

Col. Averill has published an order annulling all the exemptions made in the First District, excepting those given by the second Board at its session in Faribault on the 17th and 18th ult. The names of all those that paid so liberally to get exempted, will therefore be placed on the enrollment lists, and the lists will stand the same as if there had been no session of the Board. The quotas as made out by Capt. See, and a portion will be found elsewhere, will not be changed by this order.

THE bones have been divided, and the dogs are quiet. The Press has received its share in the State Printing, and the Atlas is content with having the U. S. Laws to publish. Well, every dog has its day; but friend Newton, haven't you got an agreeable bed-fellow!

MR. EDITOR: Please allow a small space for the purpose of again noticing the negro suffrage question. And now, sir, I am fully prepared to stand by former statements upon this question. And when the proper time comes, I am ready to take the front in this matter. For the present I shall notice a few things beneficial to the community.

Noticing the very vile and vulgar assault made by the Homestead monkey, it may be for aught I know, largely of African descent, but of African scent I am sure.

The poor woolly-headed creature has gone entirely into hysterics about his friends of dark hue (being all the friends he has) and I of course sympathize with even the meanest animal in distress and so I cannot help pitying, but cannot help in such a case. We know that it must be hard to have one's friends and possibly near relations held as socially inferior to those around, but the poor editor should remember that I recommend colonization and he can go with his friends and publish his paper where it will be appreciated, and where he can compete with those around him. As I do not intend to come into competition with the negroes, I have no personal fears on that question. My relatives, rich or poor are all of white blood, thank God, and we intend to maintain that position. It is negro worshippers North and South that are apt to amalgamate and compete. And now I am remembered of a custom practiced long ago in the old Keystone State, of examining dogs' mouths, which were supposed to be guilty of killing sheep and if there was wool found in their teeth they had to die. Now, I would advise the citizens of Faribault county to examine the aforesaid editor and see if there is not wool in his teeth and if so mark him as God did Cain.

We would now advise the Editor that he has probably barked up the wrong tree he had better scent again and make sure, as this thing of retracting as I notice he has been obliged to do in times past, cannot be pleasant.

I am much obliged, Mr. Editor, for past favors, and in asking you to publish this, I have to say that Solomon taught that we should 'answer a fool according to his folly."

Yours respectfully, C. A. S.

THE VOTING PRIVILEGE EXTENDED TO NEGROES.

MR. EDITOR:—In your last issue I saw an article by "C. A. S.," under the above title, which demands a passing notice not only from the spirit of the article, but because it treats of a subject which is now engaging attention in this State as well as throughout the North. The opinions advanced in the article referred to are only the infamous Dred Scott decision in another form and entitled the author to a place in the front rank of negro haters. It is supposing that there are intelligent men at the present day who seem to learn nothing from the great events through which we are passing. It appears to me that no one whose prejudices will permit them to look at the present national conflict in its true light can avoid the conclusion that as a people, we are being punished—severely, justly punished—for that sin of all sins—slavery. He who espouses the cause of the oppressed is teaching us that the black man has rights which we are bound to respect. And what are these rights? Are they less than ours? Before you take the position that they are you must show that the negro is something less than a man. Let us not stop short of full and complete justice to this long oppressed and despised race and when we have made up our minds to do this, all the imaginary evils which C. A. S. depicts in such glowing colors, will vanish into the air. The gentleman says that the negro does not want these privileges. Without stopping to ask where he got this information let me inquire of C. A. S. how he would feel upon this subject, if his skin was of a dark hue?

I cannot better close this article than to commend to the careful consideration of C. A. S. and all who think with him,—that it is not safe to do right, the following extract from a memorial of some colored men of Michigan, to the Legislature of that State, asking this same privilege which we are told they do not want:

"Are we good enough to use bullets and not good enough to use ballets? May we defend rights in time of war and be denied the exercise of those rights in time of peace? Are we citizens when the nation is in peril and aliens when the nation is in safety? May we shed our blood under the star spangled banner, on the battle field, and yet be debarred from marching under it to the ballot-box? May we give our lives but not our votes for the good of the republic? Shall we toil with you to win the prize of free government, while you alone shall monopolize all its valued privileges. Let us entreat you to have faith in your own principles. If freedom is good for any it is good for all. If you need the elective franchise we need it more. You are strong; we are weak, &c., &c."

Truly Yours, H.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

The Eighth Minnesota—No Pay for Several Months—Greenbacks Plenty—The Sanitary Commissioners—Amendment to the Revenue Bill—Washington's Birthday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb 18, 1865.

DEAR UNION:—You will no doubt have learned long before this reaches you that the 23rd Corps (Gen. Schofield's) of the Army of the Tennessee, has arrived here. The 8th Minnesota forms a part of this Corps. Upon learning of the arrival, I accompanied the State Agent in his visits to the Hospitals. We succeeded in finding about forty of the boys, as they are called, although their ages range from eighteen to sixty-five. Nearly all complain of severe colds more or less affecting the lungs. It is thought these colds were contracted on their trip to this place, the difference in temperature between Tennessee and points on the line of travel being very great, and the men not anticipating such change were not provided with sufficient clothing, and therefore suffered very much from cold. All speak in the highest terms of the treatment they receive and nearly all are recovering quite rapidly. The surgeons and nurses, they say, are faithful and kind in the discharge of their several duties.

The only thing they complain of is their not having received their pay for several months. They say it would not matter a great deal if they had not families who needed it to help them through the winter.

The Agent immediately set about to find out the Paymaster of the regiment and have arrangements made to pay them at once. Yesterday and to-day was spent in going from hospital to hospital until all were paid. It was pleasant to see their countenances brighten as the greenbacks were counted out to them—nearly all expressing delight at being enabled to remit to their "loved ones at home" the product of their labor and toil. About a thousand dollars was handed over to the agent in sums of from twenty to one hundred dollars to procure Treasury checks payable to the order of the persons in whose favor drawn. In this way money can be remitted by mail without risk. Exhibitions of this kind are well calculated to make impressions not readily forgotten.

The poor fellows seem quite glad to meet with persons from their own State, and although you may never have met before, the hearty shake of the hand is a sure index to the feeling of the heart. To hear them, with eyes sparkling with the fire of true patriotism, recount the scenes and incidents of the camp and battle field—some of them quite amusing, while others are touchingly sad, you are very forcibly impressed with the fact that a soldier's life is something more than a myth.

As a nation, I think we have cause to feel proud when we take into consideration the great degree of perfection at which the Government has arrived in her Sanitary department. Nothing appears to have been left undone that science, skill and humanity could devise to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and wounded soldier or sailor. The Sanitary and Christian Commissions are doing much, very much indeed, by their ministering to their comfort, mentally and physically, in the camp, in the field, and hospital. I am told by those who ought to know, that there are hospital accommodations in and around Washington for 30,000 men, and I know they are kept as clean and sweet as any private dwelling.

One poor fellow had died on Monday, the 13th inst. His post-office address, "Faribault, Rice County," letter to be addresed to his wife; thus adding another to the many thousands of widows all over our once happy country. The name of the deceased is Abraham Tope, Corporal Co. B, 8th Regiment.

Both Houses of Congress seem to be trying to make the most of the little time remaining of the present session. In the House yesterday, Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, moved a very important amendment to the "Internal Revenue Bill," in the shape of a new section "requiring every bullion broker to take out license, and pay one thousand dollars therefor, whether operating at the broker's bard or elsewhere. Whoever shall thus deal without first obtaining a licensed, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be subject to a penalty of two thousand dollars. Whoever buys and sells gold, bullion, or coin, above the mint value, for purposes of speculation, shall be deemed a bullion broker. All sales of gold excepting for exportation, and to pay duty on imports and interest on the public debt, shall be taxed ten per centum on each purchase and sale.

The amendment was adopted—yeas 51, nays 43. It is feared, however, that the gold gamblers wield too strong an influence in the country, and probably in Congress, to finally pass any measure that will effectually put a stop to this infamous traffic in gold.

Great preparations are being made for the celebration (or rather desecration) of the anniversary of the birth day of Washington. This day is observed by the several governmental departments as a holiday. And it is feared a great majority of the thousands of clerks will spend it in a manner not very creditable to themselves, nor becoming the commemoration of the event intended to be celebrated

Good news from the front. H.

LATE WAR NEWS.

Admiral Porter reports that Wilmington is in our possession.

A Washington dispatch says no apprehension exists there about Sherman as Grant will keep Lee fully occupied in defending Richmond.

The news of Sherman's successes in South Carolina, has caused a feeling of universal depression in the rebel army, and privates make no secret of their intention to desert. Lee has placed a heavy guard in his rear to prevent their going to their homes.

Rebel officers openly express their opinion that nothing can stop Sherman's advance, and hence privates desert by scores.

A North Carolina paper has a vague rumor that D. H. Hill, or Cheatham, from Hood's old army, had struck Sherman's rear, and captured 8,000 prisoners, besides a large number of wagons.

Gen. Schofield's forces effected a junction with Sherman on Monday, the 27.

A dispatch from Grant's army says: We are now under marching orders having received instructions to be ready to march at a moment's notice.

We expect to have another tilt for the possession of the Southside railroad, and look for a heavy engagement.

That something is going on in the lines in front of us is very evident. I do not believe, however, that Lee is going to retreat. He could not fall back to overwhelm Sherman without having Grant thundering close on his rear in less than six hours.

GENERAL ORDERS, No 1.

I.—Pursuant to authority from the War Department, the First Battalion Minnesota Infantry Volunteers will, by the recruiting of eight additional companies, be raised to a regimental organization, and be known as the First Regiment Minnesota Infantry Volunteers.

II.—The following named Second Lieutenants have been conditionally appointed to recruit for the regiment and will receive unconditional commissions provided they respectively raise at least thirty men each for the organization:

Putnam Clothes Wringer.

The ONLY reliable self-Adjusting Wringer. The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second.

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers.

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers. It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use. Respectfully yours.

Organization of the Medical Society.—The appointed meeting for the organization of the Medical Society of the Minnesota and Blue Earth Valleys took place at the Mankato House, in this place, on Friday evening, 24th ult.

A fair representation of Medical men were present. Quite a number were detained from being present on account of the difficult crossing of the streams.

The following named gentlemen were elected officers pro. tem.

M. R. Wickersham, M. D., President.

Wm. Frisbie, M. D., Secretary.

The Society then proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year, and the following named gentlemen were elected.

W. R. McMahan, M. D. Mankato, President.

Wm. Frisbie, M. D., Mankato, Secretary.

Mr. Weschke, M. D., New Ulm, and J. W. B. Welcome, M. D., Garden City, Corresponding Secretaries.

A motion was made and carried, to the effect that the President be authorized to appoint a committee to draft a Constitution and By-Laws; in compliance with the motion, the President named Drs. LaDow, St. Peter, Chairman, Frisbie, and Zenopalski, Mankato, Welcome, Garden City, and Francis, of Mapleton, to act as such Committee.

I. O. of G. T.—The Garden City Lodge of I. O. of G. T.'s was organized by J. S. Perry, D. G. W. C. T. of Winnebago City, on Friday evening, Feb. 17th, 1865. Thirty five members joined that evening, and following officers were elected and appointed, viz:

W. C. T.—J. M. Thompson,
W. R. H. S.—Miss Ella Clark,
W. L. H. S.—Mrs. S. J. Wellcome,
W. V. T.—Mrs. V. T. Torry,
W. S.—S. C. Wellcome,
W. A. S.—Mrs. Maria Coffman,
W. F. S.—Mrs. Mary Wellcome,
W. M.—G. W. Yates,
W. D. M.—Miss Ella Wellcome,
W. I. G.—Miss Amelia Cross,
W. O. G.—Franklin Plymate,
W. C.—Rev. A. Case,
P. W. C. T.—R. J. Marvin.

The following committees were also appointed:

Room Com.—Benjamin Evans, M. B. Warren, and Enoch Conklin.

Financial Com.—S. C. Wellcome, J. P. Yates, and Dr. W. Torry.

Sick Com.—Dr. J. W. B. Wellcome, Dr. W. Torry, Marshall Warren, Mrs. Polly Warren, Mrs. E. C. Plymate, and Miss Sarah Conklin.

The regular meetings of the Lodge are held on Friday evening of each week, at 7 o'clock. The Lodge now numbers forty; fifteen more have applied for admission, and the prospect is that every man and woman in Garden City and vicinity, will unite in putting their feet upon the head of the wily serpent that has been so long crawling around in our midst, and bringing desolation to so many homes. Then come and welcome one and all. Old men and women; young men and maidens, and enlist under the banner of Temperance and boldly wage war upon King Alcohol, the great enemy of our race, until we see his final extermination from our midst. Let us set an example to our neighbors in larger towns worthy of imitation, until our influence reaches throughout the State, and soon it may be said that Minnesota is a free State,—free from a curse equal to slavery, and though we may have passed away from earth before she is thus fully redeemed from the sin of intemperance, our children may enjoy the blessed effects of this temperance movement and "rise up and call you blessed."

S. C. WELLCOME.
Garden City, Feb. 27, 1865.

Treasurer's and Auditor's Settlement.—Six months ago our County Treasurer and Auditor made a settlement of their books, and there was only one cent's difference. This week they made another settlement, and their accounts came out exactly alike. When it is remembered that the business of making out tax statements and receiving taxes, is a very complicated one, requiring accurate accountants, and exceeds the sum of over $25,000, this certainly speaks well for these county officials.

A Riddle.—A young correspondent sends us the following riddle which will doubtless interest the curious minded, and to which an answer is required:

One day I saw an object,
Hanging on a nail,
It had a tongue that could not speak,
Besides a head and tail.
It neither hand nor feet possessed,
But feet it had: and mark!
Although 'twas born before the flood.
'Twas never in the ark,
'Twas made without a soul I'm sure,
And yet a soul it had.
It soulless lived the second time,
Can such a thing be had?
The Bible oft has told me that,
Our God created this,
For though the works of man are great
They cannot equal His.
The object I have thus described,
Its name if you'll array,
In letters four, you'll much oblige
Your little friend A. J.

Donations.—The Revs. Mr. Clow and Gardner, of the United Brethren Society, received a visit from their friends in Vernon Centre, last Thursday evening. The donation receipts amounted to $72.

The donation given to Rev. Mr. Reese, at Butternut Valley, on the 22d ult., amounted to $120.50.

Rev. I. H. Richardson, of St, Peter, will receive a donation visit from his many friends, on Wednesday evening next. Friends and acquaintances from Mankato are invited to be present.

We would suggest the idea of giving a benefit to Rev. Mr. Day, of this place. He has labored faithfully for nearly two years, and no friendly demonstration of the kind has ever been extended to him. Who will start the move?

Real Estate.—Our enterprising friend G. G. Young, sold out his farm in Vernon last fall, and went to Wisconsin intending to remain there. His restless spirit would not let him stay, however, so he recently sold out his farm there at a profit of $700, and has returned to Vernon. He has purchased the improved farm of Adolphus Dart, 200 acres, for $2,000, and the farm of Andrew Quinn, also 200 acres, for which he paid the same consideration. We don't remember where Young was born, but if he isn't a Yankee, then we never saw one.

A Day of Rejoicing.—Saturday the 4th of March, has, by general consent, been set apart as a day of praise and thanksgiving, and rejoicing for our recent Union victories. A Union prayer-meeting will accordingly be held in the Presbyterian Church to-morrow, between the hours of 12 and 1.

The President had presented the name of Hon. Hugh McCulloch as Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. McCulloch is said to be a good financier. He owns lands in this county, and this week paid taxes on the same, amounting to $50.

Glad of It.—Our representative, Mr. Harrington, has introduced a bill, which has passed the House, changing the name of the township of McClellan, to that of McPherson, and the town of Desoto to that of Rapidan.

The Tax duplicates have been returned to the County Auditor. Tax payers will, therefore, have to obtain from the Auditor a certificate of the amount of their taxes, on presentation of which the Treasurer will receive their greenbacks.

The Weather.—This section was visited by a severe snow storm on Wednesday last, and the snow is now full six inches deep and the sleighing is very good. The liverys are well patronized, and sleighs, robes and belles are in demand.

We were pleased to greet the pleasant face of Captain Keysor, who favored us with a call on Wednesday last, being on a brief visit to his family. He looks hale and hearty. He will return to the Fort on Saturday, probably.

The meetings of the Mite Society of the M. E. Church, will again be resumed on Wednesday evening next, at the City Hall. The public are invited to attend By order of the Secretary.

The 7-30 Loan.—We call attention to the advertisement of this popular loan which will be found in another column.

The Board of County Commissioners will meet at the Register's office on Tuesday, the 14th inst.

Wanted.—A boy to learn the printing business,—one that will "stick" to it.

MARRIED:

In Garden City, on the 28th ult., by Rev A. Case, Mr. ROYAL G. CHADWICK. and Miss KATE T. SMITH, both of Garden City.

OF
NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature. Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P. T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M. A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, fuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Peiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artfullest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosling, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Bradon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the very liberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Trubner's Guide to American Literature. London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interest both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50, $100,$500,$1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U S. Notes, consider that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the veryliberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5 20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

First National Bank of St. Paul,

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota,

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st, 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

Poetry.

How Much There is That's Beautiful.

How much there is that's beautiful,
In this bright world of ours,
To lessen sorrow, pain and woe,
And bless our cheerless hours,
And make our weary pathway here
With love and hope to shine,
And flowers of pleasure bud and bloom
In joyous groups divine.

The light-winged hours of balmy Spring
That cheer the sleeping earth—
The summer days that always bring
The smiling flowers forth;
The streamlets, too, that dance along
In merry childish glee,
Are objects all supremely fair,
And beautiful to see.

There's beauty in the early morn—
And in the mid-night lone,
When all around is calm and still,
And hushed is every tone;
And in the bright and gorgeous clouds
That paint the "upper deep,"
When pillowed in the arms of peace,
And almost sunk in sleep.

It dwells within the cheerful smile
That artless childhood wears,
And on the manly brow of age
That's furrowed deep with cares,
Oh! yes, there's beauty everywhere,
In fadeless lines revealed,
Within this fair and brightsome world,
That countless treasures yield.

And life—around this fairy spell
How much of beauty's shed,
To make it bright and sunny ground
Where earthly pilgrims tread;
Although dark clouds may sometimes rise
And dim each ray of light,
Which hovers o'er our pathway here,
It still is fair and bright.

THE SECOND WIFE.

[CONCLUDED.]

Much of the ensuing week was spent in re-arranging the rooms in order to give them a more cheerful appearance. I took down the portrait of the first Mrs. Fleming from its garret corner, and hung it over the mantel in the parlor. I reframed the beautiful landscape, and it adorned a little room opening from a back parlor, which had been used as a spare bed room, but which I converted into a miniature library. I went with the children into the fields to hunt for early May flowers, with which to fill the vases and make the rooms bright and fragrant.

May took her first music lesson, and was already promising to sing 'Let us love one another,' on Christmas day, at which time her father would be at home.

Ellen had so far descended from her cold heights of reserve as to ask me to learn her crayon drawing, and I was astonished at the artistic talent she already exhibited.

One morning, when I had been about a fortnight with them, Jane came to breakfast table in her traveling dress. We were all surprised—I most of all, for I hoped the happiness of the children would win her kindness also; but I was mistaken.

'Where are you going, Aunty?' asked May, her blue eyes expanding with astonishment. Miss Jane deigned no answer, but ate her breakfast in unbroken silence, then turning to me, announced her decision.

'Mrs. Fleming, you cannot expect me to stay here content, when I see you daily undoing with all your might what I have been laboring so hard to accomplish. These girls were growing up, in my care, discreet, sober and reasonable. I shut out the vanities and follies of the world from their knowledge. I reared them in prudence and soberness. But Arthur Fleming must bring a strange wife here, who in two short weeks could by her wily softness of manner, win their foolish young hearts away from their tried friend, and fill their heads with vanity. I will not stay where I and my teachings are objects of contempt. I leave you to your painting and playing your singing and boquet making. I am not penniless, as you probably suppose. I have still a home to go to, now that I am driven thankless from this one.'

My eyes filled with tears at these scornful words. The children looked wonderingly at me and at her.

'Don't go, Aunty, mother doesn't want you to go,' whispered May, the sweet little peace maker.

'I don't know who drives you from here,' said Ellen, sarcastically.

'Jane I wish you to stay with us,' I said. 'It is right that I, Captain Fleming's wife, should be a mother to his children, and take their care and education into my own hands. I mean to make them happy in their home, in their studies, and to fit them for good and useful lives. You can help me in this work, and I will be your friend. Will you stay, Jane?'

No, Mrs. Fleming I will not stay where I am a mere cypher. But, children, I do not desert you; if you are ever fatherless or in trouble I will come to you, and you shall have your home with me again.'

The stage coach which Jane had secretly ordered to call for her, now rattled up to the door, and she took her seat in it. She gave a nod of freezing dignity to me, a farewell of compassionate affectionate to the children, and then the coach drove away.

I was alone with home, children and peace!

CHAPTER III.

Six months passed rapidly, and how pleasantly my vivid recollection of them testifies. As the village schools taught but little, and I was fully competent to instruct the children myself, I spent three hours of every morning in study with them. Two afternoon's in a week I devoted to May's music and Ellen's drawing; on the other afternoons they were free to practice at home or to visit their village friends, and receive visits in return. Our evenings were spent in reading, and in the three months of that summer they gained more intelligence than in years before.

Their interest in knowledge was aroused, and whatever they read was made a subject of free and cheerful conversation, thus fixing important facts in their memories, and training their minds to habits of active thought. Ellen adorned the walls of our sitting room and little library with several fine crayon pictures, and May added to our evening readings the charm of her sweet singing.

At Christmas time we expected Capt. Fleming. With what a glad pride I looked upon my happy group, and thought of the gratitude he would feel when he saw their improvement, and witnessed their affection for myself. I looked forward with a beating heart to the meeting.

It was a fortnight before Christmas, and we were already deeply engaged in preparation for the merry season. Green boughs with which to decorate the rooms were being made into festoons and garlands, and, in a sly corner, the Christmas tree was awaiting its hour of triumph. Ellen was hurrying to finish a picture of Santa Claus to hang over the Christmas tree; and May was practicing incessantly 'Let us love one another,' at the pianoforte, while little Harry entered with even greater zeal, if possible, into the preparations for the festivities.

It was afternoon, and Ellen and I had been discussing the propriety of inviting some friends to enjoy our Christmas Eve with us. We were now in daily expectation of Captain Fleming, and every sound of carriage wheels made us rush to the window.

'Father is come!' cried Ellen, as the sound of wheels, instead of passing, ceased at our door, and we simultaneously sprang up and ran to the window. There, indeed, stood the expected coach, but who was that old lady, with a green band box held tightly in her arms, now bundling out of the coach door, sending sharp glances put up at the windows, while the coachman took down her trunks and baggage.

'It is Aunt Jane,' said Ellen, with a long sigh of disappointment, and she looked into my face inquiringly.

'It is too bad!' said May, half crying, 'for her to come and spoil all just as we were to have such a merry Christmas.'

'Well, meet her kindly, and give her a welcome,' I said; and by that time the hall door opened and Jane Fleming stood in the midst of us receiving our greetings with a kind of grim smile. The girls divested her of all her many shawls and cloaks and furs, and Harry drew a chair for her close to the fire.

As she warmed her feet at the grate, she looked around her with a singular expression of pity, mixed with triumph.

'I have kept my promise, children,' she said; 'I told you if anything happened I would come to you.'

I started from my seat, and a shudder of terrible forebodings passed through me as I remembered the promise to which she referred.

'Jane! Jane Fleming! what do you mean?' cried I.

She wiped the corners of her eyes with her handkerchief. Then she said—

Ah! it is as I thought! You see that I, living on the seashore as I do get news some days in advance of you. I said to myself when I heard it, that it would be printed in your weekly paper and you would not get it before to-morrow. So I thought I had better step into the stage and ride down to prepare your minds.'

'What is it?' said Ellen, grasping her Aunt's hand with a kind of nervous fierceness.

Jane fixed her eye on Ellen and replied: 'Last week, in the great storm, the May Fleming was wrecked!'

A low cry escaped May's lips.

'Jane!' I gasped, 'my husband—where is he?'

She looked at me composedly.

'The May Fleming was wrecked and sunk. Save the mate and one sailor, who floated two days on a broken raft, every soul was lost!

I could utter neither cry nor moan. I only looked into the faces of my children, who gathered about me, indulging their wild sorrow in pitiful cries. Ellen only, after a brief time, seemed to comprehend my bewildering anguish. She put her young, strong arms about me, and led, unresisting, to my chamber, and there, watched by her alone, I lay silent and motionless.

But my brain was busy. 'Is it to this, an untimely death,' I thought, 'that all I love are fated to come?' My heart was wrapt in my beautiful Henry, and he laid down to die in the glory of his youth. My love rose out of his grave and gathered itself, strong as life, about my husband; and now, in so short a time, he is gone also. Was it for this that I gave my mind, my heart, my soul, to his children, only that they should look up to me with their pitiful faces, and cry, 'We are orphans!' Where was he when we, his wife and children, were making garlands? We were singing and weaving the holly and cedar by the warm firelight, while he, now struggling, now failing and sinking, was smothered in the horrible waves!

Such thoughts as these filled my brain with ceaseless horror, and all day I lay as one benumbed But suddenly, as it grew dark, and Ellen brought a lamp into my chamber, I was struck by her settled expression of woe. I had forgotten that I was not the only sufferer. That thought gave me strength. I rose, took her by the hand and went down to the other children. I gathered them about me, and we all wept together. Then and not till then did I feel that I could speak to them of comfort.

The next morning our paper came, and its long account of the wreck confirmed the sad tidings. Days passed, slowly, tearfully. I was beginning to realize that we of late such a joyous group were now the "widow and the fatherless.'

It was evening, and we all sat in the little library. The door of the parlor behind us was ajar, but there was no light in there; only one lamp burned on the piano forte, which had been moved into the little room.

Harry lay in my arms asleep, his soft curls falling over his forehead, and half veiling his fresh, fair face.

Ellen and May, one on each side of me, sat at work on morning dresses. Jane, too, in the corner, was sewing black thibet. How different our labor from that with which we had expected to usher in the Christmas Eve!

By and by Ellen looked up with an anxious countenance.

'Mother, are we poor,' she said.

I was glad that I could answer in the negative. 'But,' I added, 'we know not how soon we may be. This great misfortune has taught us that nothing is sure. We must not lean idly on what we possess, but prepare ourselves for labor if need be. To-morrow I wish you all to begin again your studies.

Jane dropped her needle and thread.

'I thought it was understood that the children should go home with me,' she said. 'Perhaps you think I am poor and helpless; but you will find that you are mistaken. On the contrary, I am perhaps better able than you to take care of them.'

This announcement startled me, but there was no need; May threw her arms around my neck and whispered, 'I will not leave you,' while Ellen, her eyes glowing with excitement, answered quietly and firmly—

'Our mother has the best claim on us, Aunt Jane, and until she sends us we will never leave her; we have never been so happy as in this half past year; we love her better than all other friends, and now that our father is gone we will not leave her alone.'

My heart thrilled with gratitude that I could not utter. I could only give my noble Ellen a look of thankfulness, and say—

'I will be as faithful to you as you have been to me, Ellen.'

'Hush!' said May, starting from her seat. 'What was that sound?'

She went to the window and looked out; 'it was only the wind,' she added, and sat down by me again.

Jane shot indignant glances at the children.

'I little thought that when I came here to work and wear myself out for you, that you would so soon desert me for a stranger.'

'Aunt Jane,' said Ellen, quickly, 'remember it is our mother of whom we speak—our second mother to whom we owe so much.'

Miss Fleming was evidently annoyed, but was silent.

'I do hear a footstep,' said May, and again she peeped from out the window, but all was dark and silent.

'My heart ached with the weary discussion, and I made a last attempt at peace.

'Sister Jane—you shake your head, but you were his sister, and must therefore be mine—for his sake I forgive you for the many attempts you have made to turn my children's hearts against me, but forever after let there be silence on this theme. I am no stranger in this house, but hold a mother's place to the children my beloved husband left in my care. For them henceforth, and for them only I shall live and labor. I have thus far tried to do them good, and they themselves bear witness to my success. Trust them to me, and let there be no more harshness between us—for his sake.'

Jane Fleming burst into tears—she wept for a few moments, and her heart was softened.

'Agnes, forgive me!' she said, to my astonishment and joy; 'you think me heartless, but indeed I am not, though I have been harsh. It was my love for my brother and children that made me wickedly jealous of you. But I am now a mourner with you and them. For his sake do forgive me!'

There was a moment of silent, pleased surprise, and then I clasped her hand warmly and called her 'sister.'

Ellen gravely stooped down and kissed her, and little May rejoicing, sprang to the pianofore and sang with her whole heart, 'Let us love one another.'

As she ceased and turned her smiling face towards us, there was a sound behind, a quick footstep towards the hall, the door was flung open, and—

Had one risen from the dead?

'My wife, my children, my blessed Agnes!' said Captain Fleming, his voice hoarse with emotion, and before we could utter a word of welcome or surprise, we were all clasped in his strong, living arms. The rapture of that hour who could seek to portray.

'Forgive me Agnes, for playing the listener—it was not premeditated, but as I came in I heard your voices, and could not but pause a moment before surprising you. How can I ever thank you, how repay you for your love of my children and to me!'

These words and many others fell from his lips, as he clasped me, again with warm affection. I was repaid for all my labor, all my sorrow.

Then followed questions, explanations, words of joy and welcome. His good ship, indeed had been lost in the fearful storm, but the account of the loss of men had been exaggerated in the excitement of the news. Many were lost, but not all. There were other homes of mourning made glad that night as well as mine.

And what a merry, joyful Christmas we had! How the Christmas tree sparkled under its many tapers, loaded not only with the gifts of the children to each other, but with more costly presents to me and to them from their delighted father! How proudly did Ellen lead her father to the pictures her industry had wrought, and say, in answer to his surprise, 'Mother taught me!' How sweetly did May sing her favorite song, and, throwing her arms about her smiling father's neck, say also, 'Mother taught me.'

Very sacred and full of peculiar trial is the position of the second wife, where the children of the buried mother claim her care and love; but if, with a true heart and zeal, she enters into the work before her, rich is her reward, and its pleasures endure forever.

THE HORRORS OF WAR.

A SKETCH—NO. 1.

On a lovely prairie in Wisconsin, at the breaking out of this rebellion, lived a happy family, consisting of a kind and loving husband, his beautiful young wife, and four lovely little girls. Bright prospects were before them for a long and happy life. But war, cruel war, broke out. The blood of our nation began to flow in rivers. The robust youth and middle-aged throughout the country had enlisted. But a call was made for more men. Some towns failed to fill their quotas, and a draft was ordered. The dreaded order to report at headquarters was issued, and sent here and there over the country, carrying sorrow and anguish wherever it went. But our country must be saved was the feeling of every loyal heart. The subjects of our sketch were enjoying peace and happiness, but alas, the order came. The husband was drafted and must go. A thrill of anguish goes through the heart of the young wife as she fondly embraces him for the last time, while the little ones cling fondly to him for a parting kiss, vainly striving to detain him. But he goes forth, followed by fond looks and a hope that he may get exempt and not have to go South as his health is feeble, buoys up the spirits of the family for a while, but a letter comes. He is declared fit for duty, has joined his regiment, and is gone South. A gloom comes over the heart of the wife. She fears she shall meet him no more, the little ones cry and say, "we shall never see our Pa again." But yet there are hopes cherished in the heart that he will return to his home again, and oh, with what anxiety every mail is watched. At last a letter comes from his Company. They have been in battle, and he is among the missing. Sad news indeed, to the family, for it tells too plainly that he is a prisoner in the enemy's hands. Months roll onward, and ages seem to have come and gone to the heart-stricken wife as she seeks in vain to hear some news from the missing one. Oft she folds her innocent little ones to her bosom, in anguish of spirit, while they ask, 'Shall we ever see papa again?" and she speaks to them with cheering words to soothe their sorrows, though her own heart sinks within her vainly striving to be comforted. At last a paper falls into her hands, and in it is a list of Wisconsin prisoners that have died in the hospital in Georgia. With fearful heart she glances over the list. Her eye rests upon a name; a deathly pallor overspreads her cheek while she reads: "Died in June last, of chronic diarrhœa, E. D. Wellcome, of Wisconsin." The paper drops—her hopes have fled forever. She again folds her little fatherless ones to her aching breast, and well might an angel weep as he views the sorrowing group—the widow and fatherless ones. Oh, what burning thoughts quickly rush through the widows heart. If I could have been with him; but he died, alone with his God, among strangers, and lies in an enemys land. No soft hand was there to soothe his aching head; no loving wife to press him fondly to her bosom; no kind voice to cheer him in his last moments, and no friend to give an account of his death. But he died with the christians hope beaming bright in his soul. Oh my God, pity thou the widow and fatherless in their loneliness.

This, dear reader, is only one of the many cases of the horrors of war, and may these things stir up the warm sympathies of hearts, and may we ever be kind to the widow and fatherless.

S. C. WELLCOME.

DRAWINGS FROM HARPER.

From Harper's Magazine for March.

Our youngest boy had been reading some of Mayne Reid's thrilling stories of adventures among the Indians till his mind and heart were, for the time, pretty well filled with their spirit, when one day a friend of his mother sent word inviting her to go on Friday to Dr. H—'s church to join the ladies of the congregation in their sewing society. 'Don't go, don't go, mother!' burst out Master Harry: 'they are sewing for the missionaries among the Indians, and they are trying to convert 'em, and I don't want 'em to, for when I grow up I want to go out there and have a regular fight!'

When General Sherman was in command at Benton Barracks, St. Louis, he was in the habit of visiting every part of that institution, and making himself familiar with everything that was going on. He wore an old brown coat and a 'stove pipe hat,' and was not generally recognized by the minor officials or the soldiers. One day while walking through the grounds he met with a soldier who was unmercifully beating a mule.

'Stop pounding that mule!' said the General.

'Git eout!' said the soldier, in blissful ignorance of the person to whom he was speaking.

'I tell you to stop!' reiterated the General.

'You mind your business and I will mind mine,' replied the soldier, continuing his flank movement upon the mule.

'I tell you again to stop!' said General S. 'Do you know who I am? I am General Sherman.'

'That's played out!' said the soldier. 'Every man who comes along here with an old brown coat and stove-pipe hat on claims to be General Sherman.'

It is presumed that for once General Sherman considered himself outflanked.

Over in Jersey, during the late Presidential canvass, a young lawyer, noted for the length of his neck, his tongue, and his bill, was on the stump blowing his horn for Gen. McClellan. Getting on in his eloquence, he spread himself, and said: 'I would that on the 8th day of November I might have the wings of a bird, and I would fly to every city and every village, to every town and every hamlet, to every mansion and every hut, and proclaim to every man, woman, and child George B. McClelan is President of these United States!' At this point a youngster in the crowd sang out:

'Dry up, you fool! You'd be shot for a goose before you flew a mile!'

And this reminds us, as the President says, of a little story:

A few years since the noted Tom Marshall was delivering an address before a large audience in Buffalo, some one in the hall every few moments shouted, 'Louder! louder!' Tom stood this for awhile; but at last, turning gravely to the presiding officer, said: 'Mr. Chairman, at the last day, when the angel shall with his golden trumpet proclaim that time shall be no longer,' I doubt not, Sir, that there will be in that vast crowd, as now, some drunken fool from Buffalo, shouting, "Louder! louder!" The house roared, Tom went on with his speech; but there were no more cries of 'louder!'

Joe and Commodore Rogers, brothers, blacksmiths in Whitewater, Wisconsin, have a great reputation for being practical jokers. Last summer Joe bought an old fashioned dash churn, for the purpose of manufacturing their own butter; and as the Commodore was a widower and lived with Joe, all such work as churning naturally fell to him. One eve, after supper, the first churning was got ready, and the Commodore was invited to churn. 'Hold on, says he, 'till I go down town and get some tobacer.' He went and while gone Joe did the churning, took out the butter, and left the buttermilk in the churn

The Commodore returned, looked at the churn, took off his coat, and says: 'Wa'al old churn, it's you and I, and here's for ye!' and commenced his labor. After churning a couple of hours, he, remarked that he 'guessed it would be chaper to buy butter than to make it.' 'I think so too, says Joe, 'if you are going to try to churn it out of buttermilk!

A few days after that churning process Joe put one end of a small bar of iron into his large fire gave the bellows three or four pumps, and stepped into the back shop, While gone, the Commodore heated the iron to a black heat, then changed ends with it, and stepped out of the front door to watch progress.

In came Joe, took up the iron, but dropped it instanter, holding up his burned hand, and roared with pain. 'Put on some butter milk, Joe—it's good for a burn! said the Commodore, as he made a masterly retreat amidst a shower of boquets composed of hammers, hard coal and old horse shoes.

The Rev. James Freeman, who formerly preached at the Stone Chapel, in Boston, was a man very small in statue, but highly respected for his talents and the liberal doctrines which he promulgated. One day he was passing down Beacon Street, in company with two very tall ministers, and Mr. F. happened to be between them them, when whom should they meet but the celebrated wit of the day, Matthew Byles. 'Well,' said Mr. B., 'here we have the Bible represented in three parts; the Old Testament on the left, the New Testament on the right, and the little Apocrypha in the middle.

Some years ago the best pilot belonging to Boston was named James Tilley. In his youth he had met with an accident which caused him to become badly humpbacked. He was a genial sort of man, much liked, and was always called upon to pilot the ships of war in and out of the harbor. One day he took out a British frigate, and as he was leavi the ship a pompous officer on boa called out, 'I say, old fellow, what ha you got on your back?' 'Bunker Hil replied Tilley; 'perhaps you have hea of the place before.

Our friend Bull is a glorious go fellow, full of good humor and common sense, but strangely ignorant of what he calls 'the sciences.' One day Miss D— asked him if he ever seen a bazar. Not knowing exactly was a bazar was, he shewdly suspecting that it was some kind of animal our hero replied, 'No, I never saw any wild animals except a bear, two monkeys, and a few other varmonnts. The bazar died before the show got here!'

A lady relative, who lives in a certain town in Vermont, told me last summer this anecdote of a young clergyman who had come to supply the vacant pulpit of the Congregational Church in that place as a candidate for settlement:

He was just out of the Theological Seminary, and had the peculiarity of an extremely boyish size and complexion, which, of course, was unknown to most of the congregation. A little before the hour the new minister made his way, almost unnoticed, into the pulpit, where he was concealed from view by the reading desk in front of him. But an old lady who sat close on the right of the pulpit in consideration of her deafness, was much concerned to see a boy in the place of the expected clergyman. So she very softly arose, stepped on tip-toe to the pulpit stairs, and beckoning with her forefinger, whispered loudly, in coaxing accents, 'Come down, sonny, you musn't sit there; that's the place for the minister!

From one of our brave boys now in Arkansas we have the following:

When the Eighty-sixth Illinois was stationed at Nashville, the orders in camp were very strict. Sentinels were stationed around camp with instructions to allow no one to cross their beats in the night without the countersign, and no one in the day-time without the proper pass, except for water, or on other duty, in squads.

One day, as the sentinels were leisurely walking their beats, a furious wind storm came on, and dashing lumber, shingles, hats, etc., recklessly about swept into camp, upsetting barrel chimneys, throwing off tent flies, prostrating tents, and spreading confusion generally. A soldier passing at the time and nearly losing his balance, called out to the sentinel, 'Say, John! what do you let that cross your beat for?' The sentinel, nothing at a loss, replied, 'Because it came in squads!

This comes from Trenton, Grundy county, Missouri:

When the news reached Trenton of Thomas' great victory over Hood at Nashville, in common with the citizens of the village we illuminated our dwelling. Our children, particularly our little five year old, were greatly delighted. Now our little five year-old is a great boy in his way, and says many cute things. When he had enjoyed the sport for a few hours he became wearied, and went up to his mother, and, says he, 'Ma let's unluminate, for I am tired!' This 'brought down the house,' and ma unluminated.

After Burnside's fight at Fredericksburg, and when the army had become settled in winter quarters, flour was offered for sale by the commissaries. The officers and men glad of the chance to eat hot bread. One day I heard a man in the rear of my tent asking my cook if he could lend him a board to knead bread on. Morey, who was always ready with a joke, replied: 'A board to knead bread on? 'Why I need bread on my stomach!

A hired help of ours being sent to a distant clearing on the farm, was told to come right in when he heard the dinner horn. Scratching his head, he rather comically remarked, 'Sure, an maybe I won't hear it at all, at all! Hadn't I better take it with me, and then, you know I can blow it myself?

A clergyman lately traveling in the Oil Region saw a child in the road stumbling and falling. He kindly picked her up, saying, 'Poor dear! are you hurt? when she cried out, 'I ain't poor! Dad struck a ile well yesterday!

We hear of many mean men and women, but I doubt if any one meaner than this could even be thought of:

Soon after the new 'stamp duty' made its appearance a 'down Easter,' from Maine, Silas Flint by name, entered one of our large stationers here, in this city, (i. e. New York)—the stationer, by the way, was a friend of Silas. After buying a few things the stationer thinking to please Silas, handed him a pack of the best French playing cards. Silas took them, turned them over slowly in his hand, and then looking up at the stationer, said,

Much obliged to you, Mr. Rose, much obliged; but I must just fine you a little. These cards are not stamped!

'Died poor!' as if any one could die rich, and in the act of dying did not lose the grasp upon title, deed and bond, and go away a pauper out of time. No gold, no jewels no lands nor tenements. And yet men have been buried by charity who die rich; died worth a thousand thoughts of beauty, a thousand pleasant memories, and a thousand hopes restored.

An old lady reading an account of the death of a venerable and distinguished lawyer, who was stated to be 'the father of the Philadelphia bar, exclaimed, 'Poor man! he had a terrible set of noisy children.

Salt and Diptheria.—The New Yorkers think that sprinkling the streets with salt to melt the snow is productive of diptheria and its use has been prohibited.

The Old Militia Law Revived.

The Pioneer of the 8th says that the militia law of 1861 and all amendments thereto having been repealed by the last Legislature, and the militia law passed August 12, 1858 revived and given full effect, the Governor has made the following appointments ;

Brigadier General Oscar Malmros, to be Adjutant General, Inspector General and Quartermaster General.

Major Wm. S Dike of Faribault, to be Paymaster General with the rank of Colonel.

Hezekiah Fletcher and Chas. C Hunt to be Aides-de Camp to the Commander-in-Chief, with rank of Colonel.

Colonel Wm. Crooks, Engineer in Chief.

D. G. Shilock, Judge Advocate Gen.
Dr. J. H. Stewart, Surgeon General:
John L. Merriam. Commissary Gen
Major Generals—C. F. Buck, commanding First Division ; H. L. Gordon, Second Division ; C. N. Daily, Third Division.

THE TOWN OF McCLELLAN.—We have received from leading citizens of McClellan, letters in regard to changing the name of that town to McPherson, in which the course of Mr. Harrington is fully endorsed. They would have preferred to have had the name of Franklin, Washington, or some one of our revolutionary heroes, but were willing to accept anything rather than retain the name of a Copperhead. We assure Mr. Harrington that his Republican constituents in this county are well satisfied with his public services, and believe that he has faithfully watched over and promoted their interests.

THE DRAFT.—The draft in both districts commenced on Wednesday. The towns of Medo, Lime and Mapleton are the only ones in this county which the draft will affect.

THE BUGLE CALL.—This is the title of a neat little paper published in Chicago in the service of the great Northwestern Sanitary Fair for our suffering soldiers, to open in that City May 30th. The Bugle sets forth its intentions as follows :

The Bugle Call shows on its face what its object is: We expect to publish four numbers. We will call it a quarterly. The second number we expect to issue just before the Fair, to all subscribers, and have on sale at the Fair ; the third soon after the Fair, to acknowledge receipts, and announce results in our department ; the fourth number we expect to make a "Jubilee" number—celebrating the return of peace and union to our free land, free and united forever—the grandest and best nation the sun shines on, That number we will issue as soon as our Peace Commissioners, Grant, Sherman, Farragut and Porter, send the word—may be it will have to accompany the third number—a grand double number.

Subscription price for the four numbers, 50 cents. Clubs of eight, $2.00, or 25 cents each ; all proceeds to go to the great Northwestern Sanitary Fair.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb 28, 1865.

FRIEND SLOCUM :—I arrived here on Wednesday the 22d inst., and as I rode up Pennsylvania avenue, the guns of the forts around Washington were thundering for a salute for the fall of Charleston. The natal day of the Father of his Country was thus made doubly happy to the American people in the rebellious South Carolina whose sons have plotted treason for the last generation, was sitting in sack-cloth lamenting the desolations which had come over her, and would not be comforted because her chief city which had so long held at bay the 'Yankee vandals,' was now lying a captive at the feet of her conquerors.

Those talismanic words "Sherman is at Colombia" had sent her gallant sons flying ingloriously to every secluded nook and corner of the State, and if the streets of Charleston did run with blood it was not that of the hated Yankees.

Whatever loss of life occurred among non-combatants is to be lamented, but regret is almost universal that the torch could not have been applied by the conquerors. This pestilent city and State, should be re-peopled, and as historic Sumpter stands on a foundation of northern granite so let South Carolina stand on a foundation of northern ideas.

AN INCIDENT IN THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

Being in the Treasury building on Friday, 24th, word was sent there from the War office about 1:30 A. M , that "Wilmington is ours." Soon the tap of the drum called the hundreds of clerks to the rotunda where, after exchanging congratulations, Secretary Fessenden called for three cheers, which were given with a will, when all separated to their respective duties.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU

Is a busy place. None more so in any of the departments. Commissioner Lewis and Commissioner Rollins, and Chief Clerk Richards are all constantly pressed with a multiplicity of duties, but seem to have a happy faculty of turning off finished a large amount of business. Either their powers of endurance are remarkable, or nature will ere long admonish them that there is a limit to human effort. In fact the Commissioner has been obliged very recently to seek relaxation for a few days from his pressing official duties. No one not conversant with the magnitude of the national interests confined to this Bureau, can form any adequate idea of the ability and energy necessary to keep the machinery running as smoothly as it now does. The organization of the Burea in the other departments have been the work of years. This Revenue Bureau has sprung almost as if by magic into full and vigorous life and its operations even now are counted by hundreds of millions.

AN HOUR IN THE SENATE.

I happened in the Senate Chamber on the 22d and listened to a portion of the debate on "Freedman Bureau Bill." Was struck with Garrett Davis newborn zeal for the negro. Manifestly leaving Sumner, Wilkinson, and others of original friends far in the rear. God pity the poor negro when he falls into the hands of such friends as Garret Davis of Kentucky. The bill was lost owing to a provision making civilians resident in certain territory liable to trial by court martial, which provision was thought to be not entirely in harmony with the spirit of our institutions.

What is known as the Louisiana Bill, was defeated on Monday in the Senate by the joint vote of the radicals and pro-slavery men,—both voting against it, but for widely different reasons. It is a pet measure of the President, but will not go through. The would be Senators and Representatives from that and other States will have to wait until another session.

Our Senator is very busy with duties incident to the close of the session. There is such a great press of business at the winding up a Congress. He has made for himself a record here of which any man might be proud. His bold and unflinching advocacy of radical measures, and firm, cordial support of the administration, have made him a popular favorite, not only with the people of Minnesota, but those of other States.

The State Agent for sick and wounded soldiers, J. F. Stock, Esq , a Blue Earth County boy, is discharging faithfully without fee or reward, except the thanks of grateful men, the onerous duties devolving upon him. These duties now occupy almost his entire time out of office hours, as there are a large number of soldiers from the 1st and 8th regiments in the various hospitals around Washington, all of whom want something done for them. He is just recovering from a severe indisposition occasioned by exposure in visiting the hospitals on a rainy day not long since Jeff is anxious to become again a resident of our county. The time is not far distant, I hope, when he may do so.

Hon. D. S. Norton, the new Senator is here ready to assume the responsibilities of his position on the 4th of March

There does not appear to be many Minnesotians in the city now, except those whom public business has brought here. Probably the number will be increased after the 4th of March.

We must push on our railroads. In these days of steam and telegraphs we are too far from the outside world, and if the "mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must go the mountain." Ninety miles from a railroad will never do for the centre of creation, or if that is too strong, say the central point of South-Western Minnesota.

SETTLEMENT OF THE RESERVATION.

I am told by those having in charge the sale of the Winnebago lands that apparently they are largely going into the hands of actual settlers. Many of the recent sales are in small tracts, to parties in the Eastern States, who it is judged intend to occupy soon, as their patents are ordered to be sent to them in our State.

Yours truly, J. N. H.

THE COLORED MAN VOTING.

MR. EDITOR :—I have read in your issue of the 17th inst., an editorial and two communications one signed 'K,' the other by 'C. A. S.,' on the right of the colored people of this State to vote at our elections. The subject is not worn out and ought to be brought before the public in the clearest light possible. I like the frankness with which you have treated it. Editors are not infallible more than other men, but when he throws his paper open for criticisms on himself, I am willing to give him all the credit due to him. There are two phrases in the articles which I never like to see used. First, 'Nigger,' "Nigger on the brain," Second, "Ignorant Irishmen" We can afford to call the one 'black man,' 'colored man,' or any such name without descending to a nick name or anything bordering on it. I may be called an 'ignorant Irishman.' My education was obtained fifty years ago in a school house built of rolling stones and road mortar thatched with straw, no table, no chair, only those used by the teacher, yet few countries have given more facilities for education during the last forty years than Ireland has, and the ignorance of those you allude to is not a want of the knowledge of reading and writing. It consists in the subjugation of the mind to the will of another, hence he is wanting in independent thought and is easily made the tool of cunning, designing men. The parallel between the colored man and the idiot will not hold good if the black man's complaint on that score is not correct, neither was the colonists before the Revolution. One of their chief causes of discontent was 'taxation without representation.' No matter what the amount of knowledge a colored man has, or the amount of taxes he pays, he has no voice in sending a representative to our law making bodies—this is now the matter in debate. I like to see a man throw his whole soul into his subject, as 'C. A. S.' While the editor has taken some of the knots off him I wish to use a little sand paper. He says "the negroes do not want these privileges.' That is a blunder. They want all the rights of man nothing more or less will satisfy either themselves or their advocates throughout the Union. He prays very devoutly 'God deliver me from the social embrace of Afric's shady clouds.' Will the Union be pleased to warn all 'Afric's shady clouds' to keep their brawny arms off him.' He 'will never submit to it, no, never, never.' I am no prophet, or the son of a prophet, but I will predict that if he never gets into purgatory until Afric's shady clouds are thrown round his white neck, he will not get much torture there. He shows much sympathy for the editor; in his advice he says 'do not shudder.' As soon as an editor gets the shuddering fits he ought to resign the chair. I thought the Clay Whig garment was all torn to shreds at the time the Fugitive Slave and the Kansas-Nebraska bills were passed, but it seems not, while from the waist up has gone with Greeley & Co., to form the Republican party. The red, white and blue strip of the old party is still dragging its skirts in the gutters, the last vestige will soon be torn to atoms. What in the world will we do if our people are so foolish as to pass such a law ; as our correspondent says he will then "bid his friends good bye," and go where pure society can be obtained. That is the very place we want to go. When he gets there, I hope he will write.

In my next I will take up the main question involved in the discussion.

Yours, JOHN KELLETT.

OUGHT THE NEGRO TO HAVE THE BALLOT.

MR. EDITOR :—I notice that my communication on the voting privilege of negroes has made quite a stir in the house of the friends of Ham. You, Mr. Editor and several others have each in turn demolished my article and still the bold facts remain. One "H." in your last issue, tells us that he going to smash things, and then does it by quoting a memorial sent to the Michigan Legislature. It is very plain that some white negro wrote that. He asks me how I would feel if I was dark colored. I suppose I should feel very much like a negro ! Now, 'H,' can you tell what that feeling is.

Now, Mr. H, if you know sufficiently of this matter to controvert, come out like a man, and sign your name, or full initials, so that we can know you, or retire from the field.

Now, sir, for work. I said that God stamped inferiority on the black race by the curse of Noah. Slavery did not do it. Neither were all made slaves by that curse, but slavery has been a result of that curse that stamped them for all time as the inferiors of Shem and Japheth. As I can for time past give history, I will call your attention to that and by it judge of the future. How wonderfully has the condition of the descendants of Canaan coincide with the prediction of Noah. Newton, in commenting upon the prophecies, says, "the whole continent of Africa was peopled principally by the descendants of Ham, and for how many ages did the better parts of that country lie under the dominion of the Romans, and then of the Saracens, as they do now under that of the Turks. In what wickedness, ignorance, barbarity, slavery, misery, live most of the inhabitants ! And of the the poor negroes how many hundreds, nay, thousands, have been sold annually and bought, like beasts in the market."

And again : "There never has been a son of Ham who hath shaken a sceptre over the head of Japheth. Shem hath subdued Japheth and Japheth subdued Shem, but Ham never subdued either.' And you cannot put your finger on anything they have done as a race or people that is worthy of note, although they are many millions in number. And in the present struggle in the United States, what part have they taken. Has there ever been a regiment of negroes raised in the free States, out of a population of 225,849 ? If so, where is said regiment. I know that Massachusetts has procured many negroes down South to save her own sons from the ranks, and so have some other States. But is that patriotism either on their part, or that of the negro ? I answer no, sir. The negro North and South has remained an idle spectator in the present struggle so far as he could. The negro enlisting South in our armies have no choice. They are marched in like so many cattle, having no means of support, and getting none unless they will enlist. Ask our returned soldiers about this and see if I am not right. And this is patriotism. When this war broke out many fanatics North said that all the negroes South would rise en masse to assert their rights to freedom and slay on the right and on the left. But I fail to see it gentlemen. History don't yet record it, and is not likely to even to do it. And while the struggle goes on, they still look on, unless forced to enlist, notwithstanding they are the most interested or should be, in the result. If freedom from slavery is not worth fighting for in the name of heaven what is ?

You may talk about their degradation hindering in this matter, but I ask if our Indians are not equally degraded and heathenish, and yet they will fight as well as any men on earth could with their means, when they are trampled upon or even insulted. And so with every nation except the negro race. All debaters on this subject seem to think that we must prove that the negro is not a man or else give him all the rights we possess. Now this is very poor logic. Is not the Indian a man ? Has he had all these privileges ? Is not the Chinaman a man ? has he all the rights of an American citizen ? I say no, he never voted in California so far as I can learn from good authority. But do as our Legislature would have us, and down goes the bars, and the Indians will come pell mell from the plains, and the negro jumping and capering from the South, the former about as wise in law, as buffaloes, the latter a little wiser than cattle in our laws. And these are our lawmakers. Spirits of Washington, Jackson, Madison, and all our departed wise men and heroes. Stand aghast ! The bright glories of civilization in ignorance are dawning upon us.

The present generation may get along with negro equality, but we must look down the vista of time, to see its consequences, and say what will it be 'a hundred years to come,' and still farther on in time.

Let us now look at some figures and see if there is no danger of miscegenation. In the last census I see that of every 100 negroes born, 17 are mulattoes.—nearly one fifth. And now we have in the free States 155,994 blacks, and 69,855 mulattoes. Thus you see, over one third are mixed now, in the free States, and the ratio is gaining every year. And if the political and social ties are given, the increase will be much greater. As the census shows that the mixing goes on more rapidly in freedom than in slavery, not because of intermarriage, as that has thus far been prohibited to a great extent, but because of the licentiousness of negro worshippers in the free States. Let these former restrictions be taken away all over our land, and it will not require a prophet to foresee the result. Mexico and South America present a limited view of our condition in the future. From 1850 to 1860 we gained from 11.15 per cent. to 13 25 per cent. in miscegenation. This investigation I shall continue in my next. Figures won't lie. And in my future articles I shall endeavor to prove that I am the true friend of the negro and the white man ; and that I am actuated by honesty, and not by fanaticism. And shall also show up my opponents in their true light, that the people may see that madness and blindness and monomania is ruling a large portion of the American people at the present day.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—Another beautiful steel engraving opens the March number of this favorite periodical, just received. The engraving has no title other than the two simple lines—

'Oh, I see them sinking, sinking slowly.
Those olden dreams so pure and holy."

The design and execution of this engarving are exquisite. The steel Fashion Plate of this month is a double one, and, as usual, admirably engraved. We need hardly allude to the usual number of wood-engravings, devoted to the illustration of the fashions, &c. The music is "Those Laughing Eyes," a ballad. Among the literary contents we note "Aunt Hester's Story," "A Death Scene," "Tracing Resemblances," "A Story of a household," "My Angel in disguise," "Bitten," (a sad story relative to the famous "Mad Stone," of of which story the leading facts are declared by the author, a physician's wife, to be true,) "Four Bithdays," "Alone, Yet Not Alone," "Passion Flowers," "The Mansion at Lessington," Novelties, Editorials, &c., &c.

Price $2,50 ; 2 copies $4,00 ; 9 copies $16,00 ; 21 copies $35,00. Specimen numbers will be sent to those desirous of making up clubs for 15 cts. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machine are furnished as Premiums. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

Four men were recently picked up in New York, who proved to be "ticket-of leave men," from English prisons. They stated, on oath, that they had been released from prison and their expenses paid to this country, on condition that they should never return to England. The attmpt, on the part of English officials, to make a penal colony of this country, is one of the coolest proceedings that ever came to the knowledge of the public, and is in keeping with British insolence. The men were promptly sent back, making the proceeding rather an expensive one to the British authorities.

LATE WAR NEWS.

Gen. Sheridan and his forces commenced their movement last Monday toward Staunton, when last heard from. Maj. Gen. Hancock was placed in charge of the Middle Military Division during the absence of Sheridan, with headquarters at Winchester.

Deserters in this morning report that Sheridan had routed Early and captured Charlottesville. They report four regiments having gone from there (Richmond) to reinforce Early.

Deserters from every parts of the enemy's lines confirm the capture of Charlottesville by Sheridan. They say he captured Gen. Early and nearly his entire force consisting, of 1,800 men. Four brigades were reported as being sent to Lynchburg to get there before General Sherman if possible.

The Times says a letter from Winchester states that on the 20th ult. a cavalry reinforcement and a pontoon train arrived there, and on the 27th Gen. Sheridan started with about 15,000 cavalry, it is said to operate in the direction of Lynchburg. Some say that Sherman and Sheridan will meet and act together in that direction.

The Herald's Washington special says, authentic information, not from Richmond, has been received, stating that Sherman's advance has reached Fayetteville, N. C. The dispatches also say that Porter's gun boats had reached that point,

New York, March 6.—The Herald's Army of the Potomac correspondent says every fresh batch of rebel deserters that come within our lines reiterate the statement made by previous batches that the rebels are preparing to evacuate both Richmond and Petersburg.

Richmond papers are confident in the belief that Gen. Grant will move soon as the ground is sufficiently hard to permithim to do so. They say he has everything ready for an advance. Our forces are kept watching nightly for Semmes on the James, while the rebels are kept actively watching for deserters from their lines.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota,

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D.C., and indorsed "Bids for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

The City and County.

A Pleasant Surprise.—Monday evening was the occasion of a very pleasant meeting of our citizens at the Presbyterian Church. Appreciating the valuable services of Rev. James Thompson in his efforts to promote the educational interests of our town, our citizens resolved to express their friendship and gratitude therefor in a substantial manner, and accordingly turned out en masse and paid him a donation visit which amounted to one hundred and thirty-two dollars. Messrs. Boardman and Geo. A. Clarke were the finance committee and received the donations of friends as they came in, in sums from one to five dollars. Mr. Thompson was invited to be present, and a team was sent after him; but after he had arrived he had not the least intimation of what was transpiring around him, until called to the stand to receive at the hands of Rev. Mr. Marshal the gifts of a generous and grateful people. Placed upon a table were several large dishes of "floating island," and beautiful cake which were tastefully ornamented with flowers. The money was also placed upon the table, and several articles of value upon a stand near by. The company gathered around the table, and Mr. Marshall, on behalf of the citizens, presented to Mr. Thompson these gifts, in a neat and appropriate speech, of which the following is the substance:

Mr. Thompson, Reverend and Dear Brother: -

It is with feelings of gratitude that the people of Mankato greet you with this pleasant surprise. They have watched with interest your unremitting efforts to increase their happiness, and to promote their welfare, both spiritually and temporally. They have come, without reference to religious sect or name—parents and children—the aged grandmother and the infant in the cradle—and have brought these offerings in their hands, as a memorial of those deeper feelings of affection and love that prompt their hearts. They have not only contributed to you such pecuniary aid as will add to your comfort, but fair hands have also graced this table with such specimens of taste and skill as would do honor to a royal banquet. And since "Winter still lingers in the lap of Spring," they have not been unmindful of such other attentions as will add to your comfort by day and by night.

Please accept these tokens as a pledge of their hearts' devotion to one who has ever been ready, during these many years past, to break unto them the Bread of Life. May you, and your aged companion whose absence to-night we regret, long live in the enjoyment of hallowed peace here on earth, and in the glorious prospect of the rewards of the faithful, in heaven.

Mr. Thompson responded to the above in the following language:

My Dear Brother:

I have no language with which to give utterance to my feelings of grateful surprise and joy, on the present interesting occasion. I have every reason to believe your emphatic statements as to the source from whence these generous expressions of regard have come. I am surrounded by a multitude of smiling faces and generous happy hearts, for whom—like these little daughters* who now hang upon my arms—I have, in other days, earnestly prayed and labored. I rejoice that I have been permitted to live to see the interesting results of the labors of this winter. Nothing would add more to my happiness, now so nearly complete than to have my toil-worn, beloved companion present to participate with me in these joyous expressions of kind regard.

I repeat that I am utterly unable, in accepting these tokens of love, to do justice to my feelings of pleasure and gratitude; and you will therefore, doubtless, excuse me from making any farther attempt at it, in such pleasantly embarrassing circumstances.

* Mrs. Humphrey and Mrs. Cummings

An abundant supply of refreshments was provided by the ladies, which was passed to the company as they were seated, by the committee. The pleasures of the evening were much enhanced by Miss Pease, who sang several fine songs.

We would also state that our resident clergy were kindly remembered in the shape of a large and beautiful cake given to each one.

Meeting of the Agricultural Society.—A meeting of the Agricultural Society of this county, was held at Dr. Clark's office on Monday last.

Lewis Porter, President, in the chair.

On motion it was voted to hold a Fair the coming fall.

On motion of Dr. Clark, it was voted that when the meeting adjourn it be to meet again on the 15th of April, to receive proposals and locate fair ground.

On motion it was voted that the Executive Committee act as a soliciting committee to get new members.

On motion Messrs. Porter, Mead and Miller were appointed a committee to draft premium list and report at the next meeting.

The Treasurer was instructed to procure proper books for himself and Secretary.

It was voted that all who were members prior to January 1865, be considered members in good standing by paying fifty cents each, on or before the Fair.

The meeting then adjourned.

J. M. THOMPSON, Secretary.

Retired.—Mr. Chapman, our efficient and faithful County Auditor for the last two years, retired to private life on Monday last, and Wesley Maxfield, the new Auditor elect, entered upon the discharge of his duties. Our county has been peculiarly favored during the past two years, in having the best Auditor in the State, and we trust the new incumbent will prove himself equally worthy and competent.

Rev. Mr. Thompson will address the citizens of Mankato, at the Presbyterian Church, on Saturday evening at half past seven o'clock.

His object is to make some statements in regard to the success of Woodland Female Seminary, and also to consult with his patrons and friends in order that he may be able to meet, in the best way, the prospective wants of the institution. As the success of the enterprise which he represents, is in the highest degree desirable, not only to those who have daughters to educate, but also to this entire community, we bespeak for him a large attendance.

More Stolen Letters Found.—We are informed by Mr. Truman Postmaster at the Agency, that over one hundred letters more were found by him at his place last week, being a part of those stolen last spring. He was raising up his barn, and had occasion to go underneath to raise the center, when he found them covered with manure. To all appearance they had been dropped through a hole in the floor. The directions are illegible by reason of their remaining so long in the wet. The ends of the envelopes were torn off, and the pieces chewed up, and put back in the envelopes. Nearly all of them belong to Mankato, and contain drafts and deeds. They are now in the hands of Mr Truman, who has written to the Department at Washington, as to their disposal.

Fatal Accident.—An Irishman named Michael Graham whose family resides on Second St. was instantly killed last Monday by the falling of a tree. He was chopping trees for August Warner, about four miles out on the Madison Lake Road, and had just felled the first tree, which, in falling, lodged against another. This tree he was trying to cut down, when a large limb fell and struck him on the head, killing him instantly. The top and back of his head was all smashed to a pummise, and the brains and blood ran out on the ground. His body was immediately conveyed to his residence, a messenger going in advance to tell the sad news to his wife. He was buried on Wednesday, and leaves a wife and five small children, who are in destitute circumstances. Verily, in the midst of life we are in death. We know not what an hour will bring forth.

Personal.—Senator Porter and Representative Harrington returned home last week from St Paul, the Legislature having adjourned. They have labored very efficiently this winter to promote the interests of this section of the State.

United States Marshal Charles Eaton arrived in town on Wednesday last, and after transacting his usual business departed on his way rejoicing.

Chief Clerk of the House, And. C. Dunn, looking hale and hearty, has returned from St. Paul, bringing with him the best wishes of hosts of friends.

Patent Medicines.—Jason F. Wickersham has on hand a large stock of patent medicines, such as Ayer's and Sloan's Medicines; Gargling Oil, Equine Powders, Brown's Troches, Cod-Liver Oil, Costar's Rat Exterminator, Grafenburg Medicines, Wizard Oil, Kennedy's and Jayne's Medicines, Hostetter's, Moffat's and Hoofland's Bitters, of all kinds. Call and give him a share of your trade.

Reduction in Prices of Goods.—In consequence of recent Union successes, our merchants have promptly marked down their goods from 25 to 50 per cent. Among these we mention Messrs. Bradley Bros; H. P. Christensen & Bros; Prael & DuBoisson; White & Marks and Randall & Smith: They are offering good bargains, and our citizens cannot do better than to patronize them now.

Livery.—Ben. Pay has got on hand a good stock of Livery horses, sleighs and cutters of which he will gladly receive a share of the public patronage. Ben is one of the most accommodating men in Blue Earth county, and as this is undoubtedly the last run of sleiging we shall have this winter, the public should have one grand sleighride with Ben's teams. 1w*

New Goods.—White & Marks have just received by Express four cases of new goods just from Boston, consisting of coats, pants and vests, woolen shirts and drawers. Also a fine lot of prints at greatly reduced prices, and a good assortment of cottonades, to which they invite a liberal share of the public patronage, as they are bound not to be undersold.

New Grist Mill on the Blue Earth.—Capt. Dickerson and others, we are informed, are engaged in building a grist mill on the Blue Earth river, about a mile and a half from South Bend, near Coffin's crossing. This will be good news to our farmers.

Church Building.—We are told that in Judson, the coming spring, the citizens intend erecting a new Methodist church. In Butternut Valley, a Congregational church will also be built. In South Bend the Presbyterian Society have purchased the large building north of the hotel stable, owned by Richard Williams, and intend fitting it up as a church, at a cost of six or eight hundred dollars. When these are completed they will have six churches in the Welsh settlement.

Correction.—Mr. Editor: In giving you a list of officers of the Garden City Lodge, I. O. of G. T., last week, in my haste I omitted the name of the W. T.—Alexander Plymate.

S. C. WELLCOME, W. S.

New Settlers Coming In.—Between twenty and thirty Welsh families from Utica, N. Y., will start for this county as soon as navigation opens, and will settle in Judson, Butternut Valley and South Bend.

National Bank.—We are informed that there is a prospect of a national bank being organized in this place this spring, with a capital of $100,000. Leading capitalists are engaged in the movement.

The gathering at the Methodist Mite Society last Wednesday evening was a very pleasant one. The number present was quite large, considering the inclement weather, and the receipts much more than on previous evenings.

The Presbyterian Mite Society will meet at the church next Thursday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Wanted.—A boy to learn the printing business,—one that will "stick" to it

To the Public.—Great reduction in prices of clothing, gents furnishing goods, hats, caps, &c., at Randall's Clothing Emporium. Our motto is 'not to be undersold,' and wishing to close out the present stock preparatory to putting in spring and summer goods, we will sell for the next 20 days from 25 to 30 per cent. below former prices.

The following is a list of some of our prices:

Men's Wool Hats from 50c to	$1.50
" Lined Satinet Pants	2.75
" Hickory Shirts	75
" Undershirts	1.25
" Gray and Blue Flannel Overshirts,	2.00

All other goods in proportion. Also a nice stock of boys' jackets, coats, pants, hats and caps very cheap.

All of our stock was bought when gold was from 20 to 75 per cent. premium, making them, at the prices we are now offering, cheaper than they can be manufactured at the present time. Any person in want of anything in our line, will find it to their interest to call soon.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers. It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours.

MY FRIENDS.

Oh they are precious to my heart,
My chosen friends, the few
Who guard me with affections,
Whose balm and bless me too;
Whose heart keeps echoing fondly back,
In love's eternal tone,
The joys, the hopes the tho'ts, the tears,
That tremble in my own.

To meet the sweet confiding smiles,
Bright with affections dew,
To feel that I am with the meek,
The pure in heart, the true!
To look into their earnest eyes,
Where thoughts the brightest dwell—
An angel's born, an angel's tongue,
Alone such bliss can tell.

And oh, when absent, how I love
To call to mind the past,
To count o'er every word they spoke
Before we parted last;
To gather up each look or tone,
And number every smile,
'Till I am lost amid the gems
That gleam on memory's isle.

My friends, they are not many, yet
I know their hearts are true,
Ah, sweeter than the praise of all
Is friendship from the few!
I'd rather live in kindred heart,
To glory quite unknown,
Than hold a nation in command,
Or fill a friendless throne.

NATHAN AND THE CHEMIST.

A shrewd chemist, devoting himself to the missionary work of building up farming by the aid of his science, pays a parochial visit to one of the backsliders whom he considers most needful of reformation. The backslider—I will call him Nathan—is breaking up a field, and is applying the manure in an unfermented and unctuous state; the very act of sinning, according to the particular theory of our chemist, perhaps, who urges that manures should be applied only after thorough fermentation.

He approaches our plowing farmer with a "good morning."

"Morning," returns Nathan, who never wastes words in compliment.

"I see you use your manure unfermented."

"Waal, I d'n' know—guess it's all right—smells pooty good, don't it?"

"Yes; but don't you lose something in the smell?"

"Waal, d'n' know—kinder hard to bottle much of a smell, ain't it?"

"But why don't you compost it; pack your long manure with turf and muck, so that they will absorb the ammonia?"

"The what?"—gee, Bright!

"Ammonia; precisely what makes the guano act so quickly."

"Ammony, is it? Waal, guanner has a pooty good smell tew; my opinion is that manure ought to have a pooty strong smell, or 'taint good for nuthin'.

Scientific gentleman a little on the hip; but revives under the pungency of the manure.

"But if you were to incorporate your long manure with turf and other material, you would make the turf good manure, and put all in a better state for plant food."

"Waal— (considering) —I've ma'e compos's afore now; dooz pooty well for garden sass and sich like, but it seems to me kinder like puttin' water to half a glass o' sperit; it makes a drink a plaguey sight stronger'n water, no doubt o' that, but after all's said and done, 'taint so strong as the rum. (H w, Buck; why don't ye haw!)

Scientific gentleman wipes his spectacles but follows after the plow.

"Do you think, neighbor, you're plowing this soil as deeply as it should be?

"Waal—(Gee, Bright!)—it's as folks think; I don't like myself to turn up much o' yaller; it's a kind o' cold sile.

"Yes, but if you exposed it to the air and light wouldn't it change character, and so add to the depth of your land?

"Don't know but it might; but I ha'nt much opinion o' yaller dirt, nohow; I kinder like to put my corn and potaters into a good black sile, if I can git it.

"But color is a mere accidental circumstance, and has no relation to the quality of the soil.

(Gee, Bright, gee!)

"There are a great many mineral elements of food lying below, which plants seek after; don't you find your clover roots running down into the yellow soil?

"Waal, clover's a kind of tap-rooted thing—nateral for it to run down; but if it runs down arter the yaller, what's the use o' bringin' on it up?

Scientific gentleman sees a chance for a dig.

"But if you can make the progress of the roots easier by loosening the subsoil or incorporating a portion of it with the upper soil, you increase the facilities for growth and enlarge your crops.

"Waal, that's kinder rash'nal; and ef I could find a man that would undertake to dig a little o' the stratum of the yaller without bringin' much on it up, and board himself, I'd furnish half the team and let him go ahead.

"But wouldn't the increased product pay for all the additional labor?

"Don't b'lieve it would, nohow, between you and me. You see you gentlemen with your pockets full o' money, [scientific gentleman coughs slightly,] talk about diggin' here and diggin' there and turnin' up the yaller, and makin' compos's, but all that takes a thunderin sight o' work. [Gee, Bright! g'lang Buck.]

The scientific gentleman wipes his spectacles, and tries a new entering wedge.

"How do you feed your cattle, neighbor?

"Waal, good English hay; now and then a bite o' oats, 'cordin' as the work is."

"But do you make no beeves?

"[illegible]?

"Do you fatten no cattle?

Yaas, long in the fall o' year I put up four and five head, about the time turnips are coming in.

"And have you ever paid any attention to their food with reference to its fat-producing qualities, or its albuminoids?

"[Gee, Bright,] [illegible] what?

"Albuminoids—name given to flesh-producers in distinction from oily food.

"Oh, never used 'em. Much of a feed [G'lang Buck]

"They are constituent parts of a good many varieties of food; but they go only to make muscle; it isn't desirable you know to lay on too much fatty matter.

"Heh?—keep off the fat, do they?—[Gee, Bright!] Dum poor feed, then in my opinion.

By this time the end of the furrow is reached, and the scientific gentleman walks pensively toward the fence, while Nathan's dog that has been sleeping under a tree, wakes up and sniffs sharply at the bottom of the stranger's pantaloons.

I have written thus much in this vein, to show the defensible position of many of the old style farmers, crusted over with their prejudices—many of them well based, it must be admitted—and armed with an inextinguishable shrewdness. The only way to prick through the rind is to show them a big crop grown at small cost, and an orderly and profitable method, gradually out-ranking their slatternly husbandry.—My Farm of Edgewood.

THE GRAIN BINDER.

A machine that will follow the reaper and bind the grain properly, and as rapidly as it is cut, is certainly a great desideratum. Correspondents of the Rural New Yorker in Illinois and Wisconsin, report the practical success of one of the binders recently introduced. The letter from the latter State, says that without the binder, he can cut with a good team, 12 acres per day, at the following cost, including five men to keep up with the machine in binding:

Seven men 1 day at $2,	$14,00
Board,	3,50
Team,	2.00
Total,	$19,50

Or $1.62½ cents per acre—while with the binder, three men will cut and tie ten acres per day, at the following cost:

Three men one day,	$6,00
Board,	1,50
Team,	2,00
Wire,	2,50
Total,	$12,00

Or $1.20 per acre—aside from the labor saved for the "women folks" in feeding so many extra hands. The Illinois correspondent figures a profit of $5 per day in using the binder, and says that with every allowance, he thinks the machine pays for itself in 15 days' work.

* * *

Kindling Wood.—I would hint to housekeepers who have boys about, always to see that before nightfall they have a good supply of kindling to start the fire in the morning. There should always be enough stored in a dry place to last a week ahead This should be done whether we burn wood or coal. There is nothing so provoking in the morning as to find no kindling wood to build a fire—and afterward to hear grumbling about breakfast being delayed. Every farmer's wife—and I am willing to include all other wives—should never be permitted to be without a supply of good dry fuel whether wood or coal is used, and have it brought into the kitchen the night before. Fuel should always be kept under cover, and handy to the dwelling for use at all times. The boys in a family, the father, or the hired man, if there be one, should always have provided kindling in order that the fires may be started without delay.—A Farmer's Wife.

* * *

"We Plow too Much."—Not at all. We do not plow enough. We perhaps have too much land under the plow, but we do not plow the land that we do plow half as much as we should. Go where we may, we find land that is not half plowed, or half cultivated. Weeds run riot over our broad acres, abstracting the strength and fertility of the land. Good plowing and thorough cultivation would destroy the weeds and develop the inert organic and inorganic plant-food in the soil, and add fifty per cent to its productiveness. To do this it is in many cases necessary to plow less land. We must have more in clover and grass, and less under the plow. We should make more manure, the land would have more time to "rest" and recuperate, and we should find, with certain limits, that the less land we have in grain, the more grain shall we produce.

* * *

Trenching Land.—We had a piece of garden soil turned up to twice the depth of the spade this spring, and planted thereon sweet corn. Alongside was another piece of ground not trenched, and planted with corn at the same time. The corn on the first piece of ground grew luxuriantly through weeks of drought, reaching ten feet in height, and the ears setting very thickly; while the other patch of corn, though highly manured, has not grown more than from five to seven feet in height, and is poorly furnished with ears.—Rural Annual.

* * *

Save the Leaves.—They have a double value. First, in their natural state, as the best of all mulches. There is no protection against frost, and the effect of winter sunshine to compare with forest leaves. In the woods they effectually protect tender plants and flowers, which die when subjected to the exposure of the garden. There is no better covering for strawberry bed and plants; and, for this purpose, a little brush is needed to keep them from blowing away. Secondly, leaves are a most valuable manure when decomposed. Leaf mould is considered by gardeners one of their most powerful fertilizers. In the compost-heap, the barn-yard, the stable, and the pig-stye, they should be freely used. A pile of dry, clean leaves is an excellent resource for bedding animals during the late fall and winter. It greatly promotes the comfort of the animals, and adds not a little to the wealth of the dung heap.—Canada Farmer.

* * *

Mr. L. H. Cutler, of Jefferson Cook county, about eight miles from this city, devoted sixty acres of land to the cultivation of cucumbers for pickles the past season. This is probably the largest plantation of the kind ever known in this country.—Prairie Farmer.

JANUARY 1, 1865.

TWENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY
OF
NEW YORK MERCURY.

The Pride of the Fireside!

In the prime of a vigorous intellectual manhood, the Phoenix of the weeklies begins its flight for the new year, over the wrecks of its flagging and lifeless cotemporaries, with its eye fixed upon the sun, beneath which it owns no rivalry.

The war, which has toppled down whatever is shallow and baseless, has written no wrinkle on the bright ægis of our success. Our features for the issue of 1865 shake the pillars of whatever has heretofore been deemed imperial in serial literature Both sides of Atlantic render us tribute. We shall continue the thrilling romances of Miss M. E. Braddon, necromancer of the strong dark passions, to whom we pay more money annually than the entire capital of our imitators, and add to our American staff the champion jester of the cap and bells, Josh Billings, who will commence with the first of January a series of his well-known inimitable comic papers, written expressly for us, in his irrepressibly convulsive vein. Harriet E. Prescott, the most polished and imaginative sketch-writer living; P T. Barnum, the world famed showman and autobiographer; Miss M, A. Earle, Fairfax Balfour, Dr. J. H. Robinson, and "Ned Buntline," renowned versatile novellette writers, will eke out the sparkling contributions of such facile poets, feuilletonists, humorists, critics, travelers, paragraphists, etc., as Geo, Arnold, W. O. Eaton, Millie W. Carpenter, George Alfred Townsend, Julia S. Ingraham, Edward Willett, George Martial, Joseph Barber, J. A. Paiten, and others, numerous enough and clever enough to run all the papers on the Continent.

The vivid pencils of Darley, McLenan, and White, the first draughtsmen of the age, will make the new volume pictorial, and whatever of fugitive or meteoric note may appear during the year, will be engaged and made available.

In addition to its crisp and telling editorials; its delectable Gossipers' Club, in which the aptest and wittiest poems, caricatures, and burlesques of the time first appear, and its coquetish Ladies' Promenade, to which all the mothers, sweethearts, daughters, wives, and widows of the land subscribe their experiences, The New York Mercury will continue the faitful and cogent

PHOTOGRAPHS OF POPULAR PEOPLE,

higly illustratrative of the oldest, ablest, and artlillest folk of the era; the Great Fashion Article by Jennie June whose sprightly notes upon the latest and most perfect New York modes are suggestive to leaders of society everywhere, and universally consulted both in the metropolis and throughout the country; and commence a series of illustrated Sketches of Grotesque Adventure in Foreign climes during the War, by Alfred Trample; as well as Hints upon Cookery, by Henry Gosting, the metropolitan cuisinier.

The first of the year will inaugurate the thrilling novellette by Dr. J. Robinson, entitled

ALETHE:
OR, THE CHILD OF THE CORD,

which will be followed by a splendid new story by Miss M. E. Bradon, written expressly for the New York Mercury.

Notwithstanding the upward march of every article of luxury and consumption, and our enormously increased outlay for the year 1865, the Star Paper of the Republic, with its forty columns of sterling original matter will continue to be issued at six cents a copy, and sold by all newsmen and periodical dealers in America. Its long and honorable history insures its subscribers against the casualties and fatalities which have swept so many mushroom journals off the board, and left their patrons disconsolate at the loss of their money.

To mail subscribers our terms are, Cash in advance: Single copies, $2 50 a year; three copies, $7; six copies, $13; nine copies $20. The party who sends us $20 for a club of nine copies will receive an additional copy free. Six months' subscriptions received. Canada subscribers must send 10 cents extra for each subscription to pay the American postage. ☞Subscribers should be careful to write plainly the name of their post office, county and State.

Specimen copies sent free to all applicants.

HARPER'S
NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Critical Notices of the Press.

It is the foremost magazine of the day. The fireside never had a more delightful companion, nor the million a more enterprising friend than Harper's magazine.—Methodist Protestant.

The most popular monthly in the world.—New York Observer.

We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellencies of Harper's magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 170,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the American people: and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good wood cuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—Tribune's Guide to American Literature, London.

The volumes bound constitute of themselves a library of miscellaneous reading such as can not be found in the same compass in any other publication that has come under our notice.—Boston Courier.

U. S. 7:30 LOAN!

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that subscriptions will be received for Coupon Treasury Notes, payable three years from Aug. 15th, 1864, with semi-annual interest at the rate of seven and three-tenths per cent. per annum,—principal and interet both to be paid in lawful money.

These notes will be convertible at the option of the holder at maturity, into six per cent, gold bearing bonds, payable not less than five nor more than twenty years from their date, as the Government may elect.—They will be issued in denominations of $50 $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000 and all subscriptions must be for fifty dollars or some multiple of fifty dollars.

As the notes draw interest from August 15 persons making deposits subsequent to that date must pay the interest accrued from date of note to date of deposit.

Special Advantages of This Loan.

It is a National Savings Bank, offering a higher rate of interest than any other, and the best security. Any savings bank which pays its depositors in U. S. Notes, considers that it is paying in the best circulating medium of the country, and it cannot pay in anything better, for its own assets are either in government securities or in notes or bonds payable in government paper.

Convertible into a Six per cent. 5-20 Gold Bond.

In addition to the veryliberal interest on the notes for three years, this privilege of conversion is now worth about three per cent, per annum, for the current rate for 5-20 Bonds is not less than nine per cent. premium and before the war the premium on six per cent. U. S. stocks was over twenty per cent. It will be seen that the actual profit on this loan, at the present market rate, is not less than ten per cent. per annum.

Its Exemption from State or Municipal Taxation.

But aside from all the advantages we have enumerated, a special Act of Congress exempts all bonds and Treasury notes from local taxation. On the average, this exemption is worth about two per cent. per annum, according to the rate of taxation in various parts of the country.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as those issued by the government. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties, or stock companies, or separate communities, only, is pledged for payment while the whole property of the country is held to secure the discharge of all the obligations of the United States.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, the several Assistant Treasurers and designated Depositaries, and by the

And by all National Banks which are depositaries of public money, and

ALL RESPECTABLE BANKS AND BANKERS

throughout the country will give further information and

One night as old St. Peter slept,
He left the door of Heaven ajar,
When through a little angel crept,
And came down on a falling star.
One summer as the blessed beams
Of morn approached, my blushing bride
Awakened from some pleasing dreams,
And found that angel by her side.
God grant but this—I'll ask no more;
That when he leaves this world of sin,
He'll wing his way to that blessed shore
And find the gate of Heaven again.

ST. PETER'S REPLY.

Full eighteen hundred years or more
I've kept my doors securely tied;
There is no "little angel" strayed,
Nor has been missing all the while.
I did not sleep as you supposed,
Nor left the door of heaven ajar,
Nor has a little angel left,
And gone down on a falling star.
Go ask that "blushing bride" and see
If she won't frankly own and say,
That when she found that angel babe,
She found it in the good old way.
God grant but this—I ask no more;
That should your number be enlarged,
That you will not do as before,
And lay it to St. Peter's charge.

FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

IN THE FIELD, Jan. 12, 1865.

We are enjoying beautiful weather; somewhat similar to your April or May weather in the North—clear and warm in day time, but frosty nights. Good sugar making weather. We have a day or two of rain now and then, but no snow. Have not seen a flake of snow this winter, and the thickest ice was two inches—on the 21st and 22d of November. The country is low, swampy and sandy. Timber, pitch pine, cyprus and live oak. Produce, sweet potatoes, sorghum molasses, rice, some sugar, and cotton. Inhabitants, white, black, and yellow and all shades of color between white and black. Both native and African born. Whites, tall, slender, stoop shouldered, awkward and ignorant,—drink whisky, chew, smoke and snuff tobacco. Females and children are as much addicted to these vices as the men and so are the negroes. All are lazy, intemperate, and ignorant. In the cities the slaves are yellow, or creoles,—many of them almost white.

Of the main features of our (20th corps) march from Atlanta to Savanna, you have read in the papers before this time. I will, therefore, give in this, some of the incidents that may be interesting to you, that you may not find in them. We left Atlanta on the 15th of November, moving out on the Georgia railroad, towards Augusta, and destroyed that railroad—ties and iron—to Madison. Here we struck directly south, to Eatonton, thence to Milledgville, the capital of Georgia, destroying the Eatonton and Gordon railroad. At Milledgville, we laid over one day, and destroyed the arsenal. Thence went eastward and struck the Georgia Central Railroad and destroyed it to Millen. We came by that most detestable and horrible place where the rebels kept the Union prisoners. I did not get to see the prison, but many of the boys did. They and the citizens say that the most horrible accounts that have been written about that place are true. No doubt the misery and sufferings of that place far exceed our worst imaginations. The rebels had moved the prisoners away from there a few days before we arrived. We thence took the middle dirt or wagon road between the Ogeechee and Savannah river, passing through Springfield, till we arrived before Savannah, on the 10th of December, and commenced the seige of that place. We invested or besieged the place eleven days and on the morning of the 21st of December marched into the city. The rebels evacuated it leaving over 200 siege guns, and other artillery, and $18,000,000 worth of cotton and on the different plantations around the city about 500,000 bushels of rice, most of it in the sheaf, and several steamboats, and other things too numerous to mention. On New Year's day our regiment crossed the Savannah river on a steamboat to South Carolina, came out about ten miles from the city and camped where we are at present—on General Hardee's plantation, of which nothing remains but the ground and one old house. Sherman's army is now getting ready, and will start in a short time on another raid, which I hope will be the death blow to the rebellion. I do not know where we are going to but think through South Carolina northward.

During our raid from Atlanta, we had dry and beautiful weather—only two days' rain. We burned many millions of dollars worth of cotton, and all the cotton gins, factories and mills of every kind within our reach. The season had been a productive one, and the people had put forth every effort to raise as much produce as was possible, in order to supply the rebel army. But we were just in time to get it, and deprive them of it. The march was fatiguing and severe on us, but we lived so well, that we came out, in better health and condition than when we started. Before we started Gen. Sherman gave the soldiers privilege of taking anything we could eat but nothing more. This was license enough, and the boys took everything they could make use of. The foragers would come in at night loaded with, calves, sheep, hogs, turkeys, chickens, geese and ducks, honey, butter, sugar, molasses, bread and clothing,—for many of them had worn out their government clothes. One would have thought to have seen us when we got through, that one-third of the army were Johnnies, judging from their clothes. But many of the boys, throwed off all moral restraint and thought to make something more than a living. They plundered every house from garret and dug up the gardens in search of money and other valuables. They would search every drawer and cupboard, turn everything up side down Throw the clothing and dishes over the floor, tumble the beds, rip open the ticks and scatter the feathers, and frequently tore up the clothing and destroyed the furniture to gratify their devilish disposition. You will naturally ask why the commanding officers allow such work and why they don't put a stop to it. Such work is strictly against orders, and all a General can do is to give orders. His place is at the head of the column, and there is where he mostly is, and it is impossible for him to see what his men are doing ten or twelve miles to the rear, (for one corps make a file at least ten miles long) and several miles off the road. There is but few of the interior officers, that care what the boys do for most of them are as bad as the boys. Besides, the boys would steal out of the ranks, and slip off through the woods, no matter how dilligent the officers would be, and it would not do for an officer to stop the column to hunt up a man, when he finds that there is one missing, for in that case an army would not get along very fast. The only way to keep men from such work would be to tie them all together with iron cords, and in that case the army would be useless, as many will do about as they please, especially in an enemies' country, in spite of everything. Again, it has become the opinion of nearly the whole army, both officers, and men that this is about the only way the rebellion can be put down effectually. I pity the people of South Carolina, for after Sherman's army passes through it there will be but little left to them, for the army has a particular spite at them for starting the rebellion, and nothing short of complete destruction will satisfy their vengeance. On the raid through Georgia, we took many thousands of horses mules, and cattle. The negroes, men, women and children came in by droves. But many of the best negroes were driven off out of our reach by their masters. The destitution and hardships of these poor creatures are far greater than the northern people can imagine. They are furnished with but one suit of clothes a year, The men one coat, one pairs of pants, no shirt nor shoes. The women, one frock, one skirt, no shoes, and one peck of meal a fortnight. This is the amount of clothing and rations they get, unless they get it by extra work, and the consequence is that they are covered with rags and patches,—so much so that we cannot tell which was the original garment. Old men and women who could hardly walk, and women with children in their arms and children scarcely old enough to get along by holding to their mothers' dresses came into our lines. Many women would carry a child in their arms, and three or four other hanging to their dresses, and carry a large bundle of clothes and bedding for all of them on their heads, and march with us all day, with but little to eat. One woman came with us from Atlanta—290 miles—carried a large child in her arms, about a year old, and a bundle of clothes, on her head.

No man could look upon these neglected and down trodden creatures with a sensation of feeling other than pity, if he was possessed of any moral principle at all. However but few in comparison little know what heartless wretches there are in the world. In the army men act out their true characters. Many were the abuses that these poor negroes had to endure just because they were black. Cursed, blackguarded, kicked and knocked about and abused in every way, and the most brutal manner by these heartless devils, who call themselves Union soldiers, and think it an honor to be known as non-intervention Democrats, and it is a fact that ought to be noted by every man of principle, that these heartless devils, and nearly all profligate persons especially in the army are Democrats. This is enough to sink the name into eternal oblivion. One colored boy about seven or eight years old, happened to get in the way, and a soldier punched him in the side with the butt of his gun, smasing his ribs in, and cursed him and told him to get out of the way "you black devil," and dragged him into a fence corner and left him to suffer and die alone. I did not see this myself but one of my messmates saw the boy about three hours after he was hurt. He was then still alive, but out of his head, rolling and crawing over the ground in the agonies of death. But ask these suffering creatures why they don't stay with their masters and they will tell you, that they would have to suffer just as much from their masters, if they stayed and they might as well suffer hardships, and abuses from us, and then they would have their liberty. They would rather die in trying to obtain their liberty as to remain in bondage. The country from Atlanta to Milledgville is level, sandy and very fertile and the richest part of the State of Georgia, and probably one of the healthiest and best climates in the United States. From Milledgeville to the coast the ground is low, swampy, sandy and fertile, and I believe very unhealthy, subject to ague and yellow fever. This part of the country is very thinly settled, but nearly all the land except the swamps has been tilled at some time or another. The plantations negro huts and other buildings have the appearance of a little town on every one of them. I have counted as many as fifty negro houses on one plantation These are all built of logs, and so are the majority of the dwellings of the whites.

Interesting Questions and Answers Relative to the 7.30 U. S. Loan.

Mr. J. Cooke, of Philadelphia, who for so long a time had the management of the popular 500 million 5 20 Loan, has just been appointed by Secretary Fessenden, the General Agent to dispose of the only popular Loan now offered for sale by the Government, viz.: the "Seven Thirty."

In entering upon his duties he desires to answer plainly the large number of questions daily and hourly propounded to him, so that his fellow countrymen may all understand what this "Seven Thirty" Loan is—what are its peculiar merits,—how they can subscribe for or obtain the notes, &c.

1st Q. Why is this loan called the "Seven Thirty" Loan?

Ans. It bears Interest, in currency, at the rate of Seven Dollars and thirty cents, each year, on every hundred dollars; making the interest as follows:

One cent	per day on each	$ 50	note.
Two cents	" "	100	"
Ten	" "	500	"
Twenty	" "	1,000	"
One dollar	" "	5,000	"

2nd Q. When and how can they be obtained?

Ans. They are for sale, at par, and accrued interest, by all Sub Treasuries, National and other Banks, and all Bankers and Brokers.

3d Ques. When is the interest payable and how can it be collected?

Ans. The Coupons or Interest Tickets are due 15th of February and 15th of August in each year, and can be cut off from the note, and will be cashed by any Sub-Treasurer, U. S. Depository, National or other Bank or Banker.

4th Q. When must the Government pay off these 7.30s?

Ans. They are due in two years and a half from the 15th of February, 1865; viz.: on the 15th of August, 1867.

5th Q. Must I receive back my money so soon as 1867?

Ans. No! not unless you yourself prefer to do so—the Law gives you the right to demand from the Government, at that time, either your money or an equal amount at par, of the famous and popular 5 20 Gold Bearing six per cent Loan.

6th Q. How much do you consider this privilege of conversion, into 5.20 Loan to be worth?

Ans. 5.20s bearing Gold Interest from 1st of November, are to day worth 9 per cent. premium. If they are worth no more at the end of the two years and a half, when you have a right to them, than they now are, this premium added to the interest you receive, will give you at least 10 per cent. per annum for your money—but the opinion is that they will be worth more than 9 per cent. premium at that time.

7th Q What other advantage is there in investing in the 7.30 Loan?

Ans. It cannot be taxed by States Counties or Cities, and this adds from one to three per cent. per annum to the net income of the holder, according to the rate of taxation in various localities. All bonds and stocks, except those of the United States, and all mortgages, &c, are taxed, not only by the Government, but by States, Counties and Cities.

8th Q. How does the Government raise the money to pay the interest, and is it safe and sure?

Ans. The Government collects, by taxes, internal revenue, and duties on imports, fully three hundred millions each year. This is nearly three times as much as is needed to pay the interest on all the debt, and as soon as the war is ended, the amount not needed to pay the interest will be used in paying off the debt. Our Government has twice paid off all its debt, and can easily do so again. The interest is sure to be paid promptly, and the debt itself is the very safest investment in the world. It is as safe as a mortgage on a good farm, and pays a better interest, It is, in fact, a First Mortgage on all lands, all incomes all railroad and canal bonds, and bank or other stocks, mortgages, &c.

Nothing can be safer, for we are all bound for it, and all that we have is firmly held for the payment of principal and interest. How foolish those people are, who keep their gold and greenbacks idle and locked up, or purchase mortgages or railroad stocks and bonds, which pay only 5 or 6 per cent. interest when these Seven-Thirties pay (counting the premium on Five-Twenties,) over ten per cent., and are so much safer and surer.

9th Q. How many Seven-Thirties are there, and how much remains unsold?

Ans. There are only about three hundred and twenty-five millions authorized by law, and only about one hundred and ninety millions remain unsold.

10th Q. How long will it take you to sell the balance?

Ans. There are about 800 National Banks all engaged in selling them; also a large number of the old banks, and at least three thousand private bankers and brokers, and special agents will be engaged in all parts of the country in disposing of them to the people.

11th Q. How long will it take to sell the whole.

Ans. In less than three months they will be all sold, and will no doubt then sell at a premium, as was the case with the old Seven-Thirties, the first Twenty-Year Loan, and the Five-Twenties.

The above questions and answers, it is believed, will give full information to all. If not, the General Subscription Agent, or any of the Banks or Bankers employed to sell the Loan, will be glad to answer all questions, and to furnish the Seven-Thirties in small or large sums (as the notes are issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000,) and to render it easy for all to subscribe—thus fulfilling the instructions of Mr. Fessenden, who earnestly desires that the people of the whole land, (as well as the capitalists,) shall have every opportunity afforded them of obtaining a portion of this most desirable investment:

Let none delay, but Subscribe at once, through the Nearest Responsible Bank or Bankers.

Petroleum Millionaire.

A somewhat rustic air of one of the fortunates of the oil reigion, whose income is several thousand a day, concluded to see the wonders of the East. So putting a few neccessaries into a common traveling bag, he set off for Philidelphia. Stopping at the Girard and asking for a good room, the landlord said:

'You can have a room, but we shal' be obliged to demand pay in advance.

'Well, sir, I think I can not only pay for my room,' replied Petroleum, 'but buy your entire hotel. What's your price?' So saying he posted off elsewhere,

After driving and luxuraiting to his heart's content in Philadelphia, and making a present of a fine span of horses to a livery man who had treated him well, he proceeded to New York.

One of his first calls there was on Ball & Black.

'Have you any diamond rings?'

'Yes,' said the clerk, and showed him some of two hundred dollars value.

'Pretty,' said Petroleum, 'haven't you any finer?'

'Yes, here's one at five hundred dollars.'

'That's better—that shines, but is this the highest priced one you have?'

The clerk looked amazed and suspicious, but brought another at two thousand dollars.

'Oh!' said Petoleeum, 'that's brilliant—that suits better, I like that, but an't there anything more styleish yet?'

The clerk, dumb-founded, displayed a six thousand dollar diamond ring, the most valuable in the store, and his customer, exhibiting great wonder and joy in surveying it asked:

'Now hain't you nothing higher, better?'

'No,' said the clerk, 'that's the best in the country,' never dreaming the fellow could buy it.

'Well,' said Petroleum, 'I'll take that,' and forked over his six thousand.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.—We learn from the Eri Dispatch that on Saturday last the long talked of experiment of exploding a submarine torpedo in an oil well, to enlarge its producing capacity was tried in the 'Ladies' Well,' on the Waston Flats, below Titusville. The torpedo contained 8 pounds of powder, and was applied at a depth of 463 feet. The explosion caused the oil and water to shoot out of the well some thirty feet into the air, and made the ground groan like a great monster in the agonies of death. The flow of oil, water and paraffine continued for some ten minutes, when the disturbance subsided gradually, and oil appeared on the surface, as fast as it could be dipped out with a hand pump. The well was one which had ceased to yield, on account—as is supposed in most such cases—of the veins or seams, from which the oil flows, becoming filled up with paraffine.

The experiment was made by the inventor of the appliance, a Mr. Roberts of New York, who is about to introduce the torpedo for general use. It is constructed upon the percussion plan, and so arranged that it will explode after it has reached a depth to where it is intended to produce the desired effect. It is a well known fact that the reaming of an oil well sometimes enlarges it so as to greatly increase the yeild of oil; and also that the agitation of it, either by pumping or forcing air into it, generally has the same result, Hence it has been concluded that if an appliance could be used by means of which the sandstone or oil-bearing rock could be broken up or rent assunder, that of course the yield or oil of many small veins might be secured for the same well. Mr. Roberts, appliance is constructed to produce this result, and the first experiments made with it indicate that the plan will prove a success.

A Double Mistake.

A Paris correspondent tells the following singular story:

A very amusing historiette is told of Count M., a gentleman of fortune, his wife and a young man who may be designated as a Mr. A. The latter a simple clerk in one of their railroad offices, and the Count, are cousins. The countess, a very beautiful and rather conceited woman, lived unhapily with her husband. For more than a year past she has been under the idea that young A was desperately in love with her. Every look the gentleman cast upon her when they met, every pressure of the hand, every new vest, every fresh growth of moustaches—was interpreted as an evidence of ardent, though pent up love. One night quite late, Mr. A. heard a ring at his door. Upon opening it, to his great surprise he beheld his nocturnal visitor, the fair countess, attired in a traveling dress, and carrying in her hand her jewel case.

'Henry,' said she, throwing her arms around his neck, 'I have come to requite your long and faithful attachment.'

'What attachment? I don't understand you!'

'Your attachment to me! I have read it in your every look for months past. You love me! My husband is a monster. Let us fly to some distant land!'

'Nonsense, ma'am! I love you! I never thought of such a thing! You must have been dreaming. As to flying to some distant land—you know very well that I am employed, dependent for bread upon a modest salary. How the dence are we to live in your distant land. I should like to know?'

'Here are my jewels. Our wants will be trifling—'

'Pooh! Pooh!—you don't want me to live on other peoples diamonds, do you? Let me beg of you to return immediately home.'

The lady sobbed and ought to have been tempting. 'I cannot,' she said. 'It is too late. I seized the occasion when the Count went to the opera this evening, to write a letter avowing all—my love for—your passion for me—my flight with you. By this time the letter is in his hand, and if I go back he will murder me!'

Here was a pretty business to be sure. The lady wept and the gentleman burst into a cold perspiration. Presently a sharp ring was heard at the door. Poor A. turned pale, not doubting that his enraged cousin had come for satisfaction. Nerving himself to the effort, he hid the Countess in a closet, and went to the door. It was the Count who had pulled the bell; but instead of being in a violent rage, he only looked anxious, 'Henry,' he said. 'I want you.'

'I am ready!' was the stoical reply.

'That's right, old boy! I knew I must depend on you. The facts are these—I went to the opera, and ought to have been at home at eleven o'clock; but as I was leaving the theatre, some friends met me, insisted upon my supping with them, and kept me till this moment. You know what a jealous fury my wife is. You must go and make peace with her.'

'Then you have not been home?'

'No.'

What a load was off poor A.'s heart! 'I'll do my best,' said he. Go and wait for me at the Tortoni. I will rejoin you in an hour.'

Off went the husband, as soon as he was safely at a distance, A. quickly conducted the Countess to her residence, returned to his friend, and gaily slapping him on the shoulder, assured him that 'it was all right.' The unconscious Count went home a happy man, and so ended the adventure; but it may be supposed the lady entertains anything but tender sentiments towards her husband's cousin.

From Between the Lines.

The Bermuda Hundred correspondent of the Philadelphia Press relates the following humorous incident:

Persons must not suppose that the utmost feeling of bitterness constantly prevails between the two armies now confronting each other. Whenever picket firing is indulged in, the most venomous feeling is apt to prevade both sides, and if one is imprudent enough to exhibit his head to the other he is most certain to get a bullet through it. The front of Richmond, very unlike Petersburg, there is no firing. The pickets not unfrequently, and in different ways, manifest the most cordial feeling for each other,

The colored soldiers are by no means an exception in advancing or reciprocating this harmonious intercourse. A few days ago this cordial feeling was thrillingly illustrated in the vicinity of what is known as 'The Graveyard,' not far from Dutch Gap. Between the two lines there is a considerable quantity of corn, which the rebs in their haste were obliged to leave ungathered. For some time the rebs were rather indisposed to allow our men to pluck the excellent ears, and not unfrequently fired upon them, and claimed the undisturbed privilege of reaping this entire harvest. By mutual consent, however, foraging parties of both armies were permitted to gather corn without fear of molestation, and more recently they have been meeting in the field for the same object.

On one of these occasions a hog suddenly appeared, from somewhere, to the intense gratification of all parties. Both Yanks and Rebs joined in the chase with much animation, and upon the best of terms. The anxiety of the Johnnies to catch the squealers induced one of them to try a shot, the report of which, especially the whizzing of the ball by the head of one of our men, brought the bluecoats to a defensive attitude, who shouted 'Hilloo, Johnny! what do you mean?' 'I am not shooting at you,' replied grayback, but at that other hog.' The explanation was satisfactory, and the Johnnies being the hungriest, captured porky.

Live Within Your Means.

We don't like stinginess. We don't like economy when it comes down to rags and starvation. We have no sympathy with the notion that a poor man should hitch himself to a post and stand still, while the rest of the world moves forward. It is no man's duty to deny himself every amusement, every luxury, every recreation, every comfort that he may get rich. It is no man's duty to make an iceberg of themselves, to shut his eyes and ears to the sufferings of his fellows, and to deny himself the enjoyment that results from generous actions, merely that he may hoard wealth for his heirs to quarrel about. But there is an economy which is every man's duty, and which is especially commendable in the man who struggles with poverty—an economy which is consistent with happiness, and which must be practiced if the poor man would secure independence. It is almost every man's privilege, and it becomes his duty to live within his means, not to, but within them. Wealth does not make the man we admit, and should never be taken into the account in our judgment of men; but competence should always be secured, when it can be, by the practice of economy and self denial to only a tolerable extent. It should be secured, not so much for others to look upon, of to raise us in the estimation of others, as to secure the consciousness of independence, and the conscious satisfaction which is derived from its acquirement and possession.

"BROKE OF HIS REST."—About the drollest man alive is a chap now in Chicago, well known in northern Vermont by the name of 'Tim Wait." Say what you might to Tim, he was always ready with a repartee, and a good one. On one occasion he came into a hotel at Burlington, looking rather jaded and down in the mouth.

'What's the matter, Tim?' said one of the company. "You look rather the worse for the wear."

'Why, you see,' said Tim, 'I havn't slept a wink for three nights—last night to-night, and to-morrow night.'

Having left the bar-room in a roar, Tim went to make up his loss by a triple snooze.

A SISTER'S INFLUENCE.—'I was drunk once,' said a young man, "and I shall never forget it. In company with several other jovial fellows, I was induced to drink pretty freely, and by the time I got home scarcely knew where I was, or what I was doing. I was put to bed, and how long I lay there I don't know, but when I awoke my sister was sitting beside the bed engaged in sewing. The moment her eyes fell upon me she burst into tears and she wept as if her heart would break. Overwhelmed with shame for my conduct, I then formed a resolution never to get drunk again. I have adhered to that resolution for some years, and I mean to keep it.'

Hotel Prices in Washington.

Artemus Ward says he went to Washington, and put up at a leading hotel, where, seeing the landlord, he accosted him with—

'How d'ye do, Squire?'

'Fifty cents, sir,' was his reply.

'Sir!'

'Half a dollar. We charge twenty-five cents for looking at the landlord, and fifty cents for speaking to him. If you want a supper, a boy will show you the way to the dining room for twenty-five cents. Your room being in the tenth story, it will cost you a dollar to be shown up there.'

'How much do you ax a man for breathin' in this equinomikal tavern?' said I.

'Ten cents a breath.' was his reply.

Sharp Practice.

Lord's Cincinnati Detector makes a statement concerning the way in which some of the new National Banks are started in the West, that seems rather interesting, and we therefore quote it:

A bank is organized with a nominal capital of $300,000. The sum of $100,000 is subscribed and paid in. This is invested in United States bonds, which are deposited with the Comptroller, and $90,000 in currency issued. This is used indirectly for purchasing other bonds, and a further installment of $81,000 is obtained in currency. This is again used, and in other installments of $73,000 in currency are received, and so on ad infinitum. Thus the bank (National) has a bona fide capital of $100,000, and secured and deposited bonds to the amount of $271,000, and has in circulation notes to the amount of $244,000. Put these together, and we have $515,000 standing on $100,000. Now look at the profits: Interest on bonds equal in currency to $37,940; interest on circulation, at 8 per cent, $14,640; total, $51,880!"

HOW TO DIRECT LETTERS.—A correspondent of the Pioneer, in the 10th Regiment now below New Orleans, in a recent letter to that paper says: "We receive but very little mail now-a-days, and if we keep traveling as we have been for three weeks, we shall not probably get many letters till we get out of the service. I would recommend friends at home to direct letters thus: "10th Minn. Vols., 1st brigade, 1st division, Gen. A. J. Smith's command via Cairo.' If we go around by the coast letters may get to us as quickly via New York, but in any event via Cairo, Ill., is the safest route as far as we have experienced."

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made the following decision:

When a party executes a bond to a bank for a sum of money, and assigns a mortgage to the bank as security for the payment of the bond at its maturity, both the bond and the assignment of the mortgage are subject to stamp duty. The fact that stamped collateral security is given does not exempt the principal instrument from stamp duty: neither would the stamp upon the principal instrument relieve the collateral from stamp duty.

THE BLACK QUESTION AGAIN.

Our readers have probably noticed that our comments weeks ago, adverting to the action of the Legislature proposing to exclude the word "white" from our State Constitution, have had the effect of inducing considerable newspaper discussion in this matter. Our own views are not changed in the least by any comments of our correspondents, but we are now, and intend to remain opposed to this amendment, and when the election draws near which is to decide the matter, we shall, in our columns do all we can to defeat it before the people.

We are opposed to the amendment because it is too wide-sweeping; and because, if adopted, it increases, and will constantly tend to increase and swell the number of our ignorant, unintelligent voters, while good policy dictates that a nation should, from time to time, raise the standard of education necessary to constitute one a voter. We believe that no white man ought to be allowed to exercise the rights of a voter in this nation who is not intelligent enough and able to read the constitution of the country in which he was reared or has sworn to defend. We are not, consequently, in favor of waiving this degree of intelligence in the black race as necessary to entitle them to vote. We have faith in the black race. We believe that only give them a chance they will show that they have sufficient capacity, and will educate themselves sufficiently to constitute them good citizens, and to entitle them to the exercise of the elective franchise. But the negrophobists of Parson Griswold's stamp ask altogether too much, when they ask us to let down the bars of a nation's only safety—the education and intelligence of its people—and to allow to enter without any check whatever, the millions of the black race who are, at present, many of them, the personification of ignorance and degradation. It is the very life and salvation of a republican government that its citizens are intelligent and educated. The more intelligent they are the more stable is the government, and every lover of true republicanism ought never to allow this standard to be lowered. It is true that in Massachusetts and in some other States negroes do vote; but they are required to read. And whenever our Legislature will require this, we will say amen to excluding the word "white" from our constitution, and not before.

We will look for a moment at one or two points in C. A. S.'s article of last week, and then turn the matter over to our correspondents, who we notice, are amply able take care of him. It is not necessary to go back six thousand years to prove that the negro race is inferior to the white race. It is labor thrown away, and C. A. S. might use his pen to better purpose. It is admitted that, as a race, they are inferior to the whites; but it is not admitted that they are not human beings, having forms similar to the white man, possessing mind and heart, and soul, and intelligence in a degree according with their means of development. We do not believe that there is anything in the physical or mental organization that would preclude the possibility of their being educated up to a standard with the white man. Give them a chance to improve; place before them the means for acquiring knowledge, and they seize upon it with avidity. There are different classes of intellect among all races of men, and the black race is not an exception. We have the ignorant as well as the intelligent white man. The one intelligent because he has improved his advantages and developed his intellect; the other ignorant because he has not improved his advantages, but preferred to live in darkness. There are individual cases of superior intellect among the blacks, and if education can develop the minds of a few, and make them superior, intellectually to many white men, why may not its operations be as effectual upon a majority of the race when the means of improvement are afforded them. The white man votes, first, because he is white, and second because he has complied with the restrictions in the constitution of the United States, and the laws of the State in which he resides. Ignorance is as much a qualification as intelligence, and there is no incentive but that of color to urge a man to vote. Place restrictions upon the elective franchise, and require all, white and black, to conform to certain requirements before they can cast a ballot and there would soon be a different standard of intelligence in our country.

We know that the negro has been regarded as a degraded and worthless being, who had no claim upon the kindness of the white race, and it has been asserted that "all the inhabitants of the globe have some good as well as ill qualities except the negro." We do not believe they were originally intended for the state of degradation they are now in; but the tyranny of their rulers and their want of proper education has tended to keep them down, on a level with the brute creation. How any man who claims to have a spark of christian love and sympathy in his soul, and who aims to be governed by the divine teaching, can entertain sentiments towards his brother like those set forth by C. A. S., we cannot see. It is certainly fortunate for the negro that such christians were not born black. But, for the present, enough of this.

C. A. S. is decidedly ante-deluvian in his notions. His prejudiced views about the ever to be inferiority of the negro and his absolute degradation, etc., this war has completely upset. He is decidedly behind the age, and his arguments, tho' perhaps considered unanswerable in pro slavery times, the negro troops in this war, to the rallying cry of John Brown's soul is marching on' have, on many a battle field, with their heart's blood, answered them well and effectually. Is he so ignorant of the present struggle that he asserts that there never was a regiment of negroes raised in the free States? Why, old Massachusetts, two years ago raised a full regiment recruited solely from her own and New York State. Connecticut, Ohio, and other States have done so. He says the negroes will not fight. Their blood moistened the heights at Port Hudson equally with the whites. Says Gen. Banks in his report: "Port Hudson could not have been taken except for my negro troops, and for their bravery on that occasion I allowed them to inscribe on their banners 'Port Hudson.' They fought spendidly at Milliken's Bend. They have led the forelorn hope in Grant's army. They have participated in the reduction of Fort Fisher. They were the first troops that entered the city of Charleston. The swarthy black soldiers have done what they could to fight for the old flag whose folds now protect them. If they have not done as well as our white soldiers do not let your prejudice rob them of the share of praise which is their just due. He cannot stand them. But Gen. Lee the rebel can, and thinks they will make good soldiers, and demands that they shall be armed and scattered through the rebel regiments o white men. He thinks the emergency demands that a little prejudice of color should be disregarded.

Our correspondent seems to be terribly frightened about the dangers of Miscegenation. He builds his man of straw made out of misstatements, and then of course demolishes it. We deny that one-fifth of the negroes born according to the last census, are mulattoes. We do not care a fig whether it is so or not, but we deny that it is so. We deny his further statement that miscegenation goes on more rapidly in freedom than in slavery. If he is so confident that figures will not lie, why does he give us no statistics on this point, and not give us simply his own inferences and unsubstantiated conclusions? If he will take pains to investigate and inform himself, he will find that the negro population does not increase as fast in freedom as in slavery, and the reason is, because in the south Miscegenation without hindrance is carried on to an alarming extent and openly winked at. When he quotes the census as his authority in the future we wish he would give us not his own inferences, but the naked figures, and number of the page of his authorities. We have read over his last article carefully, and as most of it is simply a tirade against the negro, with a little biblical knowledge about Shem and Japheth, whom we supposed died thousands of years ago, and were buried, we say to these dead arguments of his "let the dead bury the dead."

THE PROSPECTS OF HIGH WATER.

The quantity of snow which has recently fallen will warrant the that we shall have plenty of water for navigation in the spring. The thaw of a few weeks ago, filled up all the sloughs and creeks, and it will not take so much to saturate the ground: consequently all the surplus water will find its way to the river. Our exchanges in different sections of the State all speak of the immense quantities of snow that has fallen in the pineries, and along the borders of the lakes and streams tributary to the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers. We can safely predict a heavy freshet in the Spring.

The Shakopee Argus speaking on this subject, says:

'We learn from a returned trapper from the vicinity of Big Stone Lake, that in all that region there is now four feet of good solid snow. This being the case we may look for a heavy freshet in the spring and a good season of navigation.'

The Hastings Independent gets jubilant over the prospect.

'Our lumbermen are getting the scowl off their faces and are beginning to wear a genial smile over the prospect of getting their logs down this spring. Three feet of snow in the pineries, and the logs of three years cuttings to come down. Hurrah for the raftsmen.

The St. Cloud Times says:

'We learn from those coming from the woods, that the snow lies full two feet deep in the pineries. This will be worth thousands of dollars to our State.'

The Minneapolis Atlas says:

'The heavy falls of snow and rain in the pineries above there gives the assurance of a fair tide of water in the spring amply sufficient to bring down from fifty to ninety million feet of logs.

Speaking of high water the Pioneer says:

'According to old times custom, this season will be one which will cause the hearts of river men to rejoice. Every seven years the Mississippi and its tributaries have put on airs. It is a general rule, and we hope to see no exception this season. Old boatmen predict it, the Illinois, Ohio and other rivers south are already on a bust and doing finely. If we do not get good water, during the season, or a large portion of it, look out for business. Everybody will be red hot, steamboats and all.

Drafted Men who Have Paid the $300.

The Pioneer says that the law enacted over a year ago on this subject is that the payment of the $300 exempts for a period not over one year, in the discretion of the Provost Marshal General. Persons who paid therefore when drafted in July last, and were drafted again in September, were not required to report—the 'discretion' of Gen. Fry being embodied in a general order to this effect. In this draft many of those same persons have again been drafted.

The Provost Marshal here has an order not to muster in such persons at present, but to await further orders on the subject.

The only disposition therefore which will be made of such persons until further orders will be to furlough them. The impression at the Provost Marshal's office here is that they will not be required to serve under this draft, during the year from the payment of the three hundred dollars.

FLOOD AT CAIRO.—A dispatch from Cairo, says:

The river continues to rise, and is threatening to overflow the city. The deck of the receiving ship is now on a level with the top of the Ohio levee. The weather is fine.

FRESHET AT CINCINNATI.—A dispatch from Cincinnati of the 6th, says:

Within the last few days the Ohio river at this city has risen to an unprecedented height. It has already reached the second story of houses at the foot of Main and Syracuse streets and is still rising slowly. Such a freshet is unequalled in the memory of the oldest inhabitants."

CAPT. SEE REMOVED.—We notice by the Press, of the 11th inst., that Capt. See, Provost Marshal of this District, has been removed. No reason is assigned. Ormanzo Allen, of Austin, Mower, county, has been appointed in his stead. This change makes an entire new Board, which stands as follows:

Capt. Ormanzo Allen, of Austin, Provost Marshal.

Reuben Reynolds, Esq., of Rochester, Commissioner.

Dr. J. T. Cross, Rochester, Surgeon.

The St. Paul Gas Company have failed to keep up a supply of gas on account of a lack of coal. The result has been that every business house in the city has "struck Ile," and are doing a smashing business.

NEGRO SUFFRAGE ONCE MORE.

MR. EDITOR:—I see that C. A. S. favors us with another long article upon the above subject in reply to my last and in said article chooses to use blackguardism and low cunning rather than sound logic. He reiterates the story of the curse pronounced upon the black race. Suppose the position taken by Mr. S. upon this question can be sustained, (which well versed theologians do not admit) and how does it affect the question at issue. The question is simply what are our duties as the case presents itself to us to day. The Jews were God's favored people. Does this entitle the itinerant clothing dealer who jews us to any special privileges? Equal rights to all men must be our motto. If I am not misinformed, John Chinaman in California, casts his ballot and manages his own affairs in his own way. The Indian, as he assumes the habits and dress of civilization, can do the same thing. The ignorant foreigner of whatever clime, is often, before he understand our language or knows what we mean by liberty, allowed the same privileges as ourselves.

Now what the black man asks is simply what we cheerfully give to all else. The right to be—to control his own interests, and to advance in scale of civilization and refinement as God has given him ability. Unlike the Indian, his habits and inclinations are all in the direction of civilization. Notice the reply of those black men at Savannah, when Gen. Sherman asked 'what do your people want for themselves'—and by the way this is the first time in the history of the nation when this inquiry has been put to them? They say "we want homes—we want land to till—we want a chance to earn our own support."

Now Mr. S, does the book from which you preach prompt you to treat this people as an accursed race—to see them buried fathoms deep beneath an unjust prejudice, or with your foot upon their necks, turn and say 'what has the negro ever done worthy of note,' If I read it correctly, it says, "As ye would that others should do unto you do ye even so unto them." I might cite you to many cases where the negro has surmounted all the obstacles in his way and achieved and enviable reputation, but it is unnecessary.

The gentleman seems to be laboring under the impression that the black man has stood an idle spectator of the present conflict. Will some one lend Mr. S. a newspaper? The general reader does not need to be informed of their unflinching loyalty and interest in the Federal cause. Neither have I time nor patience to demolish the man of straw, which my opponent has set up and named Miscegenation. As sure as there is a God in heaven, no serious results will follow a simple act of justice. There are other strange misstatements in the article referred to, which I have not space to notice.

Finally, Mr. Editor, give the gentleman three or four columns in which to reply to this (he must have room to sling ink, as A. Ward says, for in this his chief strength lies) and then we will drop the subject for the present. A any rate I will not try your patience again,

Yours,

M. B. HAYNES.

SHALL THE NEGRO HAVE THE RIGHT TO VOTE?

MR. EDITOR:—Allow me if you please, the privilege of making a few remarks in reply to C. A. S.'s communication, recently published in your paper, against the elective franchise of the free colored people of this State. He has like many others, resorted to the Scriptures to prove that the great question now before the public mind, and soon to be acted upon by the people of this State (the rights of franchise to the colored man) are derogatory to us as a people and as a nation. What! the great principles handed down to us by our forefathers, to be trampled upon by some scriptural quotations that have no reference to the negro, whatever. I answer nay; you may quote Scripture until dooms day, and then you will be just as near the question under consideration as now. Be admonished of one thing, sir, (before you expose your ignorance too much) that "it is hard to kick against the pricks." Public sentiment will not sustain you in your assertion.

You said in your first article that no one would deny that the negro was the descendant of Canaan. I deny it, most emphatically. There is not a particle of proof within the lids of the Bible whatever, that shows the origin of the colored race. Bring on the proof to your assertion. Quote Newton again, if you please, and all other commentators. You cannot prove their origin or the right to disfranchise a man because he is a man of color, by the Bible.

You say that Noah had three sons, and of the three Ham was the runt of society. In what respect, sir, physically, morally or mentally? You are silent on this point. The curse did not make him a slave or change the color of his skin. The inferiority stamped upon them as a race or people, is not conclusive evidence that they were made black, any more than that they were made white. If the descendants of Ham were all black men or runts of society, then King Solomon must have been one of them, for he says, "I am black but comely." Again he says, "Look not upon me because I am black."

The best historians say Hiram of Tyre the chief architect and superintendent of Solomon's temple, was a black man. Your argument is wholly against citizenizing the negro because of amalgamation of blood, not of ideas.

You say you are a colonization abolitionist. Let us see what these two societies were composed of. The former, pro-slavery in the extreme—a slaveholder with sixty slaves for its precedent, gotten up for the express purpose of shipping free negroes, not slaves, to Liberia. The Abolitionists whole desire was to abolish slavery without colonization, trusting the result with a higher power. Thus you see one is antagonistical to the other. You being both, must be somewhat amalgamated in ideas, and if great caution is not observed the disease on the brain will have a result more fatal than scrofula or any concomitant disease of the body.

I infer from your communications that you are not a 'negro worshipper,' and therefore would not be guilty of that high crime 'licentiousness,' that you have alleged against them. Judas made the best of promises to his master and proclaimed his innocence, too, but when he saw the thirty pieces of silver, the temptation was too great; he yielded, and so might you.

You say that nearly one-fifth of the negroes born in the free States are mulattoes; the result of the licentious practice of the negro worshippers of the North. Sir, that assertion is not true; it is uncalled for. When you charge the legislators of New York, Massachusetts and Maine, of licentiousness because they extend the right of franchise to their colored people, and to the legislators of this State, because they desire to follow in the footsteps of their predecessors, you heap epithets of slander upon the most enlightened people and the best legislators that ever graced the halls of our National capitol.

You would also, if they were living and at the North, charge the same high crime of licentiousness against Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, the Randolphs and Jackson, for they all extended the right of franchise to the free colored men of their own States.

There are many other remarks in your last that deserve special notice, but as I cannot do justice to them all now, I shall defer a part until my next.

Yours in the cause of equal rights,

W.

MISCEGENATION.

MR. EDITOR:—In my last I promised to continue the subject of Miscegenation.

According to the census of 1850, one-ninth of the whole negro population were mixed bloods. And in 1860, one-eighth are returned as mixed bloods or mulattoes. And in the free colored 36½ per cent. are mulattoes or mixed with the white race. At this rate you can see that not many years are required to entirely mix the races so that not one pure black will remain. And yet fanatics say that there is no danger of Miscegenation. These same men told us five years ago that the South would not fight. That Massachusetts could whip the whole South, etc., etc. Was that true? Nay, verily. And hundreds of thousands mourn to day for lost loved ones, because the South has fought, and Southern fields are white with the bones of our dear ones.

Allow me here to state that the large proportion of admixtures noted above are nearly all the offspring of negro mothers, showing that American women are true to their race. But alas! How guilty are men.

Bruce, in his Manual of Ethnology, takes the position that change of climate tends to an increase of vice. And all history on this subject agrees. Then give the negro liberty to go where he pleases and the admixture will increase with great rapidity and a fixed certainty. The stronger blood of the white man will absorb the weaker blood of the black. And physical, moral and mental injury will be the reward of the white man. And from the date of this equality of political and social bonds between the white and black man, we may count with certainty the deterioration of our healthy Yankee race.

The history of Mexico and South America teach us in a small degree the great danger before us. "The lower, the more ignorant and degraded a people is, the less fitted it is to change its climate, and the more sure to perish under the change," says Bruce. Now the blacks can never live in the South with the whites and enjoy the privileges of the white citizens. The whites there will never suffer it. Then the North must become their home. This change of climate and condition will give free license to their degraded passions. We have condemned the South for the licentiousness practiced there. But my friends allow the radicals to carry this negro equality measure, and the Northern States will soon present the most horrid degradation of any civilized nation on earth. Contemplate for a moment the mixing of these four millions of negroes (now living in the South) with our white race. Contemplate the degradation necessary to produce this result. Is it not sufficient to make the blood run cold in our veins. I know that fanatics say there is no danger. But "figures don't lie" is my motto. And figures say there is danger. Yes, more, that the process is already in extensive operation. Counting the mixing as a fixed fact, we can see that when more than four million and a half of negroes are mixed with thirty millions of whites as a nation, we then will be over one-eighth negro. Consequently an octaroon nation at once. This is a lovely picture and it should be carefully framed by radicals, for their ardent desire for equality of the races in the United States.

1st. They say that the negro has been trampled down and oppresed.

2nd. That he will fight.

3rd. That he is true to the Government.

4th. That he will vote with the Republican party. This will do for the present. And now I will answer these wonderful declarations.

1st. Now why should he vote because he has been oppressed. Has his oppression been a curse to him compared with his degradation and misery in Africa? Has he been more oppressed than the Indians in our land? Yet who rises up to defend him? Oppression is no reason that we shall forfeit all the blessings belonging to the whites as a race, in order to elevate the inferior race.

2nd. "He will fight." Very good dogs will fight, should they vote.

3rd, "He is true to the Government," This is the strongest reason urged. And yet should he not be when thousands of lives have been lost in rescuing him from a State of Slavery. There has been more done for him in this war than has ever been done for him by any nation on the earth Should he and his friends not be content? Has the white race no rights to claim? Does all belong to the negro merely because he is loyal? Has he ever proved his loyalty free choice? Look at my last article for the answer.

4th. He will vote with the Republican party.

Now we have got the nest egg. Here is the secret. These men want negro votes to elevate them to office, for these men say that they will not vote for a negro, but want the negroes to vote, and that will offset the ignorant Irish, &c., that our opponents have to vote for them. Now, brother Republicans, look this square in the face. Have we not opposed this same ignorant voting in our opponents? Shall we now degrade ourselves by bowing and scraping to ignorant negroes, and begging their votes? Is it not more honorable for us to have ignorant negroes to vote than for our opponents to have ignorant Irish? Shame on you. I claim that the Republican party has its share of intelligence; then let us aim high, and not disgrace ourselves.

But again they tell us that the negro votes will not be felt. Now let us see about that. We have over four million and a half of negroes. Now about one in five are or would be voters. This would give 888,326 votes in the United States. How many Presidents have been elected with a greater majority? Ah! gentlemen, it is selfishness that is ruling in this matter,—it is no honest desire to do the negro good, but that the negro may benefit office seekers. Remember that man should not live for himself alone, for if he does, he

"Living shall forfeit all renown,
And doubly dying shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung
Unwept, unhonored and unsung"

In my next I shall look at what can be done for the negro to benefit him and to truly elevate his condition, if that can be done.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

THE following commissioners to take the soldiers votes for 1865 have been appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate:

Eastern District.—Hon. Thos. H. Armstrong, of Olmstead, Hon. D. F. Langly of Dakota.

Tennessee etc.—Alex Johnson, Ramsey; Wm. J. Arnold, Wabashaw.

Mississippi etc.—H. L. Gordon, Wright; William H. Ward, Benton.

Northern District Minn.—Edward Hollister, Rice; G. M. Cameron Mower.

Capt. Abe Hutchinson left yesterday for St. Joe, on the Missouri River. He intends to bring the Chippewa Falls around to La Crosse, after which he will run the Favorite to Fort Union, connecting there with the Cutter for Fort Benton.—Pioneer 12th.

The Hastings Independent says, we are informed that Walter Kicelia, the man accused of the murder of John McKay, and putting him under the ice at Mendota, is not a citizen of the town of Eagan and never has been.

The same paper also says that a change of venue to Washington County has been granted in the case of Hugh McHugh, one of the Inver Grove murderers.—The trial is set for the second Tuesday in April.

The Rochester Republican says that Dr. W. W. Mayo has entered the field of medical practice, and those wishing his services will find him at his office over Woodards and Ells' Drug Store. He is one of the best physicians in the State, and will command his share of practice.

Clothes line thieves abound in Minneapolis. The Atlas says: Our clever citizen, B. S. Bull, was victimized last week. Some scoundrel carried off line, clothes and all. A man mean enough to steal a clothes line could only add to his infamy by stealing a tub of soap suds.

The Atlas also says that Messrs. Cutter Secombe & Co., propose to move their paper mill machinery to the stone mill on the lower end of Hennepin Island This building is admirably adapted for a paper mill, and roomy enough to admit a greater amount of machinery than their old mill.

Local Affairs.

Woodland Female Seminary.—We wish all the citizens of Mankato could have been present on last Saturday evening, to hear the statement made by Rev. Mr Thompson in regard to the success as well as the prospective wants of the Woodland Female Seminary, All of our citizens are deeply concerned in the prosperity of that institution. We take the liberty to reproduce a few of the statements made and also to add some further suggestions. The school has now been in successful operation nearly a year. The number of applicants for instruction have so increased that no more can be accommodated without an enlargement of the buildings It is thought desirable that the institution be removed from its present locality to the more immediate limits of the town The reasons for doing this are obvious first, because of the difficulty of getting to its present site, especially in the winter, and secondly because the present buildings are not advantageously arranged for additions. We see that it would be a great gain to the citizens to have the school removed into town. Now what can we do? The school must go on We must help it to a permanent basis. If we do not it will be likely to be removed to some locality where it will obtain the help it needs. But it must not be compelled to do this. It would be very damaging to our own interests as a community to allow such removal. It makes no difference whether or not, we have daughters to be educated, we are still interested that this school should be invited to stay with us. A public institution and especially a good school, is a source of wealth wherever it may be. In many of the older states some of the most beautiful towns are not only kept alive, but are kept in a flourishing condition solely by a school that is located in their midst. There is no reason why we may not have one of the most flourishing seminaries for young ladies, right here in Mankato, that is to be found in the state. The only question is will we consult our own interest enough to do it? With such assistance as we could furnish, and still be making ourselves richer all the time, we might draw from fifty to seventy five pupils into the seminary this summer, and in the course of a year or two the number would be increased, two if not three fold. Let us consider this matter and act in concert on the best plan, whatever that may be to put the seminary on a permanent basis. And let this be done at once.

Signor Demaray — We find the following in a late number of the Stillwater Messenger, in reference to our accomplished dancing master who, it seems was formerly in the grocery business in that place: "Mr. Demaray is one of those irrepressible Yankees, and possesses the faculty of adapting himself to any and all surrounding circumstances, and when one business plays out, can, without any apparent inconvenience, make "a change of base," and switch over to another track, even though it may happen to be a wide or narrow gauge. His Italian title, however, will surprise some of his old acquaintances here."

The Illustrated Phrenological Journal for March, contains Gov. Fenton of New York; Edward Everett, the Orator, Maj. Davidson, the Patriot; Aristotle, the Philosopher; Charles Fourier, the Socialist; W. H. Fry, the Composer; with Portraits and Biographies. The races of Men; Caucasians, Mongolians, Ethiopians, American Indians, and Malayans, with grouped portraits of each, and a map showing the geographical distribution of mankind, with seventeen Illustrations. Also Physiognomy, or the "signs of character," Love under difficulties, Fore-seeing, and 'Seeing at Sea,' 'Working together for Good,' by Rev. H. W. Beecher. Ruling by Love. Experience of a School Teacher. Light Gymnastics. The Inscrutable. Our right to Reason; How we Change; How the Brain moulds the cranium, and the head conforms to the character. With answers to correspondents, etc. An excellent number. Only 20 cts. by first post, or $2 a year. Address Messrs. Fowler & Wells, 389 Broadwoy, N. Y.

To Correspondents.—An anonymous correspondent who, we judge, resides not a thousand miles east of this place, has sent us a communication to which he has not the manliness to attach his name and in which he attacks the private character of a young lady. We wish to say to him and to all others of like caste that we are not engaged in that kind of bussiness. No man is a gentleman who will thus attack a lady's character no matter who she may be, and our column are not open to, or for sale for, any such purpose.

None of the answers to the riddle published two weeks ago are correct

The poetry from our 'Hoskins" friend contain allusions of a personal nature, and we do not feel at liberty to publish them unless he is willing to attach his name. They might cause him trouble.

Arthur's Magazine.—We have received the April number of Arthur's, which contains the concluding chapter of that very exeellent story 'Anything for Peace' In the next number will be commenced a beautiful story entitled "Whether it paid," from the pen of that gifted writer Virginia F. Townsend. Every family should have Arthur!

The County of Jackson.—By an act of the late Legislature, the county of Jackson has been attached to the county of Martin for judicial purposes, and the judicial officers of Martin County are to have and exercise full authority over Jackson, the same as if it was a part of Martin County.

Peterson for April.—We are in receipt thus early, of the April number of Peterson. It is really a splendid number, and contains much reading of a very interesting nature.

To Enlisted Men.—Enlisted men, on their way to Fort Snelling, who take passage on Burbank's Stage Co., are required to pay their fare, which will be returned to them when they are mustered into the service. No order for transportation for drafted men will be received by the Agent this place unless it is presented within ten days from the time it was dated.

Puffs.—We have concluded to adopt the following schedule of tolls, set forth by an exchange, for future puffing:

For a moderate puff	3 juleps
A tolerable good one	1 box of cigars
A good one	1 pair of boots
A very good one	1 vest and 2 shirts
A "splendid" one	1 cloth coat
A perfect one	a whole suit.

School Meeting.—We see by written notices posted up that a meeting of the electors of school District No. 1 will be held at the shool house in Mankato on Saturday afternoon, the 25th inst., at four o'clock, to elect a board of trustees, and take such action as may be necessary towards building a school house. We don't charge anything for this notice.

Retired.—W. B. Griswold, has retired from the management of the Herald, published at Chaska, and our whilom friend C. A. Warner, now pushes the editorial quill.

For want of type we are obliged to leave out of this issue several communications, and a large amount of interesting local news.

Farm for Sale.—A good farm is advertised for sale in another column. It is in a pleasant location accessible to town, and is a valuable piece of property.

Whiskers.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

English Currants.—Finch & Thurston have received a fine article of dried currants, which they offer very low.

A meeting will be held at City Hall to-morrow evening to take action on disposing of the Blue Earth River bridge bonds. A general attendence is desired.

Cash for Wheat.—Bierbauer & Reckey at the Mankato Mills are paying 65 cents per bushel for wheat. 1w*

The Mankato Mills are now retailing flour at their Mills at $3,00 per hundred, and wholesaling at $2,75. 4w*

We regret that we are not able to furnish a full report of the Teachers Institute as organized in this place last Wednesday evening, for reasons given elsewhere. We shall do so next week.

Boots and Shoes.—Mr. Wattz has opened a shoe shop first door this side of City Hall, and is prepared to fill all orders for custom work.

The Mite Society will be held at the Hall next Wednesday Evening.

Donation.—A donation visit will be paid to Rev Thos. Day on Thursday evening next at the Presbyterian Church. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

Gov. Miller has appointed Mrs. Louisa F. Goodwin, of Owatonna, State Librarian. She is the widow of Lieut Goodwin of the 4th Minnesota, who was killed at Vicksburg.

To the Public.—Great reduction in prices of clothing, gents furnishing goods, hats, caps, &c., at Randall's Clothing Emporium. Our motto is 'not to be undersold,' and wishing to close out the present stock preparatory to putting in spring and summer goods, we will sell for the next 20 days from 25 to 30 per cent. below former prices.

The following is a list of some of our prices:

Men's Wool Hats from 50c to	$1.50
" Lined Satinet Pants	2.75
" Hickory Shirts	75
" Undershirts	1.25
" Gray and Blue Flannel Overshirts,	2.00

All other goods in proportion. Also a nice stock of boys' jackets, coats, pants, hats and caps very cheap.

All of our stock was bought when gold was from 20 to 75 per cent. premium, making them, at the prices we are now offering, cheaper than they can be manufactured at the present time. Any person in want of anything in our line, will find it to their interest to call soon.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Dispatches from Sherman and Schofield have been received this morning

Sherman's dispatch is dated March 8, at Laurel Hill, N. C., He says: We are all well, and have done finely. Details are omitted for obvious reasons.

Gen. Schofield, in a dispatch dated Newbern, N. C., March 12, states that on the 10th near Southwest Creek, Bragg was fairly beaten During that night he retreated across the Neuse at Kingston and now holds the bank of the river at that place.

E. M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

GRANT.

New York, March 10.

The Commercial's Hatcher's Run correspondence of the 6th says the roads having become passable an advance to South Side railroad is hourly looked for though no orders have been issued.

The Herald's Sixth Army Corps correspondent of the 6th says it has been reported for some weeks past that large numbers of negroes have been at work throwing up fortifications along the banks of the Roanoke river. Several months since many old and experienced officers surmissed that if Lee was compelled to fall back from his present position, he would form a new defensive line along that stream. The country is admirably adapted for this purpose, and the river would add considerable to the difficulties which an attacking column would have to overcome. Siege guns from Petersburg and Richmond have been sent off in that direction, via., Danville railroad, and many things seem to indicate that his army will soon evacuate for some place.

Army of the Potomac, March 9.—Quiet continues in this department and is likely to do so for some time, so far as any movements are concerned, for the roads are in very bad condition owing to the recent heavy rains.

Troops are being drilled daily and articles of clothing, &c. issued preparatory to the coming campaign. The men are in excellent condition. Deserters continue to come in although they are not so numerous as before. About thirty arrived to-day through the lines of the 5th and 6th.

It is reported that four men were shot on their way over.

The first corps advanced their picket lines a short distance this morning, and it is reported to have found rebel colored troops on the picket line in their front If this is true it shows that the rebels have at last adopted the policy of arming their slaves.

SHERMAN.

The Herald's Wilmington correspondent says that they have there confirmation of the previous reports that Gen Sherman has reached Cape Fear River N. C. It is said that he had struck that stream 60 miles above Wilmington previous to the 1st inst., thus completely spoiling the rebel plans for effecting concentration against him and forcing him to give battle in the vicinity of Goldsboro, at which point they expected to have a combination of advantages in their favor which would insure his defeat.

The Wilmington Journal, in its issue just previous to the evacuation of the town by the national forces, admit that Sherman's movements, if he was not soon checked, might have the effect of compelling Lee to evacuate Richmond.

New York, March 9.

The World's Wilmington correspondent of the 28th says our advance under Gen. Terry is now some 12 miles from here on the northwest branch of Cape Fear river, with Hoke's troops confronting it on the other side.

Sherman is reported to day as being within sixty miles of this place. If that is the case a junction will easily be made between Schofield's troops and his and a forward movement Richmondward ordered at once.

New York, March 11.—The Washington Republican of yesterday contains the following:

Thomas telegraphs the government that one of his scouts has come in with the information the rebel Gens. Chatham and Lee have been sent from Alabama against Gen. Sherman, but Lee was subsequently recalled to defend Selma.

Chatham proceed intending to form a junction with Lee at Charleston, but the scout reports that the rebels have information that before the junction was formed Sherman hurled a few of his veteran brigades back on Chatham's column completely crushing it.

Hardee was not up to time, and the report does not say he gave battle at all but that Johnston was supposed to have attacked Sherman in front and got awfully whipped.

The Republican says there is every reason to suppose the above to be true.

SHERRIDAN.

New York, March 10.

The Herald's correspondent says Early was found near Waynesboro on a range of hills, with 5 pieces of artillery in position. Gen. Custar dismounted two regiments of skirmishers. In the rear on both sides of the road were two solid regiments. The movement upon the enemy's works made at once. The rebels fired one volley and then fled like sheep. Their attempt to escape was fruitless, as Custer closed his lines upon and surrounded nearly the entire force.

Gen. Early did not attempt to rally his men but rode off on a fleet horse attended by an orderly. The victory was almost a bloodless one as we lost only 10 or 15 killed and wounded.

Gentlemen; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

"Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Putnam Clothes Wringer.

The ONLY reliable self Adjusting Wringer.

The frame being of Iron, thoroughly galvanized, all danger from rust is removed, and the liability to shrink, swell, split, &c. so unavoidable in wooden machines, is prevented.

No thumb screws or complicated fastenings to wear out or get out of order; it can be fastened firmly to the tub in a single second

WARRANTED WITH OR WITHOUT COG-WHEELS.

It took the FIRST PREMIUM at Fifty-Seven State and County Fairs in 1863, and is, without an exception, the best Wringer ever made.

Instead of believing the statement of parties interested in the sale of other Wringers.

TRY IT AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Test it THOROUGHLY with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.

It will wring anything from a thread to a bed quilt without alteration.

Patented in the United States, England, Canada, and Australia. Agents wanted in every town.

Energetic Men can make from $3 to $10 per day.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN; I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

Respectfully yours.

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do: will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tention, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

Valuable Lands for Sale.

By direction of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust Lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of any treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians, issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D.C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Trust Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands, and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent, on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid, will be forfeited by the bidder. Should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful bidder.

WOMAN'S RESOLUTION.

I'll tell you of a fellow,
Of a fellow I have seen,
Who is neither white nor yellow,
But is altogether green;
And his name it is not charming,
It is only common Bill,
And he wishes me to wed him,
But I hardly think I will.

Oh, he whispered of devotion,
Of devotion pure and deep,
And it seemed so very silly,
That I almost fell asleep.
And he thinks it would be pleasant,
As we journey down the hill,
To go hand in hand together,
But I hardly think we will.

He told me of a cottage,
Of a cottage 'mong the trees,
And don't you think? the fellow
Tumbled down upon his knees;
While the tears the creature wasted
Were enough to turn a mill,
And he begged me to accept him,
But I hardly think I will.

He was here last night to see me,
But he made so long a stay,
I began to think the blockhead
Never meant to go away.
At first I learned to hate him,
And now I hate him still,
Yet he urges me to wed him,
But I hardly think I will.

I'm sure I would not choose him,
But the very deuce is in it,
For he says if I refuse him,
He could not live a minute,
Now you know the blessed Bible
Says we must not kill,
So I've thought the matter over,
AND I RATHER THINK I WILL.

THE SAVANNAH BLACKS SAY WHAT THEY WANT.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OCCASION AND A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT.

At the suggestion of the Secretary of War, Henry Ward Beecher preached a discourse to his people founded upon the recent remarkable interview which the Secretary and General Sherman had with some of the Savannah slaves who were choseen by their fellows to speak for them on that occasion. The following extract from Mr. Beecher's sermon will be read with keen interest:

I advocate the suffrage of the blacks, because they are a people intelligent enough to make a good use of ballot. I have here one of the most interesting documents that I ever read, and I purpose to read it to you. I premise by saying that I do it with the consent of the Secretary of War, who put it in my hands.

When he met Gen. Sherman in Savannah, Mr. Stanton proposed that they should call a council of black men, and ask them what they wanted for their own people. They brought together a body of twenty, which was composed of deacons, class leaders and ministers. The average age of these twenty men was forty five years. Eight of them were slaves when the Union army entered Savannah. Six of them had been slaves, and had been emancipated. Only four were free born. They had averaged in the ministry and offices of the church about thirteen years apiece. They were men, therefore, ripe in years with enough experience as preachers and teachers to give them some understanding of their people.

On the evening of Thursday, the 12th day of January, 1865, they met by appointment to hold an interview, with Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War and Maj. Gen. Sherman, to have a conference upon matters relating to the freedmen of the State of Georgia.

Mr. Stanton asked these persons to appoint a spokesman, and they all mentioned Garrison Frazier. Accordingly he was chosen to express their common sentiments upon the matters of inquiry, and he made the answers which I am about to read to you. Mr. Frazier was aged 67 years; born in Granville county, North Carolina; slave until eight years ago, when he bought himself and wife, paying $1,000 in gold and silver. Is an ordinary minister in the Baptist Church, but his health failing, has now charge of no congregation. He has been in the ministry 35 years. And here let me say that Mr. Stanton remarked:—"The difficulty will be to make people believe that these are the answers that were actually made; it will be thought that they are my report of those answers; but I had them taken down, word for word, and then read to them, and they are precisely as they were given. The questions and answers were as follows:

First—Say what your understanding is in regard to the acts of Congress and President Lincoln's proclamation, touching the condition of the colored people in the rebel States.

Answer—So far as I understand President Lincoln's proclamation to the rebellious States, it is that if they would lay down their arms and submit to the laws of the United States before the first of January, 1863, all should be well; but if they did not, then all the slaves in the rebel States should be free henceforth and forever. That is what I understand.

Second—State what you understand by slavery and the freedom that was to be given by the President's proclamation.

Answer—Slavery is receiving, by irresistible power, the work of another man, and by his consent.

Better that, if you can!

The freedom, as I understand it, promises by the proclamation, is taking us from under the yoke of bondage and placing us where we could reap the fruits of our own labor, take care, of ourselves, and assist the Government in maintaining our freedom.

See that moral element that was thrown in, white man! How many of us would have thought of that?

Third—State in what manner you think you can take care of yourselves, and how can you best assist the Government in maintaining your freedom?

Answer—The way we can best take care of ourselves is to have land, and turn it and till it by our own labor—that is, by the labor of the women and children and old men; and we can soon maintain ourselves and have something to spare. And to assist the Government, the young men should enlist in the service of the Government, and serve in such manner as they may be wanted. (The rebels told us that they piled them up made batteries of them, and sold them in Cuba; but we don't believe them.) We want to be placed on land until we are able to buy it and make it our own.

Fourth—State in what manner you would rather live—whether scattered among the whites or in colonies by yourselves.

As Gen. Sherman's letter has been censured, I want you to see how exactly he took these men's advice, in the whole policy which that letter ordained.

Answer—I would prefer to live by ourselves, for there is a prejudice against us in the South that will take years to get over; but I do not know that I can answer for my brethren [Mr. Lynch says he thinks they should not be separated, but live together. All the other persons present, being questioned one by one, answer that they agree with Brother Frazier.]

Fifth.—Do you think there is intelligence enough among the slaves of the South to maintain themselves under the Government of the United States and the equal protection of its laws, and maintain good and peaceable relations among yourselves and with your neighbors?

Answer—I think there is sufficient intelligence among us to do so.

Sixth—State what is the feeling of the black population of the South toward the Government of the South toward the Government of the United States, what is the understanding in respect to the present war—its causes and object, and their disposition to aid either side. State fully your views.

Answer—I think you will find there are thousands that are willing to make any sacrifice to assist the Government of the United States, while there are also many that are willing to take up arms. I do not suppose there are a dozen men that are opposed to the Government. I understand, as to the war, that the South is the aggressor. President Lincoln was elected President by a majority of the United States, which guaranteed him the right of holding the office and exercising that right over the whole United States. The South, without knowing what he would do, rebelled. The war was commenced by the rebels before he came into office. The object of the war was not at first to give the slaves freedom, but the sole object of the war was at first to bring the rebellious States back into the Union and their loyalty to the laws of the United States. Afterward, knowing the value set on slave by the rebels, the President thought that his proclamation would stimulate them to lay down their arms, reduce them to obedience, and help to bring back the rebel States; and not doing so has now made the freedom of the slaves a part of the war. It is my opinion that there is not a man in this city that could be started to help the rebels one inch, for that would be suicide. There were two black men left with the rebels because they had taken an active part for the rebels, and thought something might befall them if they stayed behind; but there is not another man. If the prayers that have gone up for the Union army could be read out, you would not get through them these two weeks.

Can you make a better statement than that of the history of this war and its internal policy?

Seventh—State whether the sentiments you now express are those only of the colored people in the city; or do they extend to the colored population through country? and what are your means of knowing the sentiments of those living in the country?

Answer—I think the sentiments are the same among the colored people of the whole State. My opinion is formed by personal communication in the course of my ministry, and also from the thousands that followed the Union army, leaving their homes and undergoing suffering. I did not think there would be so many; the number surpassed my expectation.

Eighth—If the rebel leaders were to arm the slaves what would be its effect?

Answer—I think they would fight as long as they were before the bayonet, and just as soon as they could get away they would desert.

Ninth—What in your opinion, is the feeling of the colored people about enlisting and serving as soldiers of the United States, and kind of military service do they prefer?

Answer—A large number have gone as soldiers to Port Royal, to be drilled and put in the service, and I think there are thousands of the young men that would enlist. There is something about them that, perhaps, is wrong. They have suffered so long from the rebels, that they want to shoulder the musket. Others want to go into the Quartermaster's or Commissary's service.

Tenth—Do you understand the mode of enlistments of colored persons in the rebel States by State agents under the act of Congress? If yea, state what your understanding is.

Answer—My understanding is that colored persons enlisted by State agents are enlisted a substitutes, and give credit to the States, and do not swell the army, because every black man enlisted by a State agent leaves a white man at home, and also that larger bounties are given by the States. The great object should be to push through this rebellion the shortest way, and there seems to be something wanting in the enlistment by State agents, for it does not strengthen the army, but takes one away for every colored man enlisted.

Eleventh—State what, in your opinion is the best way to enlist colored men for soldiers.

Answer—I think, sir, that all compulsory operations should be put a stop to. The ministers would talk to them, and the young men would enlist. It is my opinion that it would be far better for the State agents to stay at home, and the enlistments to be made for the United States, under the direction of Gen. Sherman.

In the absence of Gen. Sherman, the following question was asked:

Twelfth—State what is the feeling of the colored people in regard to General Sherman; and how far do they regard his sentiments and actions as friendly to their rights and interests, or otherwise?

Answer—We looked upon Gen. Sherman prior to his arrival, as a man in the Providence of God specially set apart to accomplish this work, and we unanimously feel inexpressible gratitude to him, looking on him as a man that should be honored for the faithful performance of his duty. Some of us called upon him immediately upon his arrival, and it is probable he would not meet the Secretary with more courtesy than he met us. His conduct and deportment toward us characterized him as a friend and a gentleman. We have confidence in Gen. Sherman, and think that what concerns us could not be in better hands. This is our opinion now from the short acquaintance and interest we have had. [Mr. Lynch states that, with his limited acquaintance with Gen. Sherman, he is unwilling to express an opinion. All others present declare their agreement with Mr. Frazier about Gen. Sherman.]

Some conversation upon general subjects relating to Gen. Sherman's march then ensued, of which no note was taken.

Then follows the certification of E. D. Townsend, Assistant Adjutant General:

WAR DEP'T ADJ'T GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1, 1865.

I do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and faithful report of the questions and answers made by the colored ministers and church members of Savannah in my presence and hearing, at the chambers of Major General Sherman, on the evening of Thursday, January 12th, 1865. The questions of General Sherman and the Secretary of War were reduced to writing, and read to the persons present. The answers were made by the Rev. Garrison Frazier, who was selected by the other ministers and church members to answer for them. The answers written down in his exact words, and read over to the others, who one by one expressed his concurrence or dissent as above set forth.

I cannot forbear to state one thing that Mr. Stanton said. "It is the first time in the history of this nation when the representatives of this Government have gone down to these despised human beings and asked them, 'What do you want for your own people.'" It is the first time. Blessed be God the day has come when this great nation is willing to ask the poor, degraded slaves within its borders, "What do you want for your own people?" And it was in accordance with their expressed wishes that Gen. Sherman framed that letter which has not escaped criticism in the North, but which, it seems to me, when the facts are known, will be praised by every one.

I, then, advocate suffrage for the black people, because I believe they have given evidence that they will make good use of it. They are intelligent enough to do it.

A woman lately looking at a Gordon press, on which the San Francisco Daily Fair Press was being printed looked up in the face of her male companion, and in the most earnest manner inquired "Arrah, Tim! so them's the things as writes the paypers? Be's them the things they call eydaters? Holy Mother of Moses! does the Yankeer lie, abuse and blackguard one another by machinery."

IN a poem by Hoffman, the German poet, who was expelled from the Prusian dominions, and the admission of his works prohibited, the following huge word appears: "Steuerverweigerungverfassungsmassigberechtight," meaning a man who is exempt by the constitution from paying taxes. We ourselves have heard of a gentleman, a member of the Marrionetteenschauspielhausengesellschof, who was said to be an excellent performer on the Constanpolitauschedudelsackpfeif.

In an article in the United States service Magazine, the following hard-tack story is told. It appears that the boxes in which the "tack was packed, always bear the brand of the baker or maker, and a lot which arrived in the camp of Fith New York Excelciors, with the mark "B. C. 603," caused much speculation among the "boys" as to what it meant. It was finally agreed unanimously that it must be the date when the crackers were made—603 years before Christ!

From the Jeffersonian Democrat.

A Plea for the Country Press.

That the country press has never received the patronage to which it is justly entitled, even in the most favorable localities is a fact, we believe universally admitted. How to increase its patronage, and thereby enlarge the sphere of its usefulness, is a problem which, after stating a few propositions, we shall leave those of our numerous readers who do not 'take the paper,' to solve:

I. A Country paper is a local necessity, and much more valuable to every citizen of the county than any other. The truth of this proposition should be too obvious to require comment. It is not the size, the amount of general news contained, or the editorial ability displayed, or all of these combined, that infallibly determine the value of a paper, which like every other article of commerce, is subject to the laws of trade. The New York Tribune, for instance, is a much larger and abler paper than the Jeffersonian Democrat, though we submit that the disparity in size and resources between them is not so great as between the two places in which they are respectively published; but there are many others, such as the Times, the Post, the Independent, &c, that can supply the place of the former, while there is but one that can perform the office of the latter. As regards all matters of mere local or personal concern, the County Paper alone is indispensable to the community. It is the sole general medium of public communication among the citizens of the several townships, and between them and the world at large. It is then, in its appropriate sphere, of more value than any other, and no citizen who wouldd promote the interests of the county can reasonably object to paying prices for it whether it be more or less than that charged for the weeklies. Money saved at its expense is money lost with interest in the end; for those who will not take their County Paper must depend upon borrowing it of their neighbors for be subject to almost constant inconvenience and expense from ignorance of its contents. They are liable to lose, every year, ten times the amount asked for the paper, by starting with their daughters for the Teachers' Examination on the wrong day; by neglecting to pay their taxes until charged with a penalty, and perhaps until their property is sold to pay delinquencies; by failing to receive the premiums to which the annually published list of our Agricultural Societies might show them to be entitled; and in various other ways.

II. It is the duty of all those citizens who habitually avail themselves of the columns of their County Paper to advance their interest or gratify their pride to subscribe and pay for it. We say this not as a suppliant for unmerited favor, but because justice to both publisher and subscribers demand that it should be said. We have no peculiar reason to complain, our patronage being as large if not larger, than that of County papers in general; yet we entertain no doubt that if all citizens of the class above mentioned should favor us with their support, our subscription list would contain at least two thousand names. And why should it not? Every man who seeks a hearing through the press, in so doing gives good evidence that it is of some value to him and why should he not aid in supporting it? By refusing or neglecting to do so, he becomes a consumer but non-producer. Does he ever ask himself how the paper which heralds his name, thoughts and actions to the world, "without money and without price," is sustained? We can assure all such that it does not sustain itself, that it requires patronage, and that, if everybody should follow their example, it could not exist.

III. Better patronage will make better papers. We are aware that it may be truly said that Country Papers are not all as good as they might be made. The country press can never compete with the city press in the publication of general news; it is idle to attempt it, and no intelligent reader expects it; but, within its own sphere, particular objects, it can and should be made as interesting and useful. In the variety and character of its selected articles, it should excel, and, in the ability of its origin articles, fully equal, the city press. As intelligence is no more abundant in the city than in the country there is no valid reason why the tone of the country press should not be as elevated as that of the city press. But, to enable country publishers to make better papers, they must be more generaly and liberally patronized. To such persons as may seek to establish their own wisdom and acuteness decrying everything useful in their own community and who while reading little and appreciating less, make it a point, on occasions to sneer at our County Paper, we have nothing to say; but, to the larger and more just and intelligent class of citizens, we freely confess that it falls below our own ideal; and it shall be our constant aim to co-operate with them in improving it. Horace Greely, though reputed chief of the Editorial fraternity, could hardly be expected to produce a Tribune in a country village, with less than one thousand subscribers; and, surely, more will not be exacted of any of its humbler members. An editor, to be most successful, should be enabled to devote all his time to the labors of his profession, and, to the extent that it is necessarily occupied by other labors his efficiency as an editor is impaired. Make the editorial profession as remunerative in the country as in the city, and the country will afford as able and interesting papers. Liberal patronage will command the requisite skill as certainly as supply follows demand.

IV. A paper is regarded abroad, as a fair index of the intelligence and thrift of the people where it is published. This proposition is self evident, and needs no elucidation; and we merely state it as one of the many arguments in favor of a more just and liberal policy in regard to the country press.

Mrs. Lincoln Snubs Seward.

Mack, the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnatti Commercial, is responsible for the following:

'In conversation a day or two since, a gentleman engaged in public life related an incident that took place at the White House some days ago, that goes far to show that Mrs. Lincoln knows her own rights, and knowing, dares maintain them, and that she carries the spirit of the Monroe doctrine into execution in the affairs of the executive mansion that are under her control to this extent, that she will not permit the potentage of any other family circle to introduce into the domestic kingdom of the White House any of his peculiar forms of doing things.

The facts I intend to relate under the caption of this paragraph are as follows: About a year ago a member of a distinguished European family was on a visit to this country and to this city. Mr Seward, as Lord Premier, was anxious that before he went home he should partake of the hospitality of the White House and to that end suggested a state dinner by the President.

This was agreed to, and, Mr. Seward being as wise in domestic as he is supposed to be in national affairs, he would have made no further suggestions, But he rashly went to Mrs. Lincoln, and commenced to tell her how the feast ought to be prepared. The unfortunate prime minister had not proceeded very far with his instructions when he was met with a rebuff like this.

'Mr. Seward, when I want to consult you on such a subject as this, I will send for you.'

'The best evidence that Mr. Seward's advice is not deemed indispensable on such matters, is, that, from that day to this, Mrs. Lincoln hasn't sent for him. The sage of Auburn may have power to arrest any man on the continent by the simple process of touching a bell handle but when he ventures to teach our republican queen how to set the table for a state dinner, he receives a scornful snubbing which the country will say he richly deserves.'

Editing a Paper.

Editing a paper is a very pleasant business.

If it contains too much political matter, people wont have it.

If the type is too large it don't contain enough reading matter.

If the type is small people won't read it.

If we publish telegraph reports, people say they are lies.

If we omit them they say we have no enterprise, or suppress them for political effect,

If we have in a few jokes people say we are nothing but a rattlehead.

If we omit them they say we are an old fossil. If we publish original matter they damn us for not giving selections.

If we publish selections folks say we are lazy for not writing more, and giving them what they have not read in some other paper.

If we give a man a complimentary notice, then we are censured for being partial.

If we do not all hands say we are a greedy hog.

If we insert an article that pleases the ladies, men become jealous.

If we do not cater to their wishes the paper is not fit to have in the house.

If we attend church they say it is only for effect.

If we don't they denounce us as deceitful and desperately wicked. If we remain in the office and attend to business, folks say we are to proud to mingle with our fellows.

If we go out they say we never attend to business.

If we do not pay all bills promptly folks say we are not to be trusted.

If we do pay promptly they say we stole the money.

A Teacher in a western town in Canada, while making his first visit to his constituents, came into conversation with an ancient Varmount lady, who had taken up her residence in the backwoods. Of course the school and former teachers came in for criticism; and the old lady speaking of his predecessor asked: 'Wa'al master what do you think he larnt the skollars?' 'Couldn't say, ma'am. Pray what did he teach?'

'Wa'al; he told 'em this 'ere earth was reound, and all that sort 'o things. Now, master, what do you think about such stuff?' Don't you think he was an ignorant feller?' Unwilling to come under the category of the ignorat, the teacher evasively remarked: 'It really did seem strange; but still there are many learned men who teach these things.' 'Wa'al, if the airth is reound and goss reound, what holds it up?' O, these learned men say that it goes around the sun, and that the sun holds it up by virtue of the law of attraction.' The old lady lowered her 'specks,' and, by way of climax responded: 'Wa'll, if these high larnt men sez the sun holds the airth I should like to know what holds the airth up when the sun goes down?'.

The Lawyer and Irishman.

While a number of lawyers and gentlemen were dining at Wiscassett, a few days since, a jolly son of the Emerald Isle appeared and called for dinner. The landlord told him he should dine when the gentlemen were done.

"Let him crowd in among us," whispered a limb of the law, "and we will have some fun with him,"

The Irishman took his seat at the table.

"You was born in this country, were you not friend."

"No sir I was born in Ireland."

"Is your father living."

"No sir, he is dead."

"What is your occupation."

"A horse jockey, sir."

"What was your fathers occupation.'

"Trading horses, sir."

"Did your father cheat any person while he was here."

"I suppose he did, cheat a good many sir.'

'Where do you suppose he went to.'

'Heaven, sir.'

'And what do you suppose he is doing in heaven.'

'Trading horses, sir.'

'Has he cheated any one there?'

'He cheated one, I believe, sir.'

'Why did they not prosecute him?'

'Because they searched the whole kingdom of heaven and couldn't find a lawyer.'

SLOW GRINDING.—Quite a number of years ago there lived in Androscoggin county, Maine, a man by the name of L—, He was a farmer, stage driver, and hotel keeper, and was blessed with a large family of boys. Among them was the hero of our yarn. Ide was the name that he was best known by. He was lean, lank and scrawny, always on hand to run errands and do chores generally. One very hot day in July Ide was sent off about three miles to a mill, with a large lot of grain to be ground. Unluckily for him, there was quite a quantity in before he got there, so that it was late on the afternoon before they got to work on Ide's lot, The water was low, consequently the mill stones revolved rather slowly. Ide was hungry, and his inner man grew uproarious and looking up to the miller he says:

'Uncle Reub, I can eat that meal faster than you can grind it.'

'Ah, my boy, how long could you do it?'

'Why, till I am starved to death!' said Ide.

Uncle Reub says that he never got such a shot before.

LADIES SHOULD READ NEWSPAPERS.—It is a great mistake, in female education, to keep a young lady's attention devoted to the fashionable literature of the day. If you would qualify her for conversation you must give her something to talk about—give her education with its transpiring events. Urge her to read the newspapers; and become familiar with the present character and improvement of our race. History is of some importance; but the past world is dead and we have nothing to do with it. Our thoughts and concerns should be for the present world to know what it is and improve the condition of it. Let her form an opinion, and be able to sustain an intelligent conversation concerning the mental, moral, political and religious improvements of our times. Let the gilded annals and poems of the centre table be kept part of the time covered with weekly and daily journals. Let the whole family—men women and children—read the newspapers—Godey.

About two years ago, when the Prince of Wales was soon to marry the Princess Alexandria, Queen Victoria sent a letter to each of the Sovereigns, informing them of her son's betrothal, and among the rest to President Lincoln. Lord Lyons, her Embassador at Washington and who is unmarried, requested an audience of Mr. Lincoln that he might present this important document in person. At the time appointed he was received at the White House, in company with Mr. Seward.

'May it please your Excellency,' said Lord Lyons. 'I hold in my hand an autograph letter from my royal mistress, Queen Victoria, which I have been commanded to present to your Excellency. In it she informs you that her son, his Royal Highness the Princess Alexandria, of Denmark.'

After continuing in this strain for a few minutes, Lord Lyons tendered the letter to the President and awaited his reply. It was short simple and expressive, and consisted of these words:

'Lord Lyons, go thou and do likewise.'

A Vienna journal relates a droll story, A young man who was paying assiduous court to the wife of a dyer, had the misfortune to be caught by the enraged husband, who called his workmen about him, and, without any ceremony, the gallant was plunged in to the cauldron prepared for imparting a true blue color to various fabrics. In a second the unfortunate youth had received such a tint that he dared not appear in public. His friend implored the dyer to restore the poor fellow to his natural hue, but the pitiless answer was 'it's impossible. He is of a beautiful color, and all I can do for him is to change him to a green or violet.'

OUR CREDIT ABROAD.—A private letter from Frankfort in Germany, says:

There continues to be a great demand for American securities still in this market as well as in Amsterdam. On Friday everything was bought up which was offered. The Rothschilds were very large buyers, whether for themselves or upon orders we do not know. The price is three per cent. higher than New York quotations, and that in gold. It must be comfortable for Secretary Fessenden to know that Uncle Sam's paper is worth three per cent. more here, (or about seven in paper) above the price at home, and a good demand at that.

We once heard a woman of the world say 'The state of widowhood is inconvenient: for one must assume all the modesty of a young girl without being able to feign her ignorance.

THE PIONEER'S SLATE.

Rotation in Office—The "Ins" and "outs" of Minnesota.

From the St. Paul Pioneer, 19th.

It has been reported at various times within a month past that Mr. Lincoln had made up his mind to make a very few changes in the offices in his gifts, and none except for good and sufficient reasons. Uncle Abraham was doubtless sincerely opposed to extensive removals, but evidence is constantly accumulating that he has been compelled to yield to the pressure that has been brought to bear upon him, and that he has given his assent to the demands of members of Congress for the decapitation of all such official heads as have dared to wag in opposition to their interests.

We learn from our private Washington correspondence some items in regard to contemplated changes in this State that are interesting, and we believe will be found substantially correct.

It has been agreed that Clark W. Thompson, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, shall retain his position for the present, the excuse being that the office will be abolished at the next session of Congress. It is understood that Bluff Aleck and Dan Norton have "seen light" upon Clark's qualifications, and now consider him "the right man in the right place."

Henry L. Moss, United States District Attorney, and Mr. Eaton, United States Marshal, will also be retained. There was quite a pressure for the removal of the latter, several barrels of "sweat" having been sent on to Washington to drown him out, but without effect.

Deacon Wilford L. Wilson, Assistant Assessor of Internal Revenue, ousts H. O. G. Morrison, the Assessor, who gave him his position.

Mr. F. M. Stowell, representative in the last legislature from Anoka, will have the appointment of Collector of Internal Revenue, in place of Mr. Thomas G. Jones, the present incumbent of the office.

Dr. J. H. Stewart, Mayor of St. Paul, Surgeon of the Board of Enrollment, Director of the Superior Railroad and Second National Bank, Vice President of the Home Insurance Company, and enjoying a very lucrative medical practice, is to have the Post Office, in place of Mr. Charles Nichols.

David Blakely, Secretary of State will be Collector of Internal Revenue in the First District, in place of Mr. J. N. Hall, of Mankato.

Hon. Levi Nutting, State Senator from Rice county, will displace W. D. Washburn, Esq., as Surveyor General.

Mr. W. B. Mitchel, editor of the St. Cloud Democrat, and Mr. H. C. Wait will run the St. Cloud Land Office, in place of Messrs. McClure and Gilman. The Mitchel family are quite successful in obtaining office.

The head of George W. Moore collector of St Paul is supposed to be safe, although it is reported that A. R. Kiefer, and one or two others are applicants for the office.

With regard to Minneapolis, it is stated that Bill King will succeed in ousting his brother Dana E. King from the Land Office, and that C. D. Davidson, and Ben. Baker will probably have the two positions in the office. It is understood that Donnelly has changed the programe with regard to the Post Office giving Baker the position in the Land Office and the Post Office to Dan Bassett, who has been for some time past in Washington, forming one of J. D's privy council, and urging his personal claims to the Post Office with great pertinacity.

The Winona Post Office is a "bone of contention" between Mr. Norton and Mr Windom. Mr. Norton according to the rule, has the right of nomination, and he sent in the name of D. Sinclair, editor of the Winona Republican. Mr. Windom went to the President with an indignant protest He conceded that Mr. Norton should have the right to nominate, but demanded that no personal enemy of his own should have the appointment, stating that he should regard it as an insult if Mr. Sinclair's name was sent in—and so the matter stood at last advices.

The above was the "slate" at the date of our last letter, but our correspondent states that the programme may not be executed at once, as it was understood that Secretary Blakely, backed with the recommendation of the whole delegation of the State, found Secretary McCullough unwilling to displace Mr. Hall at present, upon which the tall and commanding form of our Secretary is said to have disappeared from the city of magnificent distances.

Melancholy Fate.

Among the floating trophies of the present flood, was a house that came down yesterday, and lodged against the bank two miles above the city. In it were discovered the bodies of a man and two children who had been overtaken in their home, perhaps in the dead of night and swept off to perish. While resting against the bank the bodies were distinctly seen, but as all the small craft are interdicted, there was no mode of reaching them, and the swelling river soon bore them on to another resting place—but where? There were at least twenty houses seen floating past the city during yesterday. Three-sheep took a ride by here yesterday, on a little Boat, affording quite a novel spectacle to our citizens.—Cairo News.

The New Jersey Railway Murder.

The persons killed and wounded at the slaughter on the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad, on the morning of the 7th inst., were with one or two exceptions, returned soldiers, many of them recently from Southern prisons. One poor fellow, on being told by a surgeon on the train that he could live but a few hours sadly replied: "Is it so? It is a hard case! I am but ten days out of Libby prison, where I have been fifteen months and I was so full of hope and joy at the thought of seeing my wife and baby who had never seen its father. It is a hard case!" Strangely but naturally enough the accommodating Pensylvania jury merely returned a verdict of death by collision.—Chicago Post.

The Weekly Union.

Mankato, Friday, March 24, 1865.

History of Blue Earth Co.

About the 1st of may we shall publish, in pamphlet form, a full and complete history of this County, from its first organization up to the present time. It will contain a carefully prepared history of every town in the county, giving interesting incidents connected with its settlement, its school, religious, and agricultural facilities, and will prove a valuable document to induce settlers to come among us. It will also contain an accurate sectional map of the County, 24 inches square, showing the location of towns, rivers, roads, and lakes, and other points of interest. Every man should have one or more copies. Single copies seventy-five cents. Orders are solicited.

WOODLAND SEMINARY.

The present term of Woodland Seminary closes on Friday, the 30th inst. The day, and perhaps the evening, will be spent in Examinations and other public exercises. It would gratify both the teachers and their pupils to see their friends on that occasion, though they regret that for want of room, they will not be able to accommodate as large a number as they would desire to do. As Mr. Thompson expects to commence his next term after a few days of recess, during which time he proposes to ascertain what our citizens are willing to do towards aiding him in securing more ample accommodations, a word additional to that already published, may not be inappropriate. It can easily be shown that he is not the one that will be accommodated by this effort. These institutions seldom make any money for their proprietors, while they are a source of invaluable wealth to the community where they are located. As he has already expended thousands of dollars in founding an institution of similar character in one of the Middle States, which is now in successful operation, partly at his expense, it would not be generous to allow him to repeat the same operation at his time of life, if he had the means to spare. But it will take at least $20,000 to provide what is needed. And at least one fourth of that amount ought to be raised in this county. Our citizens will actually be making money by such an expenditure, as can easily be shown, to say nothing of the many other invaluable advantages of such an addition to our improvements.

These facts should be brought before the people. Our public institutions are now rapidly acquiring permanency, and it is a fact that needs no other demonstration than a mere glance at some of the older States, to convince one that wherever our schools and seminaries become established they will draw around the very best class of settlers. Every enlightened emigrant, after he has become satisfied with the general features of the country where he proposes to locate, makes the religious and educational advantages of the place the subject of his first inquiry. May we not, by doing a little in the right direction, hold out great inducements to those seeking homes in the West, to bring into our own immediate neighborhood their intelligence, enterprise, wealth and sobriety. We may thus be enabled to place our town and county in the very front ranks for its good institutions, as they now stand among the first in beauty of situation.

THE PIONEER'S POLITICAL "SLATE."—We publish elsewhere, the "slate" of appointments as made out by the Pioneer. Fisher must have forgotten the Winnebago and St. Peter land offices, as he makes no mention of them. Mr. Clarke formerly of St. Anthony News is spoken of as the successor of Mr. Morrill, the present efficient Chippewa Agent. A mighty poor selection in our opinion.

GOVERNMENT FINANCES.—A telegraphic dispatch from Washington, gives the following pleasant news in respect to our finances:

The books of the Treasury Department show that for some time past the daily receipts of gold for custom duties have amounted to $323.390 per day This would give for the year, in round numbers, $95,000,000. The allowance for interest on the public debt payable in gold is but $65,000,000. From customs alone the means to meet the gold-bearing obligations of the government are a half greater than its requirements.

A HINT TO BUSINESS MEN.—A dispatch from Washington of the 15th says:

It is known that Secretary McCulloch has determined to put down the price of gold to a just relation to paper, but not to do this in haste; indeed, to take just care that the fall be not so rapid as to precipitate ruin upon any interest; but, in view of this settled policy of the Treasury Department, it is regarded here as wise for all men in business to unload their burdens betimes, and be cautious in assuming new burdens.

Just like Him.

We understand that Ex. Elder C. A. S. of Mankato is not only opposed to negroes voting but also to widows holding office. Mrs Sibley of Mankato since the death of her husband who was Post Master at that place has performed the duties of the office. She is now a candidate for re-appointment, and probably there is not one being in Mankato could be found, mean enough to run against her, except this Ex. Elder. If our Mankato Republicans have any respect for themselves they will not permit this Ex. Reverend to succeed in his attempt to beat a woman. Why don't you bat him Brother Slocum? Have you forgot the fun we boys used to have in old times throwing certain kind of eggs against the barn door just to hear them "pop?"—Homestead.

You are misinformed, Brother Holley "C. A. S." was not an applicant for the Post Office only on the solicitation of his friends, and stated that he would not be a candidate against a woman. He is not an aspirant now. Give the "devil his due." though you have to refrain from enjoying the "fun" of "old times."

New Hampshire Elections.

The elections in this State for State officers, and members of Congress and the Legislature took place on the 14th inst., and resulted in a Republican triumph.

The following is the vote for Governor in 127 towns: Smyth, 24,665; Harrington, 18,313. Marston is elected to Congress in the First District, and Patterson and Rolling are re-elected by about 2,000 maj. This insures the election of three Republican Members of Congress from New Hampshire—a gain of one.

One of our State exchanges, which makes up nearly all its leading editorials from New York papers, in a recent article on "Vice President Johnson," says:

"We deem it his duty to resign, lest his foot may again slip."

Of course he will now. He would be guilty of a heinous sin should he fail to heed the advice of this "blue-nosed" Noviascotian.

Also, of counting the votes of dead soldiers. These things were all done in this county, and if the Press desires the "facts and figures" it can have them.—Record.

We would like to read those "facts and figures." Trot them out.

Comments of the English Press.

Our cousins across the water have made a discovery. The evacuation of Charleston, and the fall of Columbia have caused them to open their eyes. They begin to see that there is some prospect of the North subduing the rebels. The latest news from that section is as follows:

The London Times says the influence of the success at Charleston can hardly be exagerated. The moral effects cannot but be most powerful on the conduct of the war. It is seen that the population of the southeastern States is not able to oppose the march of the Federal armies. The advance from Savannah to Charleston seems to have been as easy as the march from Atlanta to Savannah.

The Star regards the fall of Charleston as premonitory of the utter overthrow of the rebellion.

The Army and Navy Gazette says the evacuation of Charleston and Columbia, and the concentration of their garrisons will strengthen the hands of Beauregard, Hardee and Hill, but the Confederates are placed in a position of exceeding danger, from which it will require greater genius than ever Lee and Davis have as yet exhibited to extricate them. The purpose of Grant becomes more obvious as the campaign proceeds. He holds Lee fast, and thus paralyzes the strongest arm and neutralizes the greatest force of the Confederates.

COMMISSIONER OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald of the 12th says;

It has been determined by the President to place ex Senator Wilkinson, of Minnesota, at the head of the Indian bureau as the successor of Mr. Dole. The change will take place early this week.

FROM THE FRONTIER.—The Pioneer of the 19th inst., has the following:

Gen. Sibley received advices yesterday from Fort Wadsworth to March 7th. They contained no news of special importance. The expedition sent out to arrest certain irregular traders with the Indians had returned having arrested but one man. The Indians, chiefly Yanctonais were still on the Coteau hunting Buffalo, which were very numerous. The heavy storms still continue. All quiet at Fort Abercrombie.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

Rev. Edward D. Neill, formerly a resident of St. Paul, has been confirmed as Secretary to the President to sign Patents.

The yield of maple molasses in the Northern States is 31,000,000 gallons annually. Great preparations are being made by the farmers in the different parts of the States to make maple sugar and syrup on an extensive scale the coming season.

The Post, at Rochester, gives the following remedy for the blues:

Be faithful in business, economical in expenditure, buy nothing beyond what is useful, pay for what you buy, be sober, temperate and upright in your habits, subscribe and pay promptly for the county paper and our word for it, 'you'll be all right.'

SHALL THE NEGRO HAVE THE RIGHT TO VOTE?

MR. EDITOR:—When we enter into the great field of contest for the rights of man, without regard to color or condition of humanity against our opponents, we should contest for the right with a spirit of friendship and universal brotherhood that should characterize every friend of freedom. I shall review C. A. A. S.'s articles against the negro's rights with the same feeling, hoping he will profit by the same, for there is certainly great room for improvement. He calls upon the "spirits of Washington, Jackson, and Madison, and all the departed wise men to stand thou aghast, the bright glories of civilization in ignorance are dawning upon us." That I will admit. The dawn of ignorance was never more clearly displayed than when I saw it beaming up over the horizon of your pen. But, sir, there is a brighter glory in the opposite horizon, whose rays have shown to the world for more than eighty years, that never can be outvied or eclipsed by the "dawn of ignorance." The bright glories of civilization were placed in the firmament of nations, never to be stricken down by oppression or the tyrant's rod. The negro sees this, and from the first dawn of the light in '74, at the battle of Lexington down, he has taken an active part whenever his services have been wanted in defence of civilization, and the great principles of American independence established by the father of his country—inalienable right of man, life, libertty and the pursuit of happiness.

Sir, you have probably forgotten, if you ever knew, that the first volunteer soldier who shed his blood for the defence of our country was a colored man, under Maj Gen Warren (our first American officer of rank) at the battle of Lexington in 1774. They, too, fought under Gen. Jackson in the battle of New Orleans in 1812. It was to them, sir, that he attributed his victorious and successful achievement. The idea of using the cotton bales for breast works in our defense in that battle, first originated from a colored man, I think his name was Syms. When it was conveyed to Gen. Jackson he immediately availed himself of them for his defense.

You say, the "negro enlisting South in our armies have no choice. They are marched in like so many cattle, having no means of support, and getting none unless they will enlist, and is this patriotism." What an absurd assertion. Sir, if you did not get any nearer the truth when you graced the sanctuary of God, it certainly was a mercy to the public when you retired from your field of labor. You say he has no choice. Out of two hundred thousand now in the service of their country, I think you cannot find one drafted man,—all volunteered on the side of the North from choice When called upon by General Jackson in the battle of New Orleans they came forth not like cattle having no means of support and getting none unless they would enlist,' but like men, and fought for the right. Gen. Jackson in his address to them called them "patriots!" and fellow soldiers.

You ask, "has there ever been a regiment raised in the free States out of a population of 225,842, if so where is said regiment?" Surely ignorance is dawning. The 54th and 55th colored regiments of Massachusetts Volunteers, citizens of their own State, not one was compelled to enlist or refused "support" unless he would enlist; their choice was for liberty. These two regiments have been stationed near Charleston for the last two years, under General Gilmore. They assisted in taking Fort Wagner; they were not marched in like cattle, at that hard-fought battle, but like heroes and lovers of liberty, they fought like brave men, when scores fell; together with their lamented Colonel Shaw, of Boston. During this time Government paid them only $10 per month; the expense of clothing to come out of that Is not this patriotism? The 54th was the second regiment that marched into that hot bed of treason,—Charleston after its surrender. The 55th marched in the next day, singing "down with the traitor, up with the stars!"

Gov. Andrews, of Massachusetts, in his message of Jan 6, 1865, says, "the number of colored troops credited to this State during the war, including the 54th and 55th infantry and 5th cavalry and their recruits is only 4,731." He says if we have accepted colored volunteers, who have come to Massachusetts for the purpose of becoming soldiers and turned them over to the United States, it is because when we began to accept them and until we had raised the equivalent of two regiments, no other opportunity existed for them in the country. We believe in colored men, others did not. We obtained permission to try them. We assumed the hazard of the enterprise; but the country reaps the reward of its brilliant success."

Gen. Butler say, "the colored soldiers have freely and willingly taken up arms in our defense."

Charleston papers say, "the colored men are flocking to the support of the U. S. flag by dozens, and scores. Companies are formed in a single day, and a full regiment comes out in a week."

C. A. S. says "and while the struggle goes on they (the negroes) still look on, unless forced to enlist." Again he says, "the negro North and South has remained an idle spectator in the present struggle."

Gen. Banks says, "Port Hudson could not have been taken had it not been for my colored troops." C. A. S. says, "you cannot put your finger on anything they have done as a race or people worthy of note" Let us now see whether your assertions are true or false. You say the Indian will fight when trampled upon and insulted and so with every nation except the negro race.

Read the history of St. Domingo for the last three years. Since the war broke out between them and the Spanish they have fought desperately,—driven their antagonist and demanded of them their recognition. This people were under the British yoke of oppression until August, 8. 1838. Less than thirty years they fought against one of the great powers of Europe, and have conquered them. Every inch of ground was contested by (the negroes that won't fight) their national forces and taken possession of until on the 4th day of December last, when the conquest ended and they came off victorious. Their stipulations were only two, a general exchange of prisoners of war and State, and the sending of a commissioner to Madrid to ask the peace, liberty and independence of the Republic. Reader, let us pity and lend a sympathetic tear for those lovers of Christianity, who send forth upon the wings of the press, falsehood upon falsehood against a people who never have had the advantages of an education nor understood how to appreciate enlightened society. They have for centuries been taught their inferiority and stupidity. But the day is dawning when they will show to those who now send forth their hellish darts against them that there is stamped upon their race the image of the same all wise God.

They will come forth and associate themselves with the constellation of nations, never again to be oppressed on account of color or condition of humanity. One has already appeared with a Republican form of Government, having a President,—whose name is Geffird,—militia, and free schools. There are now sixteen thousand children attending school in this black Republic of Hayti. Less than thirty years ago she was made free by a vote cast by British Parliament. Less than thirty-five years after her emancipation she knocked at the door of our Republic for recognition.

Reader, as I have shown you facts not falsehoods—truth, not fiction, I will leave it to your unbiased mind whether the negro is susceptible of improvement; capable of conducting a Republican form of government,—shall not have the right of franchise.

In my next I will show you who favored the rights of franchise in former days. Yours, in the cause of equal rights.

W.

THE COLORED MAN'S VOTING.

Let it be distinctly understood, we are not asking any favors or 'privileges' for the colored race, we are not. We demand justice. Rights are rights. Gods are no more, man's are no less. Right is defined by Webster as justice, just claim, to relieve from wrong. Here, then, is our position; we ask justice for them, or to relieve them from wrong. The measure of the rights of God and man are thus defined by the best authority, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself.' God has been denied his right since the fall of Adam, and with few exceptions, never regained them, though ever since knocking at the door of man's heart. Instead of man getting his right from his fellow in being his equal, the human family, resemble a company ascending a flight of stairs, each striving to be a step above his neighbor, and instead of bringing his fellow traveler on a level with himself, he either keeps him a step below him, so will make an effort to get above him. Hence we see the sliding scale between the lowest slave and the Queen of England, or the Emperor of Russia. When St. Paul stood before a Roman tribunal, the chief Captain said in reference to his citizenship, "With a great sum obtained I this freedom." Paul replied, "But I was freeborn." The unfortunate African race here may claim the purchase of the right by, First, The kidnapping of his progenitors from their native country; by all the horrors of the middle passage; by all the cradle robberies; by all the stripes laid on the tender backs of their women; by the agonies of separated husbands and wives; by the thousands of virgin daughters sold on the auction block for the vilest purposes; by the thousands of thousands of their strong men murdered, by over-working, underfeeding, and cruel whipping; in a word by all the sweat, tears, groans, and blood of their race for the last two hundred and forty years. Second, They claim it as native born Americans. The foreigner, no matter how ignorant he may be, upon his landing on our shores is allowed the right of citizenship. I have it from good authority that some have been sent here from Germany for their crimes, and the handcuffs were not taken off until within sight of the American shore, yet this right is denied to an American born. "Rights are inalienable." They cannot be sold, bartered, or given away. The colored man never gave away his rights, he was robbed of them. The terminal of that robbery was consummated when Judge Taney said, "The negro has no rights which the white man is bound to respect." By a singular train of events those rights are about to be given him, not because of the honesty of the Anglo Saxon race. The voice of the few who ventured to rouse the public mind to a sense of the wrong inflicted on the slave, was unheeded. The slaveholder, in striking his plans to extend his dominions, began to hatch the rebellion, hence the attack on Fort Sumter. How the devil defeated himself, as by the rebellion the colored man gets his liberty, and all his other rights must follow. If rights are inalienable, we cannot take away or withhold a man's rights from him without doing him a wrong, and we cannot do him a wrong without inflicting a wrong upon ourselves. Now this bloody rebellion must knock off the anchor chain, the cable chain, the ox chain; but the poor unfortunate fellow comes imploringly and says to the voters of Minnesota, "strike off the little dog chain," and give me all my God-given rights. It will not be denied that those wrongs have been inflicted by the white man. He has now an opportunity to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free. Let us honestly confess we have done the wrong in robbing him of his rights, and give them back to him. Short of this we are no better than the common robber who holds his grasp of the plundered booty.

In my next I will answer objections.

THE AUTOMATIC ORGAN

In presenting the Automatic Organ, we boldly announce the greatest triumph in musical instruments of the age. During the past half century, the French and Germans have manufactured reed instruments, with double bellows and two pedals for the feet to operate but the want of the reversed or Exhaustion Bellows, (which is the only bellows used in our instruments,) made it impossible for them to produce the mellow, rich and musical tone for which our instruments are celebrated

Another objection to this method of blowing was that, both feet being occupied, no opportunity was offered for the management of the swell Within the past two years, instruments constructed on this European plan of "double blowers," have been manufactured in this country, and to counteract this difficulty (want of a swell) a lever has been projected from the centre of the instrument, to act upon the swell and operated by the knee. The inconvenience and contortion necessary to effect this object are disagreeable enough to a gentleman, but to a lady the use of such an appendage is nearly impossible.

Our Automatic device obviates this difficulty entirely, the simple act of blowing with more or less force giving the desired increase or decrease in the volume of tone. We predict for this invention a brilliant future.

THE MELODEON & SCHOOL ORGAN.

For seventeen years the superior excellence of our Melodeons has not been questioned, and for two years past the enormous demand has made it impossible for us to meet our orders promptly. With our increased facilities, we feel warranted in assuring our patrons that their orders will be promptly met, and solicit a continuance of their patronage

Local Affairs.

Liquor Licenses.—The Board of County Commissioners, at its last meeting on the 15th inst., decided to require all liquor dealers in the County to pay a license of fifty dollars. They will meet on Tuesday next to hear and act upon all applications for licenses that may be presented. The revenue accruing from such source will be paid in the Treasury to the credit of the common school fund. This is a move in the right direction, and we are glad to see that our County Board have the manliness to come out boldly and put their foot upon a growing evil. It will, we hope, have the tendency to shut up many of the small groceries that are to be found all over the county.

Our village organization goes into force the first of May, and its charter empowers the board of trustees to grant liquor licenses also. Perhaps it would have been well for the Board to have left this town to be governed by the Village trustees, in that respect, as the money accruing from that source would nearly pay the running expenses of the village.

Real Estate Sales.—The following sales of real estate have recently been made in this county.

In the town of Shelby, on the east side of the river in section 15. James Miller sold to Messrs Hall and Carlton, of Wisconsin, one hundred and sixty-five acres for $900,00. This was a good piece of wild land.

J. A. Willard sold to Mary A. Dinneen, 160 acres on the reservation for for $560.00.

E. B. Tyler sold to Jacob Estelle in Garden City. 50 acres improved land for $450 00.

80 acres in Judson sold for $200 to D. C. Evans.

Henry Foster sold to Joseph May 322 acres in McPherson, near Rice Lake for $3,000.

160 acres in Judson for $800,00 to D. Griffith.

Willard & Barney sold to S. Schroeder lot 10 in block 3, corner of Front and Spring street, Mankato, for $400 00.

Prince's Automatic Organ.—We publish, in another column, the advertisement of Geo. A. Prince & Co., manufacturers of Melodeons, and Church and School Organs. They have a world-wide reputation, and their instruments for style of finish, durability, and richness and volume of tone, are unsurpassed in the United States. The recent improvements they have made, by adding the Automatic swell, has made their organs justly celebrated, and very widely sought after. So great has been the call for them even in these times that they have been unable to supply the demand. We call attention to their advertisement, and those who wish to purchase can order direct from Chicago.

Sale of Liquor Prohibited on Certain Days.—The recent Legislature passed a law forbidding the sale or giving away of any spirituous, vinous, fermented liquors on the day of any general election, or the day in which any town meeting may be held for the transaction of town business, in the town in which such meeting may be held, and imposing a fine of not less than fifty, nor more than one hundred dollars for every such offense.

School Meeting.—To morrow afternoon at four o'clock a school meeting will be held in the log school house. We trust our citizens will not overlook its importance. A board of trustees are to be elected, who will have charge of our school matters the coming year. It is right that only those who will take an interest in schools should be placed on the board. Let there be a full attendance.

The North Iowa, Osage Standard, says, that a man who is too stingy to pay two dollars a year for his County paper when horses sell for two hundred dollars, oxen for seventy dollars, and everything else in porportion, hasn't got any heart at all—nothing but a dried up gizzard, and that a man who will do business in a town without advertising at all hasn't even a gizzard. We certainly have no reason to dispute this natural presumption.

Minnesota Business Directory.—Messrs Groff & Baily, of St. Paul, propose to publish this season a State directory, which will contain a complete directory of the business of every city, town, and village in the State, and other valuable information. They are now canvassing the different towns. Being personally acquainted with them we heartily reccommend them to our business community.

Accident.—Wm. L. Wilson, while passing up the ravine, back of the brewery, the other day, with a load of sap buckets, was suddenly thrown from the load, and fell ten feet down an embankment. The entire load fell on him and bruised his head severely. As the sled went over the bank it drew the horse over also, and Mr. Wilson barely escaped being crushed by the horse falling on him.

Breaking Up.—The warm sun has again melted away the snow, and the frost in the ground is fast coming out. Second street has again been flooded, this time the water rising ten inches higher than ever before. The river has raised several feet, and the ice is breaking up.

A dog fell overboard and went under the ice at the Blue Earth Ferry the other day, and a man jumped in the water to rescue him and came near losing his own life. It must have been a valuable dog that one would risk his life to save.

The Bridge Meeting.—A meeting of citizens was held at the hall Saturday night to see what could be done towards disposing of the Bridge Bonds, among our business men. Nothing was done, however, more than to appoint a committee of three, to present the subject to our citizens, and report at a future meeting. The committee is Messrs Willard, E. Bradley and Geo. A. Clarke.

Stealing Timber.—Upon complaint of S. D. Brown, Sheriff Middlebrook arrested Adail Gates, last week upon the charge of stealing timber from Mr. B.'s timber, in town 106, range 26. He was brought to town, had his trial, and fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $15.

Teachers' Institute.—Professor Phelps of the State Normal Schools, has notified Judge Wilcox, superintendent of schools for this county, that he will visit Mankato sometime in April, to hold a teachers' institute. A more definite notice of the time and place of holding the same will hereafter be given.

Our readers will please bear in mind, that any thing they may want in the way of men's or boys wear, can still be procured at Randalls Clothing Emporium. Call and see.

Messrs Piael & DeBuisson are selling their well selected stock of goods at greatly reduced prices, keeping pace with the decline of prices in the eastern cities.

Godey for April.—The April number of this excellent Monthly has been received. It is one of the best published and its engravings and fashion plates are unsurpassed.

The Presbyterian Mite Society will meet at the Church next Thursday evening. A general invitation is extended to all to be present.

In Knoxville, Tenn., coffee is selling at 60 cents per pound, and Sugar at 40 cents.

E. P Freeman advertises some choice lands for sale, in another column.

Whiskers.—Those wishing a fine set of whiskers, a nice moustache, or a beautiful head of glossy hair, will please read the card of Thos. F. Chapman, in another part of this paper. 36 3m

Cash for Wheat.—Bierbauer & Rockey at the Mankato Mills are paying 65 cents per bushel for wheat. 1w*

The Mankato Mills are now retailing flour at their Mills at $3,00 per hundred, and wholesaling at $2,75. 4w*

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

A School Teachers' Institute will be held in Mankato commencing on the 17th day of April 1865. The services of Prof. W. F Phelps have been secured for the term, and nothing will be spared to make this an interesting and profitable occasion. Teachers are expected to attend, and they will do well to bring their text books. The friends of Education are invited to be present and to use their influence to make this a well attended institute. Arrangements will be made, if possible, for gratuitous accommodations of those teachers who live out of the village.

Circular From Col. Averill.

Col. Averill has published a circular in which he gives the explanation of the enrollment law as follows:

I. No person owing duty to the government as a drafted man, will be allowed to enlist as a recruit.

II. In all sub districts where a draft shall be made for the deficiency under call of Dec. 19, 1864, the citizens thereof will be allowed to supply such deficiency with recruits after the draft, provided that this is done before the drafted men shall have been sent to the General Rendezvous at Fort Snelling.

III. Whenever a portion of the men drafted in a sub-district shall have been held to service, and it is desired to substitute recruits for the balance of the quota and excuse the drafted men, the men to be excused will be taken from the bottom of the list of those drafted, in the reverse order in which they were drawn; but no person will be excused for such cause after being sent to rendezvous from the headquarters of the Provost Marshal's, nor in any event until a sufficient number of recruits or substitutes have been mustered in to fill the quota of such sub district.

IV. Notices will be served upon drafted men immediately after the draft but three days will be allowed them to prepare for leaving their homes, or to make preparations to supply the deficency with recruits.

V. All acceptable recruits, not liable to enrollment or draft, can be credited to any sub-district which they may select.

VI. Sec. 23, late Enrolment Act, contemplates that the recruits to be furnished by the association of persons named, must be such as are not liable to draft; and should any person or persons of such association be drafted in excess of the number of recruits furnished, such person or persons will be held to service unless they or the association shall furnish the proper substitutes within the required time.

VII. No recruits enlisted in this state after March 16, 1865, except such as are specified in the Par. V of this circular, can be placed to the credit of any sub-district, except to that in which he may be enrolled.

A CALL FOR A STATE CONVENTION.

To the friends of the Freedmen Throughout the State of Minnesota.

God in his providence has imposed upon the people of this land a great and imperative work. The prayers which have been so long uttered, that the "bonds of the captive might be loosed" and that "liberty might be proclaimed throughout the land to the inhabitants thereof," have at length been wonderfully answered. Those which were 'bound in chains have been brought out." But, as might have been expected, deliverance has come to the Captive in such a way as to devolve upon the people at large those obligations of fostering care and loving kindness which the Strong are ever under to the Weak. They are in great physical destitution, and their needs must be supplied. They are ignorant, and they must be taught. They are without the experience of liberty, and they must be instructed in the use of their new found freedom. They are unaccustomed to self-dependence; they must therefore be trained to industrious habits. They are without any special plans for themselves in the future: a future must be opened to them. They are under the ban of an oppressive prejudice, which must be encountered and overcome. All this is to be done. And it is easy to see it is not the work of a day or a year. It will doubtless take a long period to secure the right adjustment under our social and political systems. The friends of the Freedmen must therefore prepare for the work. The momentous responsibility must be promptly and earnestly met. Effort must be organized. Public opinion must be educated and brought to bear upon this question. It is with this view that we, the undersigned, unite in calling a State Convention of the friends of the Freedmen, to be held in St. Paul, on Thursday, May the 4th, 1865, for the purpose of considering their claims, comparing views, awakening interest, and deciding on the best methods of accomplishing the ends of the work in this State. Now let all who sympathise with this Cause take special pains to be in attendance at the meeting. It is designed to make this a State Convention, and it is earnestly desired that all parts of the State may be fully represented. May it be ours to be found not as opposers nor indifferent spectators, but as earnest coworkers with God in this great Providence, by which the oppressed are being led out of the house of bondage and made meet for the enjoyments and glorious possibilities of Liberty.

Persons who wish to sign this call can do so by calling at our office, where it has been left for a few days.

THE GREAT FRESHET.

BUFFALO, March 18.

We learn this morning from Rochester that the New York Central Railroad bride was swept away at 12 o'clock last night. It is reported that four men were drowned with it.

The water is three feet deep in the Arcade building, preventing all ingress or egress. All the lower portion of the city is under water. The damage is enormous. There is no communication from one part of the city to the other. The newspapers are unable to publish as the water extinguishes the fire in the engines.

We are informed that injuries to the Erie Road extend over a distance of nearly one hundred miles, mostly east of Hornellsville. Several breaks between Hornellsville and Dunkirk.

The Lake Shore Road is but little damaged, and is all right.

SYRACUSE, March 18.

The low lands of the 4th ward are again overflowed, basements and cellars are deluged and there is much suffering among the people of that ward.

A small river is rushing through Mulberry and Onondaga streets.

A slide has occurred on the Binghamton Railroad near Whitemeyr's Point, demolishing the track between Tulley and Preble.

An interruption to the Oswego Road has occurred at Nine mile Creek, by the destruction of a bridge, but a temporary structure has been improvised, so that by transfer of passengers the connection of the road is kept up with but slight delay.

The Oneida and Seneca Rivers, the Skeneatelas outlet and the Nine Mile Creek are higher than ever known before, and much more danger to property will follow.

The dam at the flouring mills of Burdick & Co., at Amboy, was carried away yesterday. Loss 50,000. In the Central Railroad depot at Utica, yesterday morning, there was three feet of water, owing to the Mohawk River having overflown its banks, and the flats were one vast sheet of water for miles.

UTICA, March 18.

The discoveries of this morning regarding the flood were anything but pleasant. The lumber of Reed's yard was rushing down the stream at a rapid rate, and a good deal of it had gone. The iron bridge over the Mohawk on the Black River Railroad had been swept away, also the wooden bridge of the same road on this side.

Information was brought to the city that the bridge over Briskany Creek, at Clark's Mills had been swept away on Thursday evening, and carried with it three men. It lodged against a tree some distance below, and one of the men managed to get off. The other two men have not since been seen, and are supposed to have been drowned. The Oriskany Creek was much higher than it was ever known before. Its bridges at Beckville, Waterville, Manchester and Oriskany Valley are also carried away. So also is the dam at Coleman's Mills. There is also a report in the city that the mill near Clinton had been destroyed.

Curious Mistake in Telegraph

MARCH 10.—D. Wrathton Smith vs. the Independent Telegraph Company.—This was an action brought to recover two thousand dollars damages for a mistake made in the transmission of a telegram by the defendants. The plaintiff, it appears, was anxious to speculate upon the action of Congress in reference to gold, and sent the following dispatch to Messrs. Drexel & Co., his agents in this city:

"If the gold bill is vetoed buy one hundred thousand dollars."

Upon Drexel & Co. receiving the dispatch it read: "The gold bill is passed; buy one hundred thousand dollars;" and the plaintiff's agents, acting on the instructions implied on the telegram, purchased the gold at 162½, and informed the plaintiff of the fact. Smith somewhat surprised at the news, and sent word back that there was a mistake somewhere, and not to purchase any more. He also requested Messrs. Derxl & Co. to call at the office of the Telegraph Company and see where the mistake occurred. Upon investigation it was found that the word "If" had been omitted by the copyist, which completely altered the sense of the dispatch, and induced the agents to do the very opposite of what they would have done had the message been correctly delivered: The next day gold fell to 160 9 16, at which figure Derxel & Co. were obliged to sell the plaintiff's lot and the result of the transaction was a loss to Mr. Smith of $2,000.

Judge Clerke reserved his decision.

Putnam Manufacturing Co:

GENTLEMEN:—I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle I can safely say, after several years' experience in the manufacture of chain for chain-pumps and water-drawers, in which I have tested the affinity of iron and zinc, that if the process be conducted properly, it is a perfect weld of the two.

Nearly one year ago my family commenced using one of your Wringers It now performs all of its functions as well as it did the first time it was used, and has become an indespensible article with us. I have closely observed several other kinds of clothes-wringers the modus operandi being different, trying to produce the same results as the Putnam Wringer, but in my judgment they have failed. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.

THE PARTING.

Let mine eye the farewell make thee,
 Which my lips refuse to speak,
Scorn me not, if, to forsake thee,
 Makes my very manhood weak.

Joyless in our joy's eclipse, love,
 Are love's tokens, else divine,
Cold the kisses of thy lips, love,
 Damp the hand that's locked in mine.

Once thy lip to touch it only,
 To my soul has sent a thrill,
Sweeter than the violet lonely,
 Pluck'd in March time by the rill,

Garlands never more I'll fashion,
 Roses twine no more for thee:
Spring is here, but ah, my passion,
 Autumn dark has come for me!

Bad Management of Cultivating Oats.

The system of management which is adopted very extensively in many parts of the United States, is decidedly bad, not only for the immediate pecuniary interest of farmers, but for the productiveness of their farms, and for the country. It is bad for farmers, because they receive only a light crop, when their soil is capable of yielding, in many instances, twice as much as it has formerly produced, with the same amount of cultivation. It is bad for the soil, because it is kept in a very foul condition, which, of course, renders it less productive. And it is bad for the country, because field agriculture is the great motive power of the nation, and anything that tends to diminish the quantity of grain will tend to cripple the resources of government.

We refer, particularly, to the practice of growing oats for many years in succession on the same soil, by plowing it only once, and seldom returning any thing, in the form of fertilizers, to compensate for the crops that have been removed. Thousands of acres of excellent land for agricultural purposes are cultivated in this way, until Canada thistles, wild mustard, horse dock, and many other noxious weeds have taken almost entire possession of the soil; and one of the worst features in this system of management with the oat crop is, all the weeds mature their seed before the oats are ripe enough to cut, and enough is shelled out, when the oats are harvested, to seed the soil for seven years to come, and the Canada thistle seed is blown all over the country. In all such localities if farmers will discontinue oats, and raise a crop of Indian corn one year, and a crop of buckwheat the next season, and apply all the manure they are able to make, they will soon find that it will be far better, and more profitable, to adopt some short rotation system, even where oats have been considered the most profitable crop to raise, for several years in succession. It is impracticable for a farmer to avail himself of great benefits raising from clean cultivation of soil, when it is plowed only once each year, and then in the spring.—Am. Agri.

Preparing for Field Labors.

During the month of March, farmers should make all necessary preparations for performing the labors of the field, as soon as the soil has become sufficiently dry to be plowed, and the season is right. Even on small farms, as well as on large ones, there is much operation to be made. Old plows should be put in order, and new ones should be purchased; and it is important that a little effort be made to secure, as far as practicable, those plows that are best adapted to the kind of plowing to be done. Harrow teeth are to be sharpened; rollers, cultivators, seed-drills, spades hand hoes and all tools and implements should be put in working order, before the time arrives for using them.

Some farmers are always behind-hand, not only during seed time, but with their haying and harvest, and one prominent reason for it is, their tools and implements are not put in order in good time. Our own practice always was, to have every tool and farm implement in working order several weeks previous to the time when it is to be used.

What shall we do for Grafting Wax.

The Crimean war had its influence upon horticulture; the Russian ports being closed, we were cut off from the supply of bass matting, and were obliged to look elsewhere for tying materials. In a similar manner the war of the rebellion has shut up the sources, from which we derived our rosin, and this essential ingredient of grafting wax has become so enormously expensive, that those who have to do much grafting, are looking to a substitute. In operating on small stocks a wax of some kind is almost indispensable, but on large ones the old fashioned grafting clay may be employed. This was in use centuries before grafting wax was invented, and many old gardeners claim that it is superior to any of the modern compositions. While it is less pleasant to work with, it has the advantage, that it retains moisture, and cions are not so readily injured by drying, and the wood to which it is applied is said to heal over more readily than when wax is used. To make grafting clay or mortar, two parts of clay or stiff clayey loam and one part of cow dung, free from litter, are thoroughly mixed and beaten together, adding some very fine hay, cut short to give toughness to the mixture. The mass is to be worked over and tempered in the same manner as mortar adding water if necessary to bring it to a proper consistence. The clay should be prepared some weeks before it is used, and it will be all the better if it is worked over several times. The mass may be made into a compact heap and covered over to prevent drying. If it is disposed to become too dry a cavity may be made in the top of the heap and filled with water. When applied in grafting, the mass should form a coating at least an inch in thickness and be smoothed off with hand.

Look Out Early.

Several indications point a pretty large demand for implements, seeds, trees, etc., the coming spring and summer. Money is more abundant than labor; labor is high, and implements have not advanced in price so much as farm products of the soil, will be eagerly secured by sensible farmers. There is a possibility, rather a probability, that considerable portions of some Southern States may be sending for implements which they formerly procured mainly from the north. So there is danger of a short supply. The suggestion we would offer is enterprising men (and our readers are all of this kind, of course), should be on the lookout early. This month they can cast about, discuss with their neighbors the utility and value of different implements and kinds of seeds, correspond with dealers and manufacturers, and examine their advertisements, catalogues, and circulars, which are usually free, for a stamp or two, and in this way get ready to order early. The last pages of this paper probably offer the most complete Directory to a class of good dealers that can be any where found.—American Agriculturist.

What shall I get for Variety.

"Are you awake?" said I to my wife, as the clock struck five. "Yes," she replied quickly, and, "I have been thinking for nearly two hours what I can get up for a variety on the table. It is nothing but beef, pork, mutton, fish and chicken; and then, chicken fish, mutton, pork and beef."—"Do you need a better variety than that?"—"If our boarders (two bachelors) were not so observing and very particular about every dish that would do."

"Let me give you a programme for a week. Now, if you have beefsteak and mutton for a breakfast, make a meat pie, just as a chicken pie is made, for dinner; and, slice up some cold ham, or mutton, for those who think meat pie is not enough. For a desert, make apple dumplings instead of so much pie pie pie at every meal. That's good enough for one day. To morrow, for breakfast cook fresh fish, and make fresh-pork dumpling, by dipping the thin slices in a batter made of eggs and flour. This dish may be varied by using salt pork, sometimes, instead of fresh. For dinner have roast beef, or mutton, with baked beans and salt pork.

"What shall we have for supper?"—"In addition to good white bread and Graham bread, have white biscuit one evening; Graham biscuit the next evening; the next evening make buckwheat cakes; the next make "Canaille cakes. (Canaille is the course part of wheat flour.) At another time, make cakes of equal quantity of Indian meal and Graham flour, and bake on a griddle, and serve with butter, or cream and syrup. For a variety in the line of sweetening, dissolve a few pounds of maple sugar, in hot water. These dishes will always be excellent. One day have apple pie; the next, custard pie; and for Sunday, nothing will eat better than a pie made of a Hubbard squash. The next morning fried chicken, and baked potatoes if that be not enough, add turnip, or squash. At noon, make a meat pie. It appears to me, that so many good dishes can be varied so that none of us need get tired of them.—American Agriculturist.

A Home-made Easy Chair.

A subscriber to the Agriculturist describes an easy chair which almost any one can make with materials very easily procured. Take a good flour barrel, cut away a few staves at the highth of a common rocking chair, then make a deeper cut about a foot higher to form the arms, as shown in the engraving. Nail in a circular board for the bottom; then make a suitable cover of any suitaleb kind of cloth, stuff it well with hair moss, tow, or other proper material, and it is complete. A small opening or door can be made under the seat, which will furnish a convenient work box. Before commencing to make a chair of this kind from a barrel, it is neecessary to nail all the hoops securely, especially those which are to be cut to each of the staves.

* * *

LIME for Whitewash in the spring should be slaked now. Take quick-lime in lumps; start the slaking with hot water, and add more as needed to bring it to a creamy consistence. Do this in a half barrel or similar vessel; stir it well, cover and leave it in a still place, undisturbed until wanted for use. A crust of carbonate of lime will form on the surface; this will have to be scimmed off. Lime prepared in this way becomes smoother and softer, the gritty portions and particles imperfectly burned settle to the bottom, and the slaking is more complete than if slacked at the time it is used, and for nice work it is much preferable to lime slaked at the time it is wanted for application.—American Agriculturist.

The Housekeeper.

Dried apples can be easily removed from strings by cutting the knots at the ends and soaking the fruit in water a short time. Such fruit should be carefully washed before cooking.

TO CLEAN BOTTLES.—Half fill with good warm (not hot) soap suds, put in a dozen or two of tacks or shingle nails, and shake briskly; then rinse in cool rain water and turn the mouth down to drain.

ONE CAKE.—Take one cup of sugar, one of thick sour cream, or one of milk and one table-spoonful of butter; one egg half a tea-spoonful of soda; two cups of sifted flour, nutmeg to suit the taste. Beat it for ten minutes and bake in a moderately hot oven.

PARSNIP CROQUETTES.—This is an excellent way of dressing parsnips. Boil until tender; mash them, season with butter, pepper and salt; have ready a dish with some flour upon it; drop a spoonful of the parsnip upon it; roll it in the flour until coated and formed into a ball, or any shape you prefer; when you have a sufficient number ready, drop them into boiling lard, as you would fritters; fry them a delicate brown and serve hot, though not in a covered dish, as that would soften the elegant crispness, which is so desirable.

Salisfy may be prepared in the same way, and will much resemble fried oysters.

CORN GRIDDLE CAKES.—Take three table-spoonfuls of corn meal; scald it with boiling water; add three table-spoonfuls of wheat flour and a teaspoonful of salt; three eggs well beaten, and as much milk or water as will make good batter.—State Atlas.
